OIL-CONSERVING STEPS PROPOSED

Truman's ERP Budget Figure Called 'Phoney'

Bridges Says Over 2 Billions Hidden

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — President Truman was accused by Chairman Bridges (R-NH), of the Senate Appropriations Committee, today of concealing $2,300,000,000 for foreign aid in what the Senator called the "phoney budget" for 1948-49.

And the Marshall program for European recovery was denounced as a "blueprint for atomic war" by Arthur Schutzer, of New York's American Labor Party, which Schutzer said endorses the foreign aid views of Henry A. Wallace.

These developments came as Senate opinion appeared swinging in line behind the proposals by Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.), of the Foreign Relations Committee, for operating the proposed four-year recovery program.

Taft, Connally Back Vandenberg

Sens. Taft (R-Ohio) and Connally (D-Texas) were among those commenting favorably on the Vandenberg plan, which would put the recovery program under an independent, Cabinet-rank administrator responsible only to the President.

President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall have asked Congress to give the State Department control of the program and to appropriate $6,800,000,000 for its operation during the first 15 months.

Bridges, whose committee must pass on any appropriation, told newsmen he called the attention of all Republican senators at a morning conference to "the phoney budget setup so far as foreign aid is concerned."

The New Englander said Mr. Truman's budget listed $4,000,000,000 in planned expenditures for foreign aid in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, and noted that the President asked another $500,000,000 before July 1.

"Phoney Setup" Charged

Subtract this $4,500,000,000 total from the administration's $6,800,000,000 request for foreign aid, Bridges said, and you get a "discrepancy" of $2,300,000,000.

"It's a phoney setup—that's a good word for it," Bridges declared. He said the Appropriations Committee would "look into it" and added that Vandenberg also had promised to "ask for an explanation."

One reporter suggested that the administration plans to spend the $2,300,000,000 of the total after the one-year period covered by the budget.

"If $6,800,000,000 is needed, the goods have got to be purchased and shipped quickly to be of any use," Bridges replied.

(Mr. Truman's budget message, sent to Congress last January 6, said it would be "reasonable" to appropriate $6,800,000,000 although only $4,500,000,000 might actually be spent up to July 1, 1949.)

Bridges said it was his "guess" that the President "doctored the budget up this way" in order to keep it under $40,000,000,000.

Four More Arabs Slain In Palestine

JERUSALEM, Jan. 26 (AP) —Bullets from a Jewish armored car killed three Arabs today near Beersheba in the Southern Palestine desert.

Police said the Arabs were driving a stolen army truck and exchanged shots with the Jews in the armored car. Another Arab was wounded.

A fourth Arab was killed while trying to penetrate an army camp barricade in the same area. A sentry shot him.

In the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv on the Coastal Plain a Jew was shot to death. The unofficial death toll since the United Nations decision of November 29 on partition of Palestine climbed to 986.

During the day Arab and Jewish reprisal squads struck blows at "enemy installations."

Hand grenades were hurled into an unoccupied house in the fashionable Katamon quarter of Jerusalem for the second time in a week. A Jewish-owned shop was blown up in a commercial center outside the walls of the "old city."

Three Jews were injured when two houses inside the old city were damaged by bombs.

An Arab bus was blasted by mines outside Bethlehem. Jewish sources said 12 Arabs were injured, one fatally. This was not confirmed elsewhere.

Rep. Thomas Transferred From Ship To Hospital

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 26 (INS)—Rep. J. Parnall Thomas, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, was taken from the S.S. Ancon and placed in a Cristobal hospital tonight in a weak condition from internal hemorrhages.

The 53-year-old New Jersey Republican was removed from the Ancon, aboard which he was stricken Saturday night, as soon as the ship reached Chistobal this evening.

Doctors said Thomas was weak from gastro-intestinal bleeding but appeared to be holding his own.

Aged Candidate For President Plans 4 Rallies

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 26 (AP) —C. C. Cunningham, 84-year-old retired Houston resident who has announced his independent candidacy for President, today said he will open a "vigorous" campaign in July. He said he plans to hold four large rallies, one each in California, Chicago, New York City and Houston.

The former Missouri physician, whose campaign platform calls for a 75 per cent reduction in the number of federal employes, legalized gambling and horse racing, and exemption of incomes of $5,000 or less from income taxes, also announced he will name four women to his cabinet if he is elected.

East Braces For New Cold Wave

[By The Associated Press]

The East and Central States, still benumbed from their second cold wave in a week, braced Monday night for a new onslaught of frigid air moving in from the Plains States.

The Southeast, meanwhile, prepared for a covering of rain and snow expected to reach that area by Tuesday night.

The leading edge of the new cold wave was expected to hit the Midwest Tuesday and the East Coast Wednesday, after dropping temperatures in Northern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin to 20 to 30 degrees below zero Monday night.

Central and Northern Illinois and Northern Indiana will experience five below readings Tuesday night, and Southern Wisconsin and Lower Michigan will have 10 below.

Severely cold weather was forecast for the East by Wednesday night.

A storm centering in New Mexico moved slowly eastward. Rain and snow were expected to cover the Southeast by Tuesday night.

Texas and Northwestern Louisiana were hit by a freezing drizzle, and Southwestern Illinois and Southern Missouri experienced snow. Southward from there, rain along the Gulf moved slowly Eastward.

Northern sections of Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia were in the path of the rain and snow.

Nine French Fliers Die

ROMAINVILLE, France, Jan. 26 —(AP)—The bodies of nine French airmen were removed tonight from the wreckage of a four-engined transport that crashed into a junk yard and caught fire. The crash and flames destroyed five houses and damaged a blacksmith shop in this Paris suburb.

New Earthquakes Rock Philippines; At Least 27 Dead

Iloilo Residents Flee Into Streets

MANILA, Tuesday, Jan. 27—(AP)—Hundreds more fled in panic from Iloilo City on Panay Island during the night as three new moderate to strong earthquakes—more than 40 hours after the first devastating shocks early Sunday — brought additional casualties and damage.

MANILA, Jan. 26 (AP)—Panicky residents of Iloilo were driven from their homes late tonight by a strong earthquake, latest of a series which began early Sunday and caused 27 known deaths and vast property damage on the Central Philippines island of Panay.

The new quake, rated at intensity 6 — strong — by the Philippines Weather Bureau, came at 10:12 p. m. (9:12 a. m., EST) and secondary tremors continued for four minutes.

It brought no further records of casualities, but weakened buildings damaged in the earlier series and caused thousands of persons to flee in night clothing into the streets and open plazas.

People Flee To Countryside

Many of the population of Iloilo, southern Panay port of 125,000, had fled to the countryside Sunday.

The Philippines Red Cross announced there were 47 distinct shocks beginning shortly before 2 a. m. Sunday, not counting the latest.

Of those who remained, most elected to spend the rest of the night in the open rather than return to their beds.

Most of the known deaths were caused by falling masonry Sunday morning. Latest additions were two fishermen whose bodies were recovered Monday on the south coast near Miagao, 25 miles west of Iloilo. They were apparently victims of a tidal wave which villagers said swept through the Iloilo Strait, between Panay and the small island of Guimaras.

Red Cross and other relief workers in the field reported meagre advices from Antique Province that two families of unknown numbers were buried by a landslide at Hanini on the southwest coast.

Communication Broken

Rail and road communications were broken by great fissures in the earth.

Arturo Alcarez, geophysicist of the Philippines Weather Bureau, estimated the epicenter of the disturbance was only three miles from the center of Iloilo, which is 295 air miles southeast of Manila.

The bureau reported the shock

Britain Says It Won't Follow Suit Of France And Devalue Its Money

French Move Gets Official U.S. Blessing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—The U. S. government gave its official blessing — with reservations — to France's revaluation of her currency today.

And millions of Americans daydreamed of April in Paris . . . moonlight on the Riviera. . . Schiaparelli originals . . . vintage champagne—all at "half price" or less under the new exchange rate.

The State Department, speaking for the Treasury as well, said that "although we may not approve of all details" this government "heartily approves of an adjustment of the franc."

Trade War Called Unlikely

A high Treasury official said he thought "the worst predictions won't work out." These predictions included a trade war and the risk of financial chaos in Europe.

Americans planning—or just hoping—to visit France this year were jubilant at the prospect of getting at least twice as many francs for their dollars as they could have got legally last week.

But the cheaper francs won't swell the number of Europe-bound tourists in 1948, Department of Commerce officials said, because ship, plane and hotel accommodations are still limited.

As a result, only about 450,000 tourists will make it this year, officials said—with another 75,000 or more unable to get reservations.

France's devaluation may pay off, however, in that she will attract an unusually large share of those who do get to Europe.

Fares Won't Be Cheaper

Ship and plane fares won't be any cheaper because they are payable in dollars. Similarly, officials noted, the cost of the proposed Marshall plan won't be affected because that is figured in dollars, too.

The Treasury spokesman made it clear that this country's misgivings about France's move had the same basis as those of the International Monetary Fund, which objected to the currency change.

The fund's complaint was that the revaluation gives the United States dollar a better break than the British pound and most other foreign currencies, and hence might bring on a trade war if other countries compete in currency devaluation.

155 Escape Fire In Ohio Coal Mine

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Jan. 26—(AP)—One hundred fifty-five Ohio miners escaped tonight from a sudden fire in the giant Willow Grove coal mine where eight years ago 72 men died in a fire and explosion.

The grimy-faced workmen, quiet and grim, shot to the cold air of the mine near St. Clairsville in an express elevator which Mine Recovery Boss Lawrence Higgins described as "exactly like those extremely fast ones used in New York's Empire State Building."

The elevator held only 20 men at a time, but the miners showed no panic. They stood silent at the foot of the elevator shaft, 167 feet under the Southeastern Ohio hills, and waited their turns.

"There was no panic," said Higgins, "and the entire crew reached safety in a matter of minutes.

Even those first few minutes when the dread fire was discovered, the veterans of the mines showed little emotion. The night shift was one mile from the elevator shaft at the time.

"Smoke was being blown into the air tunnel," said a mine spokesman, "so we ordered the men out as a precautionary measure."

Tight-lipped for the most part, the miners moved to the shaft in orderly procession. Observers said only common-place conversation broke the silence among the men, with an occasional quip getting a quiet chuckle.

Schuman Claims Step Will Avert Disaster

LONDON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Britain announced today that she does not plan to cheapen her money as France has done in an effort to sell more goods abroad.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, promised vigorous action to protect the pound sterling from unsettling effects of the French devaluation of the franc. He did not disclose the specific steps to be taken.

On the whole world markets reacted calmly to the French action, which was taken despite objections from both the British government and the International Monetary Fund.

A high United States Treasury official said in Washington that France's move had created dangers for world trade, but expressed the belief that "the worst predictions won't work out."

British Securities Sell Lower

The State Department said the United States is "confident" that France will apply its new foreign exchange measures "in close collaboration" with other member nations of the International Monetary Fund. The State Department was silent as to the effect of the French action on the Marshall plan for European recovery.

British government securities sold sharply lower as nervous traders in London rushed to get into gold mining stocks. Market sources, however, attributed the break in government bond prices to a lack of demand rather than a general liquidation. London newspapers reported that millions of pounds were wiped off the market values of government bonds.

French government bonds also declined in Paris. In Switzerland, however, French money was strong —that is, it took more Swiss francs today to buy French francs than it did last week.

Many deputies in the French National Assembly expressed disapproval of the devaluation action. Premier Robert Schuman said the step was taken to avert economic ruin and widespread unemployment.

Self-Help Step

If the government had not devalued the franc and decided on creation of a free money market, France would have been thrown back on American aid alone as a source of foreign exchange, he declared. He added:

"Thus the exhaustion of our currency reserves and the halt of our exports would have led to a diminishing of our imports, our supply in certain raw materials would be lowered, French production would decrease, factories would close and workers would be thrown out of work."

Schuman's statement received a cool reception from many deputies.

In theory at least French exporters now can sell their goods abroad 50 per cent cheaper than they have been doing. The success of the French move from the French government's point of view apparently depends on whether prices will be maintained near their present levels.

Negro Law School Spurned By Girl

NORMAN, Okla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old negro, today spurned a new law school created especially for negroes and once again renewed her fight in the United States Supreme Court for admission to the University of Oklahoma Law School which rejected her because of her race.

The university, which has not accepted a negro student in its 56-year history, today told Mrs. Fisher her application was approved except for her race and pointed out a three-man faculty was ready to open law courses for negroes only in the state capitol building at Oklahoma City.

Dr. George L. Cross, president of the University of Oklahoma, announced Mrs. Fisher's application had been rejected because it conflicted with Oklahoma's constitution which provides separate schools for whites and negroes.

While Mrs. Fisher's application was being rejected, her attorneys in Washington filed a petition asking the high court to order the university to admit her.

Mrs. Fisher filed application for enrollment last Monday after the Supreme Court had ordered Oklahoma to grant her equal and immediate opportunities with those of whites.

Lane To Name All-Negro Board For Cheltenham

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 26—(AP)—Gov. Lane accepted tonight the resignations of the entire membership of the board of managers of Cheltenham School for Boys.

He announced at once that he would appoint "as reasonably soon as it can be done" an all-negro board of managers in keeping with the suggestion of the outgoing board.

The board resigned at a meeting today after it had approved unanimously a report of Wallace Reidt, assistant director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, a research group.

Former Air Force Officer Accused Of Broadcasting For Germans During War

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(INS)—Martin J. Monti, 27-year-old Air Force private from St. Louis, was arrested by FBI agents today on a charge of treason resulting from alleged German propaganda broadcasts beamed at United States troops during the invasion of the continent.

Monti was arrested a few minutes after his discharge at Mitchel Field, New York, and is being held without bail.

Monti, originally an Air Force officer stationed at Karachi, India, was accused by government agents of deserting the Army to join Hitler's Elite SS Corps.

FBI agents said he broadcast a series of radio programs which were beamed at United States troops in France, Italy and later in Germany.

Following his desertion at Karachi, the FBI said, Monti hitchhiked by plane to Northern Italy and stole an Army P-38 plane at Pomigliani, landing behind German lines.

After Germany fell on May 8, 1945, the FBI said Monti, still wearing an SS uniform, fled with German soldiers to Italy and was captured by United States troops at the border.

The FBI related that despite the story he was wearing the German uniform with approval of the Italian underground, and told tales about being engaged in espionage, Monti was court-martialed and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

FBI agents said the sentence was remanded on condition Monti rejoin United States troops.

Army intelligence and FBI meanwhile continued their investigation of German propaganda broadcasts, the federal agency said, and the probe led to one "Martin Weithaupt" who was identified by the FBI as Monti.

If Monti is convicted, he faces a possible death sentence and a minimum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Russia Seeks To Slash Lend-Lease Account

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — Russia has resumed talks for settling her $11,200,000,000 lend - lease account with a countre-proposal to scale down the bill submitted by the United States, diplomatic authorities said today.

They said this was the effect of a new Moscow note on the issue of how much Russia should pay toward the cost of the arms and supplies the United States turned over to its wartime ally.

As with the other Allies, this government has proposed that Russia settle only for supplies left over after the war's end which could be used for civilian purposes. Arms and equipment expended in the common effort to defeat the Axis have been marked off the books.

Palestine Police Force Under U.N. Urged By Stassen

Candidate Launches New England Tour

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 26 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen said tonight the United Nations should send a police force to Palestine to maintain order in that strife-torn land.

The United States, he said, should take the lead in calling upon other members of the United Nations to join with this country in setting up the constabulary.

Such a police force, Stassen continued, should be used to "disarm the warring factions," punish violence, "who ever commits it," and carry out all provisions of the United Nations partition plan.

Says U. S. Must Face Issue

Launching a week-long tour of Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, Stassen asserted in a prepared speech:

"The United States must not evade this issue. We must in a forthright manner call upon other members to join with us in establishing a truly United Nations police force in this critical area.

"We can no more ignore it than can a city police force ignore a riot in one section of a city."

Stassen told newsmen that obviously United States troops would be sent to Palestine under such a plan.

He said creation of a constabulary with a "police approach" could "become a springboard of mounting confidence in the United Nations."

It would, too, he said, "establish a growing recognition around the world that the settlement of problems by violence and aggression will no longer be tolerated."

Seeks "Ike's" Former Backers

In addition, he said it would show "we have reached the stage in the march of civilization where the world must live by laws and courts and peaceful decisions."

"This in turn," he continued, "could well be the foundation for a successful change in the Charter to eliminate the veto."

Stassen made clear to reporters that his visit to New Hampshire tomorrow would be concerned among other things with trying to line up Republicans there who originally

Minister Whose Wife Heckled Him Granted Divorce

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26 (AP) — A 46-year-old pastor today was ordered to pay his former wife, accused during divorce proceedings of heckling and nose-thumbing during her husband's sermons, the sum of $200 toward expenses incurred in her unsuccessful fight against the divorce.

Rev. Isaac J. Bobst, now superintendent of the Philadelphia Evangelical Home, was awarded a divorce from Mrs. Bobst, a Bangor, Pa., school teacher, on grounds of indignities.

During an appeal argument before State Superior Court, Mr. Bobst's attorney charged Mrs. Bobst thumbed her nose at her husband, talked and laughed while he led his Calvary Evangelical congregation in his prayer.

Freedom Comes High To Ty Power

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26 (AP) — Tyrone Power won his marital freedom today, but it will cost him a healthy portion of his $5,000-a-week income.

The petite French actress Annabella, his wife of seven years, obtained an interlocutory divorce decree in Superior Court, alleging cruelty and desertion.

Under terms of a property settlement, she will receive:

Fifty thousand dolars a year, plus 17 per cent of his income over $310,000 annually and less her own earnings but no payments to exceed $87,500 a year.

Their luxurious Brentwood home;

Support of $291 a month for her daughter by a previous marriage, Annie, who was adopted by Power;

The benefits from $67,000 in insurance which the actor must keep in force.

Annabella bulwarked her charges with allegations that Power often left guests in their home to go to his room and sulk; that he stayed away from home for long periods at a time without explanation; and that he finally deserted her in August, 1946, to take an aerial tour of South America.

Truman, Intervening In St. Lawrence Seaway Debate, Argues Project Is Vital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — President Truman nntervened in congressional debate on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway and power project today, arguing that the development is necessary to the nation's peacetime economy and its security in time of emergency.

His plea for approval of the gigantic undertaking came as Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) accused its opponents of seeking "to cut the economic throat of the Midwest."

The President wrote to Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich), presiding officer of the Senate, and Speaker Martin (R-Mass) that the development would "strengthen and expand our industry, our agriculture, our domestic commerce and our foreign trade." He said the plan is to give deep water shipping a route to the most highly industrialized area of the continent and to develop "the largest potential hydroelectric power site of the nation."

Wiley, leading off in Senate debate, shouted:

"The Midwest has given to the East billions of tons of ore and timber to build its cities and railroads and now, with the ore being depleted, all we ask is a chance to transport our grains cheaply so they will not rot on the ground."

"But you say 'no'," Wiley continued, "you want to refuse us this outlet because of the fear that the great port cities of New York, Baltimore, Boston and others, will be hurt."

Wiley's outburst was prompted by a question from Sen. Tydings (D-Md) who asked how much traffic would be diverted, and from where.

Vandenberg, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee which approved the pending measure, said the proposed seaway would "not take anything" from any port because the traffic would be "brand new."

Bridges' Bill Bans Exports For One Year

Reduced Highway Speed Limit Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26. (AP)—Embargoes on all oil exports, and restoration of wartime automobile speed limits were proposed today to fight the spreading fuel oil and gasoline shortage.

A bill to prohibit petroleum exports for one year, on penalty of a $10,000 fine or two years in prison, or both, was introduced by Sen. Bridges (R-NH) as the oil shortage—both present and prospective —zoomed into the congressional limelight.

Simultaneously, Secretary of the Interior Krug, in a formal report, asked Congress to start a $9,000,000,000 program to build an American Synthetic oil industry.

His plea was seconded by the House Interstate Commerce Committee. It recommended larger appropriations and new authority for the Interior Department to develop oil from coal and shale.

The committee's report to the House also urged a ban on gasoline and oil shipments. This is necessary, the group asserted, because of the rigorous winter, past over-optimism about oil reserves, and "the gravity of the outlook in oil supplies in the even of a national emergency."

Tobey Asks Speed Limits

Chairman Tobey (R-NH), of a Senate Oil Subcommittee, took independent action. He asked the Interior Department immediately to request the governors of all states to consider placing speed limits on highways to conserve gasoline. During the war the limit was 35 miles an hour.

Sen. Bridges accompanied his embargo bill with a denunciation of what he called the administration's failure to relieve the fuel oil shortage in New England.

He said:

"I am disgusted over the complete failure of the executive department to effect relief measures despite annual pleas of the New England congressional delegations that the habitual shortage situation be remedied."

If enacted into law, the embargo would include transportation of petroleum or its products into Canada, an aide to Sen. Bridges said, adding:

During the last few months, oil trucks have been going through New England, right through towns where people have been in dire need of fuel, for the sake of the differential of four or five cents a gallon in price."

Maritime Commission Criticized

Bridges criticized the Maritime Commission or selling tankers to foreign countries and declared it "extremely short-sighted" for the government to "spend so much time and money on the health and welfare of foreign people when there is suffering at home."

Secretary Krug's report to Congress declared "it is clear now" that the nation cannot meet its future liquid fuel needs from petroleum alone. He asked authorizations to start a construction program of five to 10-years' duration. The Interstate Commerce Committee set no time or dollar goals.

Committee Votes Today On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Income tax reduction made progress in both houses of Congress today with (1) a House committee decision to vote tomorrow on a $6,300,000,000 slash and (2) an agreement by Senate Republicans to back a cut of undetermined amount.

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee looked over the bill offered by its chairman, Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.), and set a vote for tomorrow.

On the Senate side, Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.), of the Republican conference, said the group decided "unanimously to go ahead with a tax-reduction bill, with the understanding that the amount cannot be determined until there is more information on the budget and how much surplus there will be."

That apparently put off Senate action until after Congress has decided how much it will spend this year on the Marshall plan and other world relief and recovery measures.

House OKs Bill Ordering Sale Of Alien Property

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—The House unanimously passed today a bill ordering the sale of some $250,000,000 worth of seized German and Japanese property in this country. It is planned to use part of the proceeds for emergency aid to United States civilians who suffered at enemy hands.

No compensation would go to the original owners of the property. The money would go into the United States Treasury and, it is contemplated, $50,000,000 of it would be given to some 6,000 persons who were victims of Japanese aggression and mistreatment on Midway, Guam, Wake and the Philippines.

OIL-CONSERVING STEPS PROPOSED

Truman's ERP Budget Figure Called 'Phoney'

Bridges Says Over 2 Billions Hidden

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — President Truman was accused by Chairman Bridges (R-NH), of the Senate Appropriations Committee, today of concealing $2,300,000,000 for foreign aid in what the Senator called the "phoney budget" for 1948-49.

And the Marshall program for European recovery was denounced as a "blueprint for atomic war" by Arthur Schutzer, of New York's American Labor Party, which Schutzer said endorses the foreign aid views of Henry A. Wallace.

These developments came as Senate opinion appeared swinging in line behind the proposals by Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.), of the Foreign Relations Committee, for operating the proposed four-year recovery program.

Taft, Connally Back Vandenberg

Sens. Taft (R-Ohio) and Connally (D-Texas) were among those commenting favorably on the Vandenberg plan, which would put the recovery program under an independent, Cabinet-rank administrator responsible only to the President.

President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall have asked Congress to give the State Department control of the program and to appropriate $6,800,000,000 for its operation during the first 15 months.

Bridges, whose committee must pass on any appropriation, told newsmen he called the attention of all Republican senators at a morning conference to "the phoney budget setup so far as foreign aid is concerned."

The New Englander said Mr. Truman's budget listed $4,000,000,000 in planned expenditures for foreign aid in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, and noted that the President asked another $500,000,000 before July 1.

"Phoney Setup" Charged

Subtract this $4,500,000,000 total from the administration's $6,800,000,000 request for foreign aid, Bridges said, and you get a "discrepancy" of $2,300,000,000.

"It's a phoney setup—that's a good word for it," Bridges declared. He said the Appropriations Committee would "look into it" and added that Vandenberg also had promised to "ask for an explanation."

One reporter suggested that the administration plans to spend the $2,300,000,000 of the total after the one-year period covered by the budget.

"If $6,800,000,000 is needed, the goods have got to be purchased and shipped quickly to be of any use," Bridges replied.

(Mr. Truman's budget message, sent to Congress last January 6, said it would be "reasonable" to appropriate $6,800,000,000 although only $4,500,000,000 might actually be spent up to July 1, 1949.)

Bridges said it was his "guess" that the President "doctored the budget up this way" in order to keep it under $40,000,000,000.

Four More Arabs Slain In Palestine

JERUSALEM, Jan. 26 (AP) —Bullets from a Jewish armored car killed three Arabs today near Beersheba in the Southern Palestine desert.

Police said the Arabs were driving a stolen army truck and exchanged shots with the Jews in the armored car. Another Arab was wounded.

A fourth Arab was killed while trying to penetrate an army camp barricade in the same area. A sentry shot him.

In the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv on the Coastal Plain a Jew was shot to death. The unofficial death toll since the United Nations decision of November 29 on partition of Palestine climbed to 986.

During the day Arab and Jewish reprisal squads struck blows at "enemy installations."

Hand grenades were hurled into an unoccupied house in the fashionable Katamon quarter of Jerusalem for the second time in a week. A Jewish-owned shop was blown up in a commercial center outside the walls of the "old city."

Three Jews were injured when two houses inside the old city were damaged by bombs.

An Arab bus was blasted by mines outside Bethlehem. Jewish sources said 12 Arabs were injured, one fatally. This was not confirmed elsewhere.

Rep. Thomas Transferred From Ship To Hospital

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 26 (INS)—Rep. J. Parnall Thomas, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, was taken from the S.S. Ancon and placed in a Cristobal hospital tonight in a weak condition from internal hemorrhages.

The 53-year-old New Jersey Republican was removed from the Ancon, aboard which he was stricken Saturday night, as soon as the ship reached Chistobal this evening.

Doctors said Thomas was weak from gastro-intestinal bleeding but appeared to be holding his own.

Aged Candidate For President Plans 4 Rallies

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 26 (AP) —C. C. Cunningham, 84-year-old retired Houston resident who has announced his independent candidacy for President, today said he will open a "vigorous" campaign in July. He said he plans to hold four large rallies, one each in California, Chicago, New York City and Houston.

The former Missouri physician, whose campaign platform calls for a 75 per cent reduction in the number of federal employes, legalized gambling and horse racing, and exemption of incomes of $5,000 or less from income taxes, also announced he will name four women to his cabinet if he is elected.

East Braces For New Cold Wave

[By The Associated Press]

The East and Central States, still benumbed from their second cold wave in a week, braced Monday night for a new onslaught of frigid air moving in from the Plains States.

The Southeast, meanwhile, prepared for a covering of rain and snow expected to reach that area by Tuesday night.

The leading edge of the new cold wave was expected to hit the Midwest Tuesday and the East Coast Wednesday, after dropping temperatures in Northern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin to 20 to 30 degrees below zero Monday night.

Central and Northern Illinois and Northern Indiana will experience five below readings Tuesday night, and Southern Wisconsin and Lower Michigan will have 10 below.

Severely cold weather was forecast for the East by Wednesday night.

A storm centering in New Mexico moved slowly eastward. Rain and snow were expected to cover the Southeast by Tuesday night.

Texas and Northwestern Louisiana were hit by a freezing drizzle, and Southwestern Illinois and Southern Missouri experienced snow. Southward from there, rain along the Gulf moved slowly Eastward.

Nine French Fliers Die

ROMAINVILLE, France, Jan. 26 —(AP)—The bodies of nine French airmen were removed tonight from the wreckage of a four-engined transport that crashed into a junk yard and caught fire. The crash and flames destroyed five houses and damaged a blacksmith shop in this Paris suburb.

New Earthquakes Rock Philippines; At Least 27 Dead

Iloilo Residents Flee Into Streets

MANILA, Tuesday, Jan. 27—(AP)—Hundreds more fled in panic from Iloilo City on Panay Island during the night as three new moderate to strong earthquakes—more than 40 hours after the first devastating shocks early Sunday—brought additional casualties and damage.

MANILA, Jan. 26 (AP)—Panicky residents of Iloilo were driven from their homes late tonight by a strong earthquake, latest of a series which began early Sunday and caused 27 known deaths and vast property damage on the Central Philippines island of Panay.

The new quake, rated at intensity 6 — strong — by the Philippines Weather Bureau, came at 10:12 p. m. (9:12 a. m., EST) and secondary tremors continued for four minutes.

It brought no further records of casualities, but weakened buildings damaged in the earlier series and caused thousands of persons to flee in night clothing into the streets and open plazas.

People Flee To Countryside

Many of the population of Iloilo, southern Panay port of 125,000, had fled to the countryside Sunday.

The Philippines Red Cross announced there were 47 distinct shocks beginning shortly before 2 a. m. Sunday, not counting the latest.

Of those who remained, most elected to spend the rest of the night in the open rather than return to their beds.

Most of the known deaths were caused by falling masonry Sunday morning. Latest additions were two fishermen whose bodies were recivered Monday on the south coast near Miagao, 25 miles west of Iloilo. They were apparently victims of a tidal wave which villagers said swept through the Iloilo Strait, between Panay and the small island of Guimaras.

Red Cross and other relief workers in the field reported meagre advices from Antique Province that two families of unknown numbers were buried by a landslide at Hanini on the southwest coast.

Communication Broken

Rail and road communications were broken by great fissures in the earth.

Arturo Alcarez, geophysicist of the Philippines Weather Bureau, estimated the epicenter of the disturbance was only three miles from the center of Iloilo, which is 295 air miles southeast of Manila.

The bureau reported the shock

Former Air Force Officer Accused Of Broadcasting For Germans During War

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(INS)—Martin J. Monti, 27-year-old Air Force private from St. Louis, was arrested by FBI agents today on a charge of treason resulting from alleged German propaganda broadcasts beamed at United States troops during the invasion of the continent.

Monti was arrested a few minutes after his discharge at Mitchel Field, New York, and is being held without bail.

Monti, originally an Air Force officer stationed at Karachi, India, was accused by government agents of deserting the Army to join Hitler's Elite SS Corps.

FBI agents said he broadcast a series of radio programs which were beamed at United States troops in France, Italy and later in Germany.

Following his desertion at Karachi, the FBI said, Monti hitchhiked by plane to Northern Italy and stole an Army P-38 plane at Pomigliani, landing behind German lines.

After Germany fell on May 8, 1945, the FBI said Monti, still wearing an SS uniform, fled with German soldiers to Italy and was captured by United States troops at the border.

The FBI related that despite the story he was wearing the German uniform with approval of the Italian underground, and told tales about being engaged in espionage, Monti was court-martialed and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

FBI agents said the sentence was remanded on condition Monti rejoin United States troops.

Army intelligence and FBI meanwhile continued their investigation of German propaganda broadcasts, the federal agency said, and the probe led to one "Martin Weithaupt" who was identified by the FBI as Monti.

If Monti is convicted, he faces a possible death sentence and a minimum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Britain Says It Won't Follow Suit Of France And Devalue Its Money

French Move Gets Official U. S. Blessing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—The U. S. government gave its official blessing — with reservations — to France's revaluation of her currency today.

And millions of Americans daydreamed of April in Paris . . . moonlight on the Riviera. . . Schiaparelli originals . . . vintage champagne—all at "half price" or less under the new exchange rate.

The State Department, speaking for the Treasury as well, said that "although we may not approve of all details" this government "heartily approves of an adjustment of the franc."

Trade War Called Unlikely

A high Treasury official said he thought "the worst predictions won't work out." These predictions included a trade war and the risk of financial chaos in Europe.

Americans planning—or just hoping—to visit France this year were jubilant at the prospect of getting at least twice as many francs for their dollars as they could have got legally last week.

But the cheaper francs won't swell the number of Europe-bound tourists in 1948, Department of Commerce officials said, because ship, plane and hotel accommodations are still limited.

As a result, only about 450,000 tourists will make it this year, officials said—with another 75,000 or more unable to get reservations.

France's devaluation may pay off, however, in that she will attract an unusually large share of those who do get to Europe.

Fares Won't Be Cheaper

Ship and plane fares won't be any cheaper because they are payable in dollars. Similarly, officials noted, the cost of the proposed Marshall plan won't be affected because that is figured in dollars, too.

The Treasury spokesman made it clear that this country's misgivings about France's move had the same basis as those of the International Monetary Fund, which objected to the currency change.

The fund's complaint was that the revaluation gives the United States dollar a better break than the British pound and most other foreign currencies, and hence might bring on a trade war if other countries compete in currency devaluation.

155 Escape Fire In Ohio Coal Mine

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Jan. 26—(AP)—One hundred fifty-five Ohio miners escaped tonight from a sudden fire in the giant Willow Grove coal mine where eight years ago 72 men died in a fire and explosion.

The grimy-faced workmen, quiet and grim, shot to the cold air of the mine near St. Clairsville in an express elevator which Mine Recovery Boss Lawrence Higgins described as "exactly like those extremely fast ones used in New York's Empire State Building."

The elevator held only 20 men at a time, but the miners showed no panic. They stood silent at the foot of the elevator shaft, 167 feet under the Southeastern Ohio hills, and waited their turns.

"There was no panic," said Higgins, "and the entire crew reached safety in a matter of minutes.

Even those first few minutes when the dread fire was discovered, the veterans of the mines showed little emotion. The night shift was one mile from the elevator shaft at the time.

"Smoke was being blown into the air tunnel," said a mine spokesman, "so we ordered the men out as a precautionary measure."

Tight-lipped for the most part, the miners moved to the shaft in orderly procession. Observers said only common-place conversation broke the silence among the men, with an occasional quip getting a quiet chuckle.

Russia Seeks To Slash Lend-Lease Account

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — Russia has resumed talks for settling her $11,200,000,000 lend-lease account with a countre-proposal to scale down the bill submitted by the United States, diplomatic authorities said today.

They said this was the effect of a new Moscow note on the issue of how much Russia should pay toward the cost of the arms and supplies the United States turned over to its wartime ally.

As with the other Allies, this government has proposed that Russia settle only for supplies left over after the war's end which could be used for civilian purposes. Arms and equipment expended in the common effort to defeat the Axis have been marked off the books.

Schuman Claims Step Will Avert Disaster

LONDON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Britain announced today that she does not plan to cheapen her money as France has done in an effort to sell more goods abroad.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, promised vigorous action to protect the pound sterling from unsettling effects of the French devaluation of the franc. He did not disclose the specific steps to be taken.

On the whole world markets reacted calmly to the French action, which was taken despite objections from both the British government and the International Monetary Fund.

A high United States Treasury official said in Washington that France's move had created dangers for world trade, but expressed the belief that "the worst predictions won't work out."

British Securities Sell Lower

The State Department said the United States is "confident" that France will apply its new foreign exchange measures "in close collaboration" with other member nations of the International Monetary Fund. The State Department was silent as to the effect of the French action on the Marshall plan for European recovery.

British government securities sold sharply lower as nervous traders in London rushed to get into gold mining stocks. Market sources, however, attributed the break in government bond prices to a lack of demand rather than a general liquidation. London newspapers reported that millions of pounds were wiped off the market values of government bonds.

French government bonds also declined in Paris. In Switzerland, however, French money was strong —that is, it took more Swiss francs today to buy French francs than it did last week.

Many deputies in the French National Assembly expressed disapproval of the devaluation action. Premier Robert Schuman said the step was taken to avert economic ruin and widespread unemployment.

Self-Help Step

If the government had not devalued the franc and decided on creation of a free money market, France would have been thrown back on American aid alone as a source of foreign exchange, he declared. He added:

"Thus the exhaustion of our currency reserves and the halt of our exports would have led to a diminishing of our imports, our supply in certain raw materials would be lowered, French production would decrease, factories would close and workers would be thrown out of work."

Schuman's statement received a cool reception from many deputies.

In theory at least French exporters now can sell their goods abroad 50 per cent cheaper than they have been doing. The success of the French move from the French government's point of view apparently depends on whether prices will be maintained near their present levels.

Negro Law School Spurned By Girl

NORMAN, Okla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, 23-year-old negro, today spurned a new law school created especially for negroes and once again renewed her fight in the United States Supreme Court for admission to the University of Oklahoma Law School which rejected her because of her race.

The university, which has not accepted a negro student in its 56-year history, today told Mrs. Fisher her application was approved except for her race and pointed out a three-man faculty was ready to open law courses for negroes only in the state capitol building at Oklahoma City.

Dr. George L. Cross, president of the University of Oklahoma, announced Mrs. Fisher's application had been rejected because it conflicted with Oklahoma's constitution which provides separate schools for whites and negroes.

While Mrs. Fisher's application was being rejected, her attorneys in Washington filed a petition asking the high court to order the university to admit her.

Mrs. Fisher filed application for enrollment last Monday after the Supreme Court had ordered Oklahoma to grant her equal and immediate opportunities with those of whites.

Lane To Name All-Negro Board For Cheltenham

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 26—(AP)—Gov. Lane accepted tonight the resignations of the entire membership of the board of managers of Cheltenham School for Boys.

He announced at once that he would appoint "as reasonably soon as it can be done" an all-negro board of managers in keeping with the suggestion of the outgoing board.

The board resigned at a meeting today after it had approved unanimously a report of Wallace Reidt, assistant director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, a research group.

SEEKS FORTUNE—Ursula Bauer, 23-year-old German secretary, sits at her desk in a Berlin factory still in hopes of obtaining a visa to enter the United States and stake her claim to the fortune of the late Henrietta E. Garrett, which is in litigation in Philadelphia. The fortune now is estimated at more than $20,000,000 and grows at the rate of about $500,000 annually.

Palestine Police Force Under U.N. Urged By Stassen

Candidate Launches New England Tour

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 26 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen said tonight the United Nations should send a police force to Palestine to maintain order in that strife-torn land.

The United States, he said, should take the lead in calling upon other members of the United Nations to join with this country in setting up the constabulary.

Such a police force, Stassen continued, should be used to "disarm the warring factions," punish violence, "who ever commits it," and carry out all provisions of the United Nations partition plan.

Says U. S. Must Face Issue

Launching a week-long tour of Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, Stassen asserted in a prepared speech:

"The United States must not evade this issue. We must in a forthright manner call upon other members to join with us in establishing a truly United Nations police force in this critical area.

"We can no more ignore it than can a city police force ignore a riot in one section of a city."

Stassen told newsmen that obviously United States troops would be sent to Palestine under such a plan.

He said creation of a constabulary with a "police approach" could "become a springboard of mounting confidence in the United Nations."

It would, too, he said, "establish a growing recognition around the world that the settlement of problems by violence and aggression will no longer be tolerated."

Seeks "Ike's" Former Backers

In addition, he said it would show "we have reached the stage in the march of civilization where the world must live by laws and courts and peaceful decisions."

"This in turn," he continued, "could well be the foundation for a successful change in the Charter to eliminate the veto."

Stassen made clear to reporters that his visit to New Hampshire tomorrow would be concerned among other things with trying to line up Republicans there who originally

Minister Whose Wife Heckled Him Granted Divorce

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26 (AP) — A 46-year-old pastor today was ordered to pay his former wife, accused during divorce proceedings of heckling and nose-thumbing during her husband's sermons, the sum of $200 toward expenses incurred in her unsuccessful fight against the divorce.

Rev. Isaac J. Bobst, now superintendent of the Philadelphia Evangelical Home, was awarded a divorce from Mrs. Bobst, a Bangor, Pa., school teacher, on grounds of indignities.

During an appeal argument before State Superior Court, Mr. Bobst's attorney charged Mrs. Bobst thumbed her nose at her husband, talked and laughed while he led his Calvary Evangelical congregation in his prayer.

Freedom Comes High To Ty Power

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26 (AP) — Tyrone Power won his marital freedom today, but it will cost him a healthy portion of his $5,000-a-week income.

The petite French actress Annabella, his wife of seven years, obtained an interlocutory divorce decree in Superior Court, alleging cruelty and desertion.

Under terms of a property settlement, she will receive:

Fifty thousand dolars a year, plus 17 per cent of his income over $310,000 annually and less her own earnings but no payments to exceed $87,500 a year.

Their luxurious Brentwood home;

Support of $291 a month for her daughter by a previous marriage, Annie, who was adopted by Power;

The benefits from $67,000 in insurance which the actor must keep in force.

Annabella bulwarked her charges with allegations that Power often left guests in their home to go to his room and sulk; that he stayed away from home for long periods at a time without explanation; and that he finally deserted her in August, 1946, to take an aerial tour of South America.

Truman, Intervening In St. Lawrence Seaway Debate, Argues Project Is Vital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP) — President Truman nntervened in congressional debate on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway and power project today, arguing that the development is necessary to the nation's peacetime economy and its security in time of emergency.

His plea for approval of the gigantic undertaking came as Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) accused its opponents of seeking "to cut the economic throat of the Midwest."

The President wrote to Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich), presiding officer of the Senate, and Speaker Martin (R-Mass) that the development would "strengthen and expand our industry, our agriculture, our domestic commerce and our foreign trade." He said the plan is to give deep water shipping a route to the most highly industrialized area of the continent and to develop "the largest potential hydroelectric power site of the nation."

Wiley, leading off in Senate debate, shouted:

"The Midwest has given to the East billions of tons of ore and timber to build its cities and railroads and now, with the ore being depleted, all we ask is a chance to transport our grains cheaply so they will not rot on the ground."

"But you say 'no'," Wiley continued, "you want to refuse us this outlet because of the fear that the great port cities of New York, Baltimore, Boston and others, will be hurt."

Wiley's outburst was prompted by a question from Sen. Tydings (D-Md) who asked how much traffic would be diverted, and from where.

Vandenberg, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee which approved the pending measure, said the proposed seaway would "not take anything" from any port because the traffic would be "brand new."

Bridges' Bill Bans Exports For One Year

Reduced Highway Speed Limit Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26. (AP)—Embargoes on all oil exports, and restoration of wartime automobile speed limits were proposed today to fight the spreading fuel oil and gasoline shortage.

A bill to prohibit petroleum exports for one year, on penalty of a $10,000 fine or two years in prison, or both, was introduced by Sen. Bridges (R-NH) as the oil shortage—both present and prospective—zoomed into the congressional limelight.

Simultaneously, Secretary of the Interior Krug, in a formal report, asked Congress to start a $9,000,000,000 program to build an American Synthetic oil industry.

His plea was seconded by the House Interstate Commerce Committee. It recommended larger appropriations and new authority for the Interior Department to develop oil from coal and shale.

The committee's report to the House also urged a ban on gasoline and oil shipments. This is necessary, the group asserted, because of the rigorous winter, past over-optimism about oil reserves, and "the gravity of the outlook in oil supplies in the even of a national emergency."

Tobey Asks Speed Limits

Chairman Tobey (R-NH), of a Senate Oil Subcommittee, took independent action. He asked the Interior Department immediately to request the governors of all states to consider placing speed limits on highways to conserve gasoline. During the war the limit was 35 miles an hour.

Sen. Bridges accompanied his embargo bill with a denunciation of what he called the administration's failure to relieve the fuel oil shortage in New England.

He said:

"I am disgusted over the complete failure of the executive department to effect relief measures despite annual pleas of the New England congressional delegations that the habitual shortage situation be remedied."

If enacted into law, the embargo would include transportation of petroleum or its products into Canada, an aide to Sen. Bridges said, adding:

During the last few months, oil trucks have been going through New England, right through towns where people have been in dire need of fuel, for the sake of the differential of four or five cents a gallon in price."

Maritime Commission Criticized

Bridges criticized the Maritime Commission or selling tankers to foreign countries and declared it "extremely short-sighted" for the government to "spend so much time and money on the health and welfare of foreign people when there is suffering at home."

Secretary Krug's report to Congress declared "it is clear now" that the nation cannot meet its future liquid fuel needs from petroleum alone. He asked authorizations to start a construction program of five to 10-years' duration. The Interstate Commerce Committee set no time or dollar goals.

Committee Votes Today On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—Income tax reduction made progress in both houses of Congress today with (1) a House committee decision to vote tomorrow on a $6,300,000,000 slash and (2) an agreement by Senate Republicans to back a cut of undetermined amount.

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee looked over the bill offered by its chairman, Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.), and set a vote for tomorrow.

On the Senate side, Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.), of the Republican conference, said the group decided "unanimously to go ahead with a tax-reduction bill, with the understanding that the amount cannot be determined until there is more information on the budget and how much surplus there will be."

That apparently put off Senate action until after Congress has decided how much it will spend this year on the Marshall plan and other world relief and recovery measures.

House OKs Bill Ordering Sale Of Alien Property

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—The House unanimously passed today a bill ordering the sale of some $250,000,000 worth of seized German and Japanese property in this country. It is planned to use part of the proceeds for emergency aid to United States civilians who suffered at enemy hands.

No compensation would go to the original owners of the property. The money would go into the United States Treasury and, it is contemplated, $50,000,000 of it would be given to some 6,000 persons who were victims of Japanese aggression and mistreatment on Midway, Guam, Wake and the Philippines.

Barnard Urges "Big Executives" For Atom Board

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 26 (AP) — Chester I. Barnard, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company president, urged the United Nations today to set up a board of 11 "cosmopolitan" leaders to direct world-wide atomic control.

He said also an executive who could "manage things as well as people" should be general manager under the board.

He specifically ruled out an atomic scientist for this post, saying that "I doubt that you would find anyone of scientific equipment who would be capable for that place."

Several atomic delegates agreed that Barnard expressed their own feelings that "big executives" should operate the atomic control.

Barnard appeared for 38 minutes before the control committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. He was the first of several business executives expected to give the committee their views on how an atomic control system should be set up.

Prof. Dmitri V. Skobeltsyn, Russian deputy delegate, listened closely to Barnard's proposal but did not join in questioning him.

Barnard said the board members should come from leading countries of the world but, he added, they should be employes of the United Nations and not representatives of their governments.

Barnard said the board members should serve at least seven years. He advocated their nomination by the Security Council and their election by vote of the full United Nations membership.

Barnard said the United Nations should give the directors general orders and let them work out details in the months and years ahead.

The telephone executive said he has been studying the problem of atomic control for two years and was consulted on the organization of the United States Atomic Energy Commission. He also assisted in drawing up the Baruch plan for international control which was approved in 1946 by the United Nations Atomic Commission majority over stubborn Russian opposition.

BLFE Calls On Railroads To Treat Negroes Equally

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Cleveland Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (Ind) today filed a demand with operators of southeastern railroads for "complete equality of treatment of firemen employed by those roads "regardless of race of previous status."

The BLFE, which has about 238,000 members and acts as bargaining repjresentative for the firemen's craft on railroads throughout the country, also demanded equality in "the opportunity of promotion to engineer" for all southeastern railroad firemen.

The brotherhood said in a statement the action was taken "as the consequence of recent court decisions supporting non-promotable negro firemen employed on southeastern railroads in their claim that present rules and practices unfairly discriminate against them."

Chain Gang Escapee Heads Back To Florida

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 26 (AP)—After 23 years of freedom, Brent L. Merrick, 53, of Talbot County, was going back to Florida tonight, where he says he escaped a chain gang.

Judge William J. McWilliams told Merrick he signed the order for turning him over to Florida authorities "with considerable regret."

Merrick, who had sought a writ of habeas corpus to prevent his extradition to Florida, blamed his predicament on romance.

He had been convicted of carnal knowledge with a Florida girl and sentenced to five years in the Florida Penitentiary at Raiford. From there he escaped in 1925 and remained at large until last year when he was convicted of an assault charge and sentenced to the Maryland House of Correction.

Albania Accuses Greece

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Albania has filed a series of protests against alleged Greek violations of its border.

The United Nations disclosed today that four protests were filed in the past 10 days. They were signed by Albanian Deputy Foreign Minister Hysni Kapo and dated January 15, 21, 23 and 24.

Teacher Strike Averted

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—(AP)—The Chicago City Council today averted a threatened strike by 9,000 of the city's 14,000 public school teachers by approving unanimously a record $96,972,000 school board tax levy and releasing the teachers' delayed pay checks.

List Of Protective Counter Numbers On Baltimore Vote Machines Missing

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26 (AP) — A list of "protective counter numbers" on all Baltimore voting machines used in the 1946 general elections has disappeared, a hearing before the Board of Election Supervisors revealed today.

The disclosure came in connection with a United States Senate committee's investigation into the contested election race between Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor and D. John Markey, Walkersville Republican who was 2,232 votes behind on the basis of the official canvass.

The list of protective counter numbers is used to double-check against errors in tabulating the votes.

Each voting machine has a permanent counter which registers every time the handle is thrown by a voter and another counter which is set back to zero for each election and registers the number of votes cast that day.

The number shown by the permanent counter is listed when the machine is sent out to a polling place and the new number is recorded when the machine is returned. The difference in these numbers must match the other counter showing the vote cast that day.

Missing is the list of numbers from the permanent recorder.

Mrs. Margaret Gutridge, former custodian of the warehouse in which the machines are kept, was called before the Board of Election Supervisors.

She said she distinctly remembers seeing the list of numbers among papers which were made available to the Senate committee last May.

Walter Locke, who succeeded Mrs. Gutridge, said he doesn't know where the missing list is.

John Doyle, assistant custodian under both Mrs. Gutridge and Locke, confirmed both their statements.

of gasoline and fuel oil, the committee said its inquiries have led to this conclusion:

"The situation is now so grave that exports should be stopped completely until it can be determined whether further exports are damaging to the economy of this country."

It recommended in addition that: 1. Further cuts be made in use of oil by government building; 2. No further foreign commitments—such as those under the Marshall plan—be made pending a study of potential imports and foreign reserves; and 3. Congress create a joint committee to write a national fuel policy.

Meanwhile the Senate Investigating Committee invited Secretary of Defense Forrestal to testify on Thursday why Arabian oil used by the Navy has cost the government what Chairman Brewster (R-Me) called an "excessive" price—$1.05 a barrel.

Man Sentenced To Life In Death Of Infants

HOUSTON, Mo., Jan. 26 (AP) — John Monroe Garrett, 45, was sentenced to life imprisonment on his plea of guilty today to a charge of first degree murder in the deaths of two infants soon after they were born to an unwed mother.

"I can't imagine a man so depraved as to commit a crime like this," Circuit Judge Claude E. Curtis said in rejecting a plea for clemency by Garrett's attorney.

"I doubt that a man like this would know the meaning of the word 'mercy'."

The mother, 26-year-old Anna Ruth Robertson, who implicated Garrett in a statement to state police, also has been charged with murder and is scheduled for arraignment tomorrow.

State Benefit Payments Exceed Million Dollars

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26 — (AP) — For the first time in a decade, Maryland's benefit payments to the aged, dependent children, and others on relief topped the million dollar mark in December, the State Department of Public Welfare reported today.

The figure for the month was $1,029,717. This was an increase of about $34,000 above the $995,836 paid out in November and about seven per cent more than disbursed in December of 1946.

Oleo Tax Repeal Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Repeal of all special federal taxes on oleomargarine was demanded today by Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.) "to disarm the dairy trust." These taxes, he said, have been used by dairy producers to 'bar competition and thus to charge excessive prices for butter."

Is Prohibition Coming Back?

AFTER the first World War, Prohibition was slipped over on the people of the United States by propaganda, started during the war, that it was necessary as a war emergency.

The fighting in World War II has been over for more than two years. Now many thoughtful people are wondering if we are threatened with Prohibition again. Certainly the dry propaganda mill is working overtime again, but it isn't quite clear whether the 1948 "party line" is that Prohibition is necessary because the last war is not over, or because there is a third World War just around the corner.

In any event, the Congress is being asked to extend legislation to restrict distillers to a few days' grain supply each month.

This would be a long step toward bringing back Prohibition.

It cannot be for any other purpose.

It cannot be to save grain.

The use of corn for distilling does not deprive America or the world of a single slice of bread.

As for wheat, the distilling industry uses less than one thousandth of one per cent of the total supply.

So the purpose must be Prohibition.

Even a school boy economist knows you do not save any grain when you restrict only one industry that uses about 1% of the total.

This is true because restricting one industry's 1 per cent sounds a warning to the users of the other 99 per cent of the possibility of allocation in their industries and actually encourages them—in the absence of any restriction—to process or pile up as much grain as they can. Just tell anybody that something is going to be scarce, and he will buy more than he normally uses.

The fact that grain could be distilled anywhere in the whole wide world including countries which import our American grain—while American distilleries were shut down—proves that ours was the only country that fell for such economic nonsense.

No other country is destroying a source of governmental revenue big enough to pay half the cost of the Marshall plan.

No other country is destroying an industry employing, directly and indirectly, more than two million of its citizens.

The claim that the restriction of American distillers has any humanitarian or economic basis is dry propaganda—and nothing else!

It might be hard to persuade the American workers who are out of work in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, to agree that the shipment of our grain for distilling in Canada or any other country by foreign workmen could serve any humanitarian, economic or social purpose.

America has sixty Lawrenceburgs!

American Distilleries were shut down in 25 states.

Canadian distillers ran at capacity.

Distilleries behind the Iron Curtain were reported running with American grain.

The very countries that are asking America for food are asking for more American grain for distilling and brewing than the whole American distilling industry has ever used in any year.

When the American distillers were shut down in November and December, Canada doubled its imports of American corn. Canada is not a starving country.

In the last four months of 1947, which included the American shutdown period, Canada imported almost one and a half million bushels of American rye. In the same period the year before they imported none.

If the American distilling industry were unrestricted it would use at the most as we have said, less than 1 per cent of the grain. The Secretary of Agriculture has issued an order, now in effect, cutting this down to ½ of 1 per cent. This ½ of 1 per cent is supposed to save the world, yet the Secretary of Agriculture tells a committee of the Senate that we will have plenty of grain.

But our processing of even this small amount of grain would not remove it from the food economy. Only the foreign governments seem to appreciate the fact that distilling not only keeps men and women employed, and adds to government revenue, but also results in by-product feed supplements which are returned to the food economy in the form of more meat, milk, butter, eggs, poultry and pork.

Some say that at least 45 per cent of the grain we use is thus returned to the food economy in the form of animal feeds. And some say more than 100 per cent is returned in the feeding value of the vitamin-rich high-protein residue.

As we said in the beginning—the restriction of American distillers can have no other purpose than prohibition! The dry propagandist will try to tell you that there is an enormous gallonage of whiskey in this country. Actually, all during the war, this industry converted all its facilities to making alcohol for ammunition and synthetic rubber. After the war it was closed down month after month on account of European needs for grain.

The truth is that there is today in the United States just about one year's supply of whiskey four years old, or older. The rest is green whiskey, not yet matured and ready for market.

The distilling business needs no defense by us. The people and the Congress of the United States decided through the Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution that it is a legal business and a recognized part of our economy. More than a hundred thousand American citizens invested their savings in this industry on this assurance.

Don't let anyone tell you that the distillers are against aid to Europe.

Last year, this was the only industry that made a separate and voluntary contribution for the feeding of hungry people in other lands. The Distillers bought and paid for 20 million pounds of grain for Europe.

From October 25th to December 25th, we shut down voluntarily in answer to the plea that it would encourage others to make sacrifices. Schenley paid full wages—over a million dollars—to its employees who were thrown out of work.

We believe that hungry people everywhere should be fed. It is the American tradition to give of our resources to succor the needy and the unfortunate wherever they may be.

We are ready and willing to contribute on the same basis as every other American industry to the cost of providing relief to the people of Europe. But we do not agree that this can best be done by a partial or complete return to Prohibition. We do not believe it can be done by destroying or restricting an industry which the American people expressly voted into existence.

We do not believe it can be done by weakening our home economy through the loss of billions of dollars of revenue for National, State, and Local governments; or by throwing hundreds of thousands of American workers out of their jobs.

Barnard Urges "Big Executives" For Atom Board

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 26 (AP) — Chester I. Barnard, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company president, urged the United Nations today to set up a board of 11 "cosmopolitan" leaders to direct world-wide atomic control.

He said also an executive who could "manage things as well as people" should be general manager under the board.

He specifically ruled out an atomic scientist for this post, saying that "I doubt that you would find anyone of scientific equipment who would be capable for that place."

Several atomic delegates agreed that Barnard expressed their own feelings that "big executives" should operate the atomic control.

Barnard appeared for 38 minutes before the control committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. He was the first of several business executives expected to give the committee their views on how an atomic control system should be set up.

Prof. Dmitri V. Skobeltsyn, Russian deputy delegate, listened closely to Barnard's proposal but did not join in questioning him.

Barnard said the board members should come from leading countries of the world but, he added, they should be employes of the United Nations and not representatives of their governments.

Barnard said the board members should serve at least seven years. He advocated their nomination by the Security Council and their election by vote of the full United Nations membership.

Barnard said the United Nations should give the directors general orders and let them work out details in the months and years ahead.

The telephone executive said he has been studying the problem of atomic control for two years and was consulted on the organization of the United States Atomic Energy Commission. He also assisted in drawing up the Baruch plan for international control which was approved in 1946 by the United Nations Atomic Commission majority over stubborn Russian opposition.

BLFE Calls On Railroads To Treat Negroes Equally

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Cleveland Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (Ind) today filed a demand with operators of southeastern railroads for "complete equality of treatment of firemen employed by those roads "regardless of race of previous status."

The BLFE, which has about 238,000 members and acts as bargaining representative for the firemen's craft on railroads throughout the country, also demanded equality in "the opportunity of promotion to engineer" for all southeastern railroad firemen.

The brotherhood said in a statement the action was taken "as the consequence of recent court decisions supporting non-promotable negro firemen employed on southeastern railroads in their claim that present rules and practices unfairly discriminate against them."

Chain Gang Escapee Heads Back To Florida

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 26 (AP)—After 23 years of freedom, Brent L. Merrick, 53, of Talbot County, was going back to Florida tonight, where he says he escaped a chain gang.

Judge William J. McWilliams told Merrick he signed the order for turning him over to Florida authorities "with considerable regret."

Merrick, who had sought a writ of habeas corpus to prevent his extradition to Florida, blamed his predicament on romance.

He had been convicted of carnal knowledge with a Florida girl and sentenced to five years in the Florida Penitentiary at Raiford. From there he escaped in 1925 and remained at large until last year when he was convicted of an assault charge and sentenced to the Maryland House of Correction.

Albania Accuses Greece

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Albania has filed a series of protests against alleged Greek violations of its border.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—(AP)—The Chicago City Council today averted a threatened strike by 9,000 of the city's 14,000 public school teachers by approving unanimously a record $96,972,000 school board tax levy and releasing the teachers' delayed pay checks.

List Of Protective Counter Numbers On Baltimore Vote Machines Missing

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26 (AP) — A list of "protective counter numbers" on all Baltimore voting machines used in the 1946 general elections has disappeared, a hearing before the Board of Election Supervisors revealed today.

The disclosure came in connection with a United States Senate committee's investigation into the contested election race between Sen. Herbert R. O'Conor and D. John Markey, Walkersville Republican who was 2,232 votes behind on the basis of the official canvass.

The list of protective counter numbers is used to double-check against errors in tabulating the votes.

Each voting machine has a permanent counter which registers every time the handle is thrown by a voter and another counter which is set back to zero for each election and registers the number of votes cast that day.

The number shown by the permanent counter is listed when the machine is sent out to a polling place and the new number is recorded when the machine is returned. The difference in these numbers must match the other counter showing the vote cast that day.

Missing is the list of numbers from the permanent recorder.

Mrs. Margaret Gutridge, former custodian of the warehouse in which the machines are kept, was called before the Board of Election Supervisors.

She said she distinctly remembers seeing the list of numbers among papers which were made available to the Senate committee last May.

Walter Locke, who succeeded Mrs. Gutridge, said he doesn't know where the missing list is.

John Doyle, assistant custodian under both Mrs. Gutridge and Locke, confirmed both their statements.

Today's hearing was occasioned by a letter demanding the list. It came from Francis T. Kelly, chief investigator of the Senate committee.

It recommended in addition that: 1. Further cuts be made in use of oil by government building; 2. No further foreign commitments—such as those under the Marshall plan—be made pending a study of potential imports and foreign reserves; and 3. Congress create a joint committee to write a national fuel policy.

Man Sentenced To Life In Death Of Infants

HOUSTON, Mo., Jan. 26 (AP) — John Monroe Garrett, 45, was sentenced to life imprisonment on his plea of guilty today to a charge of first degree murder in the deaths of two infants soon after they were born to an unwed mother.

"I can't imagine a man so depraved as to commit a crime like this," Circuit Judge Claude E. Curtis said in rejecting a plea for clemency by Garrett's attorney.

"I doubt that a man like this would know the meaning of the word 'mercy'."

The mother, 26-year-old Anna Ruth Robertson, who implicated Garrett in a statement to state police, also has been charged with murder and is scheduled for arraignment tomorrow.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 26 — (AP) — For the first time in a decade, Maryland's benefit payments to the aged, dependent children, and others on relief topped the million dollar mark in December, the State Department of Public Welfare reported today.

The figure for the month was $1,029,717. This was an increase of about $34,000 above the $995,836 paid out in November and about seven per cent more than disbursed in December of 1946.

Oleo Tax Repeal Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Repeal of all special federal taxes on oleomargarine was demanded today by Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.) "to disarm the dairy trust." These taxes, he said, have been used by dairy producers to 'bar competition and thus to charge excessive prices for butter."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

John Garfield

I saw John Garfield of the movies pick up a broom and sweep a stage a couple of weeks ago.

It was at the benefit performance given by ANTA at the Ziegfeld Theatre. Bert Lahr had just finished his classic burlesque of a baritone chopping down a tree. The stage was littered with bits of wood which had to be cleared away before the next turn. Mr. Garfield came out and did the clearing away. It was a cute touch, and the wise show crowd out front applauded.

The next turn consisted of Katharine Cornell, Maurice Evans, and other theatrical greats. While they were mumming through Mr. Shaw's elegant prologue to "Saint Joan," I kept thinking of the movie actor with the broom.

According to Hollywood trade papers, John Garfield will earn the best part of a million dollars this year. He's as hot as a string of Chinese firecrackers, and can darn near write his own ticket at any studio. Nevertheless, he is currently appearing on Broadway in an experimental play called "Skipper Next to God." His take-home money is $10 per performance.

• — • — •

I think I know why he is working for that kind of money.

For years I've been listening to actors cuss out the flicker factories which kept them in cookies and convertibles. For years I've watched $2,000-a-week script writers pant for a chance to get back to 45th Street with that play they've been writing on M-G-M's time.

I knew what was biting them. And being stage-struck was only half of it. The other half had to do with everybody's natural yen to be involved in classy goings-on. And for reasons that are 3,000 years old, the theatre has what the movies have never been able to buy—manners and tradition.

Just as the society gal wants to wear the three feathers and be presented at court, the real actor will always want to be presented on a stage. No matter what you pay him, you can't get it out of his head that the theatre is the Buckingham Palace of the entertainment business. And I think it will ever be thus.

The theatre came into being because people wanted to express themselves. And from Euripides to Eugene O'Neill, some of the best minds in the world have been mixed up with it. The gold-plated popcorn machine on the West Coast was fathered by some runaway tailors who wanted to parlay a grand into a million. And in thirty years of throwing their weight around, their popcorn machine hasn't produced a writer fit to shine the shoes of Sean O'Casey of the little Abbey Theatre in Dublin.

The boys in Beverly Hills bungalows may not like this, but Hollywood is still the awkward newcomer to the show business banquet—red-faced, bumbling, and waving its moneybags to hide its embarrassment.

Let me use two current attractions to prove my point. There's a one-set success on Broadway called "A Streetcar Named Desire." There's a slick and shiny whodunit at Radio City entitled "The Paradine Case." "The Paradine Case" cost millions to produce. I saw it the other night and it has as much guts as a papier mache Santa Claus. "Streetcar" cost one-fortieth as much to put on. Its writing, acting and direction darn near took the top of my head off.

In a year or so, a print of the "Paradine" picture will be filed in a vault and the rest of its celluloid chopped up for mandolin picks. "Streetcar" has already been published in book form; it will be studied in colleges, and twenty years from now is a cinch to be revived. When "The Paradine Case" has even been forgotten by its producer the Tennessee Williams play will still be on library shelves.

You say the movie will make more money? Well, I'm not so sure. On one-fortieth the investment, "Streetcar" figures to make a million or better. But profits are only part of the payoff in show business. There's a thing called "esteem." And it's my hunch any producer who bathes regularly would rather have his name on one "Streetcar" than on a dozen "Paradine Cases."

That Fabulous Invalid called the Theatre will never die as long as the John Garfields hunger for its stages. Station wagons and chinchilla-lined swimming pools will never appease that hunger. The stuff of an actor's dreams has nothing to do with Technicolor or Louis B. Mayer's sweet words. It's made up of footlights, a fat part, and a good set of notices from the nine critics the actor is always panning.

Whether he knew it or not, when John Garfield swept the stage the other night, he wasn't kidding.

I think I know why he is working for that kind of money.

For years I've been listening to actors cuss out the flicker factories which kept them in cookies and convertibles. For years I've watched $2,000-a-week script writers pant for a chance to get back to 45th Street with that play they've been writing on M-G-M's time.

I knew what was biting them. And being stage-struck was only half of it. The other half had to do with everybody's natural yen to be involved in classy goings-on. And for reasons that are 3,000 years old, the theatre has what the movies have never been able to buy—manners and tradition.

Just as the society gal wants to wear the three feathers and be presented at court, the real actor will always want to be presented on a stage. No matter what you pay him, you can't get it out of his head that the theatre is the Buckingham Palace of the entertainment business. And I think it will ever be thus.

The theatre came into being because people wanted to express themselves. And from Euripides to Eugene O'Neill, some of the best minds in the world have been mixed up with it. The gold-plated popcorn machine on the West Coast was fathered by some runaway tailors who wanted to parlay a grand into a million. And in thirty years of throwing their weight around, their popcorn machine hasn't produced a writer fit to shine the shoes of Sean O'Casey of the little Abbey Theatre in Dublin.

The boys in Beverly Hills bungalows may not like this, but Hollywood is still the awkward newcomer to the show business banquet—red-faced, bumbling, and waving its moneybags to hide its embarrassment.

Let me use two current attractions to prove my point. There's a one-set success on Broadway called "A Streetcar Named Desire." There's a slick and shiny whodunit at Radio City entitled "The Paradine Case." "The Paradine Case" cost millions to produce. I saw it the other night and it has as much guts as a papier mache Santa Claus. "Streetcar" cost one-fortieth as much to put on. Its writing, acting and direction darn near took the top of my head off.

In a year or so, a print of the "Paradine" picture will be filed in a vault and the rest of its celluloid chopped up for mandolin picks. "Streetcar" has already been published in book form; it will be studied in colleges, and twenty years from now is a cinch to be revived. When "The Paradine Case" has even been forgotten by its producer the Tennessee Williams play will still be on library shelves.

You say the movie will make more money? Well, I'm not so sure. On one-fortieth the investment, "Streetcar" figures to make a million or better. But profits are only part of the payoff in show business. There's a thing called "esteem." And it's my hunch any producer who bathes regularly would rather have his name on one "Streetcar" than on a dozen "Paradine Cases."

That Fabulous Invalid called the Theatre will never die as long as the John Garfields hunger for its stages. Station wagons and chinchilla-lined swimming pools will never appease that hunger. The stuff of an actor's dreams has nothing to do with Technicolor or Louis B. Mayer's sweet words. It's made up of footlights, a fat part, and a good set of notices from the nine critics the actor is always panning.

Whether he knew it or not, when John Garfield swept the stage the other night, he wasn't kidding.

General Eisenhower Declines To Make Race

By announcing flatly: "I am not available for, and could not accept, nomination to high political office," General Dwight W. Eisenhower has cleared the political air and preserved his reputation for candor and integrity.

This statement, which definitely takes the general out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination, was prompted by the entry of his name in the New Hampshire primary, without his consent. It is also directed to a number of friends and political amateurs who have been organizing an "Eisenhower boom," again without his consent.

"Ike" is entirely frank in stating the reasons for his silence up to now. He felt that a refusal to run before a considerable movement had been started in his behalf might "smack of effrontery." He was also unable to phrase a flat refusal "without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity." His decision was forced by the New Hampshire move and is phrased in such a way that none can question his sense of duty to the country in the field for which his talents and experience have so greatly qualified him.

Now that the general has removed himself from the Republican contest, it is possible to say certain things which might have been misunderstood before. Dwight Eisenhower is a military genius, as well as a man of high character. But he has had absolutely no training for political life and no personal interest in it. The so-called "Eisenhower boom" was evidence of his immense popularity. But it would probably have dwindled as Eisenhower the candidate was forced to state his views on all controversial matters. He would also have encountered the deep-lying popular reluctance to have a career military man in the White House—a feeling which "Ike" fully shares.

To say this in no way reflects upon the general. His position in the national hall of fame and in the hearts of the American people is secure. It is simply to say, what should be obvious, that the Republican candidate in 1948 should be a man who has proved by his political ability and experience his fitness for the highest office in the land.

There is an oil shortage, it seems, because Americans are using too much. Score another defeat for those who attempted to repeal the law of supply and demand.

Reinstituting Program Of The "Voice Of America"

By the phenomenon of a unanimous vote in both Houses, Congress has approved the bill to set up a permanent State Department foreign information program to rebut the sleepless propaganda of the Soviet Union. The best-known facility in this program is the radio "Voice of America," but there will be other features, such as exchange of students and teachers, and schools, libraries and community centers abroad.

The action of Congress voices the public reaction to the Soviet propaganda against the United States. A prominent feature of the "cold war" is a war of words, in which, it must be admitted, the United States has often come off second best. One reason is that we do not make a practice of lying, whereas, according to Marxian doctrine, "the bigger the lie, the better" if it serves the Communist cause. But another reason is the ignorance, obtuseness or prejudice that sometimes affects the Government servants in charge of our foreign information.

The most notorious example is the anti-Nanking propaganda which one branch of the State Department has been feeding to the Chinese public. It would be bad enough to misrepresent the American attitude toward Chiang Kai-shek, as this "information" does. It is worse than stupid to attack the Nanking government when the beneficiary is the Communist movement in China.

It may have been with this sort of thing in mind that Congress wrote into the bill a clause that the State Department must depend to the greatest "practical" extent upon private publications and news agencies of the country and must withdraw whenever it finds that private operations are adequate to tell the story of the United States.

Petroleum experts say the gasoline supply is assured for 3,000 years. It should be possible to get a new car that uses less gas by that time.

Youth at the Helm

For the tenth time in its 148-year-old history the DuPont Company has changed its directing head.

Walter S. Carpenter Jr., who guided the firm's destinies through the difficult war years and the hardly less turbulent postwar period, has become chairman of the board of directors, succeeding Lammot DuPont. Crawford H. Greenewalt, who has risen through the ranks in a quarter of a century of DuPont service, has stepped into the vacant presidency.

The shift follows an old DuPont tradition. Ever since it was a small family concern, the firm has liked its presidents young and has followed a policy of giving swift recognition to outstanding ability. Carpenter has retired from the presidency at the age of 60. Greenewalt is taking over at only 45—and six previous DuPont presidents have been as young or younger.

If that was sound policy in the past, it is even sounder now. Whatever most people may think, the presidency of a great industrial concern like the DuPont Company is no bed of roses. A man has to be young and vigorous to carry the staggering load of responsibility which goes with the job.

Whether the company grows and prospers, or whether it stagnates, depends on the judgment and capacity for leadership of it heads. If the company is run poorly, the 74,000 men and women who work for DuPont in office and in factory will suffer and so will the 97,000 stockholders who share in its earnings.

The prosperity of the country as a whole, in fact, depends on how well its great industries are managed.

Over-Ventilation Of The Lungs

BREATHING, an unconscious act, is controlled by the nervous system in response to the need for oxygen. The rate increases when the heart fails or the lungs are diseased, in an attempt to overcome the defect. On the other hand, it is normal to start puffing upon reaching the summit of a high mountain, after vigorous exercise, and ascending 15,000 feet in an airplane.

The respiration is altered also by the emotions, especially when we become excited, anxious, angry, or terrified. Sometimes this has an adverse effect because symptoms can arise after a person breathes too rapidly over a long period. In individuals who are upset most of the day, we can understand how overbreathing may become a problem.

The abnormality is known medically as "hyperventilation" and any one who wants to know how it feels can find out by inhaling and exhaling rapidly and deeply for a moment or two. Numbness and tingling may develop in the hands, feet, or over the face. Some experience a buzzing in the head, dizziness, giddiness, or faintness. A sensation of suffocation or smothering may exist.

When the maneuver is done voluntarily, the significance of the symptoms is obvious but if the person is unaware that he is breathing too fast, or sighing or yawning too much, anxiety is increased and the subject may become panicky, start to weep, or display other hysterical reactions. Extremely nervous persons may fear that heart trouble is responsible for the breathlessness and fainting attacks associated with the condition. Others blame the circulatory system. Furthermore, hyperventilating the lungs is work and leads to fatigue and exhaustion. No wonder highstrung individuals are always tired.

If overbreathing is prolonged, consciousness may be lost, which slows respiration and encourages a return to normal. In a few, tetany, the condition in which the muscles of the hands and feet or face go into spasm, will follow and these cramplike sensations leave the extremities painfully stiff. As a rule, hyperventilation cannot last this long without producing fatigue which in turn stops the act.

Telling the patient to control his breathing will not always effect a cure. The type of individual who is prone to develop the disturbance from time to time can be helped by demonstrating the phenomenon in the office. The physician instructs the visitor to breathe fast and, when symptoms are reproduced, he is convinced. In this way, fears are lessened which helps recovery.

Folks who think bubble baths, pedicures, and fingerwaves only happen at the House of Westmore should have paid a visit to the great western live stock show at the Los Angeles Union Stockyards.

What some cows won't do to win a blue ribbon.

When I arrived, the bovine beauties were all spraying themselves with perfume to influence the judges. And what perfume. . . "Evening in the Pig Pen". . . "Stockyard No. 5," and "Butcher Stay 'Way From My Door."

I certainly think the judges were a little too strict, though. One big steer was disqualified for dandruff.

They wanted to give one pig a mud bath and he said "are you kidding?"

And another little porker was so furious at the officials in charge he was threatening to sue for damages. . . .They curled his tail the wrong way.

I saw a couple of cows getting dressed for the show. . .and they had such slim figures now I know where Crosby sells all his old girdles.

One cow stayed in the steam room so long that when she came out she didn't give milk. Only hot toddies.

Some of those animals would do anything to win, though. . .I even cought one heifer putting wine in her bubble bath. No wonder the price of meat is so high!!

Hoover Forgot How European Loans Buoyed Up Bull Market; Will History Repeat Under Marshall Law?; Marshall's Calculated Risk Explained

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—When Herbert Hoover laid his large and dampening hand on the Marshall Plan last week, it caused a chorus of "I-told-you-sos" from certain people in and around the White House. These were the gentlemen who opposed Harry Truman's Republican-appeasement policy and warned that where Herbert Hoover is concerned political oil and water do not mix.

Aside from this palace-guard debate, however, Mr. Hoover's testimony against the Marshall Plan recalled even more important facts. It highlighted the ever deepening split inside the Republican party between the Taft isolationists and the Vandenberg interventionists—a split which is becoming just as deep and just as fundamental as between the northern and southern wings of the Democratic party.

It also recalled what so many people—perhaps even Mr. Hoover himself—may have forgotten: That it was the Kredit Anstalt in distant Vienna which caused Mr. Hoover in 1931 to put up his first storm-warning of approaching world-wide depression; and that it was the withdrawal of American credits to Europe which helped to bring the whole financial house-of-cards, otherwise known as the Coolidge bull market, tumbling around the ears of the American people.

In other words, it was the pumping of American money into Europe and Latin America by American bankers that heightened and prolonged the boom days which followed World War I. And it was the sudden drying up of that credit that accelerated the bust. Mr. Hoover only needs refer to his statement of June 20, 1931, declaring a moratorium on European debt payments to jog his memory on this point.

Will History Repeat?

And since history so often repeats—unless Herculean steps are taken to prevent repetition—it's important to review some of our now pretty well forgotten financial history and the differences between the European pump-priming of 1921-31 and the Marshall Plan.

First, let it be remembered that the Marshall Plan calls for careful, supervised spending in Europe under the nose of American experts. It also provides that no money shall be loaned until a hard-and-fast agreement is signed between the United States and the country which gets the money. This agreement will specify what is to be done with the money. It will also make certain that money is spent on projects which go into permanent peacetime reconstruction.

Finally, the Marshall Plan calls for the building up of allied western Europe, while the pell-mell rush to lend Europe money during the "golden era" of the 1920's largely benefited an enemy state, Germany.

The detailed story of how wantonly this money was squandered has been told in the hearings of various Congressional committees, including the Pecora banking probe and the Nye munitions investigation. It is the story of money funneled into Germany almost without rhyme or reason. It is the story of American dollars, collected by U. S. bankers from an unsuspecting public, and then used to buy pistols, hand grenades and even knives for Hitler's already stirring gunmen.

The story shows that swimming pools, public parks, all sorts of other luxuries were lavished upon Germany at the expense of the unsuspecting American investor.

U. S. Built Hitler's War Machine

Much more important, the big German steel plants, which Hitler later turned into the most efficient war machine in Europe, all were built up by millions of American investors — the chief money-raiser for Germany being the same man who now heads our National Defense Department—James Forrestal.

In Latin America also, loans were sometimes rammed down the throats of unsuspecting nations, such as the $100,000,000 loan by the National City Bank of Peru, which was floated after the son of President Juan B. Leguia received a fat bribe; or, again, the Dillon, Read Loan to Bolivia to finance the Chaco war, floated only after the Minister of Finance received a bribe.

All in all, a total of $15 billions was loaned to Europe and Latin America during the boom days following World War I. And it remains an incontestable economic fact that our domestic prosperity was synthetically buoyed up by sending our own money abroad to finance our own exports. In other words, our exports were largely "gifts."

It is likewise true that after every war, reconstruction money pours into needy countries. It can be a good risk, such as some of the European money that came into the United States after our Civil War—though even that was partially defaulted. Or it can be a bad risk, such as the money we put into Germany and Latin America after World War I. Or it can be a carefully calculated reconstruction risk, such as the Marshall Plan, in which the United States figures in advance that its money will not come back in actual cash, but may come back in long-term dividends through a more stable Europe and the avoidance of another war.

Unhappy Alternatives

None of this makes happy reading. But the aftermath of war is not much happier than war itself. It can be glossed over and made to look happy, but actually it never is — neither for victor nor vanquished.

But though no one can be too happy about the Marshall Plan, the important fact is that loans are not made by bankers for the purpose of collecting commissions, but under careful supervision of economic experts interested in long-term reconstruction. And if General Marshall lives up to his promises, they will not be squandered on German swimming-pools or a potential Nazi war machine, but on agricultural machinery, railroad equipment, and other peacetime pursuits.

And even more vital, the Marshall Plan, if properly planned and coordinated, can produce the only political solution providing any real hope — a United States of Europe.

The Marshall Plan is not going to be easy to put across. A lot of mistakes will be made. But the alternatives are either reckless, cut-throat, hit-and-miss financing of the post-war Coolidge boom days, or the gradual degeneration of Europe into stagnation, hopelessness, Communism, then the iron curtain for western Europe and eventual war.

The alternatives are not happy ones, but the choice should be fairly easy to make.

Greek Loan Held Justified; Progress Is Disappointing

By MARK SULLIVAN

Our people will shortly receive information from Greece that our aid to that country is going to cost more, in time and in money, than was contemplated when the aid was granted. This will come in the midst of discussion, in Congress and the country, about the broad program of aid to 16 European nations under the Marshall Plan. It may, unless understood, chill some earnest advocates of the Marshall Plan. It may cause critics of the Plan to say that what has happened about Greece will happen about others of the 16 countries. The information from Greece will seem to support the argument that aid to the 16 countries, once it has begun, will go on longer than is now contemplated; and that the amounts granted or promised initially will be followed by unforeseen needs for more. In short, the information about to come from Greece will give apparent justification to those who derisively speak of the whole Marshall Plan as "operation rathole."

Whatever deduction is to be made from the course of things in Greece depends upon the facts. These do not all point in the same direction.

The policy of aid to Greece was announced by President Truman last March: It was late spring before Congress appropriated the money. It was July before the head of the American mission to accompany the aid and help administer it, ex-Governor Griswold of Nebraska, could reach Greece. It was not until September that the whole of the American mission arrived and could begin to work at anything approaching full efficiency.

Progress Is Disappointing

Admit the delay. Admit that barely five months is a brief time from which to judge results. Aside from all that the fact is that there is disappointment about the progress made. There are few signs of accomplishment of one of the main objects of the American aid, the economic rehabilitation of Greece. For part of the disappointment, some responsibility is put upon the Greek government. Some American officials are not satisfied that the Greek govenment has made as much progress in putting its own house in order as might reasonably have been expected. Among other disappointing developments, there has been an extreme inflation of the currency.

In any event, the disappointing facts stand out. Congress appropriated 300 million dollars for Greece, and this is going to turn out not enough. The program of aid was to end within one year, and this is going to turn out not enough.

There has been a third failure of what Congress contemplated. Approximately half the 300 million dollars was to be used to put Greece on its feet economically, to help rebuild the industrial structure that had been systematically destroyed by the Germans. The remainder was to be used to assist the Greeks against the gorilla warfare which Communists were conducting on the country's borders. As it has turned out, the larger part of our aid has had to go to helping rebuild the Greek army and military establishments. The amount of economic restoration has been far short of what was contemplated.

Three Unforeseen Developments

In part the disappointment in Greece is accounted for by three unforeseen developments. One was a crop failure which reduced the wheat harvest by a third. Another was inflation, not merely Greece's but ours. The goods we send to Greece costs today 13 per cent more than at the time we granted the aid, to that extent our aid has evaporated. The third development was a Communist policy. After we went to the aid of Greece the Communists in Yugoslavia and other Russian satellite countries stepped up their effort to overthrow the Greek government and destroy Greece. They worked desperately to show the other European countries either that we could not save Greece, or that we would give up the attempt when the Communists made it costly.

Admitting that progress in Greece has been less than was expected and planned, one fact overbalances all others. Greece has been saved from Communism. Had we not announced aid and given it at the timely moment, Greece today would be just another country closed in by the iron curtain. The Russians would by this time have as complete domination in Greece as in the rest of the Balkan countries. And Greece would have been a base from which to dominate the Eastern Mediterranean and a springboard from which to spread.

With the saving of Greece goes another condition. Our willingness to act encouraged other countries in Western Europe, stiffened the wills of Italy and France to hold out against Communist attempts at disruption and domination. Our aid to Greece justifies itself, not merely in the saving of one key country but as a victory in world-wide resistance to Communism.

Eisenhower's Position As Regards Presidential Race

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 26.—General Eisenhower has done everything he could to prevent his nomination by the Republican National Convention- everything except to convince a minority of political observers that he would not accept if nominated.

This is a paradoxical statement to make but in politics it is far from being ambiguous. For General Eisenhower may believe sincerely that he is not qualified, may believe that, because he says he will not accept, no further effort will be made to select him. But what if the convention does draft him anyway?

There is in the Eisenhower letter a distinctly personal note—his own personal belief that he is not qualified and hence a flat decision not to accept. This, however, is the view of a man who has been compelled by events to say explicitly the one thing that is supposed to be thoroughly convincing—a statement of refusal to accept if nominated.

Some Would Draft Him

It is significant that after the statement was made some of the Eisenhower supporters took it literally and some said it didn't make any difference—they would go ahead, anyhow, with an attempt to draft the general.

If in the face of what the general has written, the Republican National Convention should draft him anyway, would it not, in effect, be a mandate from a convention saying that in the judgment of the delegates the general is qualified and should make the race?

The general would be put to a test. He could, of course, change his mind. Mr. Roosevelt said he wouldn't run for a third term but became convinced he should change his mind. General Eisenhower could say that he had done everything he could to discourage political activity in his behalf but that notwithstanding this he was being called to service. In his letter to the New Hampshire voters the general says he had hesitated to speak out bluntly because of a persistent doubt that he "could phrase a flat refusal without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity."

Thus a spontaneous draft would refute the basis on which the general took himself out of the contest. Every citizen must serve if called to high office. General Sherman said that, if nominated, he would not accept and, if elected, would not serve. General Eisenhower might feel differently than Sherman did.

The real question is whether a national convention, in the face of an emphatic disavowal, would nominate General Eisenhower anyhow. It may not happen but it could happen. Thus, in 1924, when President Coolidge was up for nomination at the Cleveland convention, the word was passed around that Governor Lowden of Illinois would not accept the vice-presidential nomination. It was an explicit statement. The convention went ahead and nominated Lowden and then waited for an answer. He declined the nomination promptly.

There will be vigorous objection to naming General Eisenhower in the face of his letter but, if a deadlock ensues in the convention and the delegates feel they cannot agree it is always possible for a movement to start which stampedes the convention. Under such circumstances, if General Eisenhower were spontaneously nominated, the convention would wait for a definite answer and, if unfavorable, would proceed with the balloting for someone else.

Acceptance Usually Comes

This is but another way of saying that personal wishes are often set aside in drafting men for political office and that conventions which insist on a draft most frequently win an acceptance.

The reasons which the general has given are genuine, and nobody will accuse him of adroitness or of failing to make his meaning clear. The truth, however, is that when a man says frankly he is not ambitious and couples it with the only statement he could make to stop political activity in his behalf, many citizens will feel that this is by no means the end of the matter.

It is a safe assumption that General Eisenhower's name will get some ballots in the convention and that the turn to him, considered highly improbable today, may develop strength if the convention is deadlocked.

If General Eisenhower is considered as having been eliminated, the race is between Senator Taft and Governor Dewey with Senator Vandenberg as a possible compromise.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Historic Reminders

The question will long be asked why the State Department waited so long to publish the documents relating to the Stalin-Hitler Alliance. One day that question will be answered, too. Meanwhile, it is always worth-while to recall who did the telling and what he said:

"Although the United States would have full military and civilian representation on whatever international commission or commissions may be established for the execution of the whole German program, the primary responsibility for the policing of Germany and for civilian administration in Germany should be assumed by the military forces of Germany's continental neighbors. Specifically, these should include Russian, French, Polish, Czech, Greek, Yugoslav, Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian soldiers.

Not only Poland as a State and as a nation, but the Poles as a race were doomed by Hitelr to be destroyed or reduced to a servile station . . . When the Germans had clearly avowed their intention of making the Poles a subject and lower-grade race under the Herrenvolk, suddenly, by a superb effort of military force and skill, the Russia Armies . . . advanced from the Vistual to the oder. . .freeing the whole of Poland . . ."—Winston Churchill—House of Commons, February 27, 1945.

The Documents of the Stalin-Hitler Alliance published by the State Department show that Soviet Russia was an active partner in the German disposal of Poland.

"And as to peace—we are sure that our concord will win an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the goodwill of the overwhelming mass of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."—Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, Teheran, December 1, 1943.

"Our meeting here in the Crimea has reaffirmed our common determination to maintain and strengthen in the peace to come that unity of purpose and of action which has made victory possible and certain for the United Nations in this war. We believe that this is a sacred obligation which our Governments owe to our peoples and to all the peoples of the world.

"Only with the continuing and growing cooperation and understanding among our three countries and among all the peace-loving nations can the highest aspiration of humanity be realized . . ."—Churchill, Roosevelt Stalin—Yalta, February 11, 1945.

And so it went on and on. The American people need to remember what they were told and how little of it was related to the reality that we see in the month of January of the year 1948. How time does pass—and how short is the memory of man—particularly of politicians.

General Eisenhower Declines To Make Race

By announcing flatly: "I am not available for, and could not accept, nomination to high political office," General Dwight W. Eisenhower has cleared the political air and preserved his reputation for candor and integrity.

This statement, which definitely takes the general out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination, was prompted by the entry of his name in the New Hampshire primary, without his consent. It is also directed to a number of friends and political amateurs who have been organizing an "Eisenhower boom," again without his consent.

"Ike" is entirely frank in stating the reasons for his silence up to now. He felt that a refusal to run before a considerable movement had been started in his behalf might "smack of effrontery." He was also unable to phrase a flat refusal "without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity." His decision was forced by the New Hampshire move and is phrased in such a way that none can question his sense of duty to the country in the field for which his talents and experience have so greatly qualified him.

Now that the general has removed himself from the Republican contest, it is possible to say certain things which might have been misunderstood before. Dwight Eisenhower is a military genius, as well as a man of high character. But he has had absolutely no training for political life and no personal interest in it. The so-called "Eisenhower boom" was evidence of his immense popularity. But it would probably have dwindled as Eisenhower the candidate was forced to state his views on all controversial matters. He would also have encountered the deep-lying popular reluctance to have a career military man in the White House—a feeling which "Ike" fully shares.

To say this in no way reflects upon the general. His position in the national hall of fame and in the hearts of the American people is secure. It is simply to say, what should be obvious, that the Republican candidate in 1948 should be a man who has proved by his political ability and experience his fitness for the highest office in the land.

There is an oil shortage, it seems, because Americans are using too much. Score another defeat for those who attempted to repeal the law of supply and demand.

Reinstituting Program Of The "Voice Of America"

By the phenomenon of a unanimous vote in both Houses, Congress has approved the bill to set up a permanent State Department foreign information program to rebut the sleepless propaganda of the Soviet Union. The best-known facility in this program is the radio "Voice of America," but there will be other features, such as exchange of students and teachers, and schools, libraries and community centers abroad.

The action of Congress voices the public reaction to the Soviet propaganda against the United States. A prominent feature of the "cold war" is a war of words, in which, it must be admitted, the United States has often come off second best. One reason is that we do not make a practice of lying, whereas, according to Marxian doctrine, "the bigger the lie, the better" if it serves the Communist cause. But another reason is the ignorance, obtuseness or prejudice that sometimes affects the Government servants in charge of our foreign information.

The most notorious example is the anti-Nanking propaganda which one branch of the State Department has been feeding to the Chinese public. It would be bad enough to misrepresent the American attitude toward Chiang Kai-shek, as this "information" does. It is worse than stupid to attack the Nanking government when the beneficiary is the Communist movement in China.

It may have been with this sort of thing in mind that Congress wrote into the bill a clause that the State Department must depend to the greatest "practical" extent upon private publications and news agencies of the country and must withdraw whenever it finds that private operations are adequate to tell the story of the United States.

Petroleum experts say the gasoline supply is assured for 3,000 years. It should be possible to get a new car that uses less gas by that time.

Youth at the Helm

For the tenth time in its 148-year-old history the DuPont Company has changed its directing head.

Walter S. Carpenter Jr., who guided the firm's destinies through the difficult war years and the hardly less turbulent postwar period, has become chairman of the board of directors, succeeding Lammot DuPont. Crawford H. Greenewalt, who has risen through the ranks in a quarter of a century of DuPont service, has stepped into the vacant presidency.

The shift follows an old DuPont tradition. Ever since it was a small family concern, the firm has liked its presidents young and has followed a policy of giving swift recognition to outstanding ability. Carpenter has retired from the presidency at the age of 60. Greenewalt is taking over at only 45—and six previous DuPont presidents have been as young or younger.

If that was sound policy in the past, it is even sounder now. Whatever most people may think, the presidency of a great industrial concern like the DuPont Company is no bed of roses. A man has to be young and vigorous to carry the staggering load of responsibility which goes with the job.

Whether the company grows and prospers, or whether it stagnates, depends on the judgment and capacity for leadership of it heads. If the company is run poorly, the 74,000 men and women who work for DuPont in office and in factory will suffer and so will the 97,000 stockholders who share in its earnings.

The prosperity of the country as a whole, in fact, depends on how well its great industries are managed.

Over-Ventilation Of The Lungs

BREATHING, an unconscious act, is controlled by the nervous system in response to the need for oxygen. The rate increases when the heart fails or the lungs are diseased, in an attempt to overcome the defect. On the other hand, it is normal to start puffing upon reaching the summit of a high mountain, after vigorous exercise, and ascending 15,000 feet in an airplane.

The respiration is altered also by the emotions, especially when we become excited, anxious, angry, or terrified. Sometimes this has an adverse effect because symptoms can arise after a person breathes too rapidly over a long period. In individuals who are upset most of the day, we can understand how overbreathing may become a problem.

The abnormality is known medically as "hyperventilation" and any one who wants to know how it feels can find out by inhaling and exhaling rapidly and deeply for a moment or two. Numbness and tingling may develop in the hands, feet, or over the face. Some experience a buzzing in the head, dizziness, giddiness, or faintness. A sensation of suffocation or smothering may exist.

When the maneuver is done voluntarily, the significance of the symptoms is obvious but if the person is unaware that he is breathing too fast, or sighing or yawning too much, anxiety is increased and the subject may become panicky, start to weep, or display other hysterical reactions. Extremely nervous persons may fear that heart trouble is responsible for the breathlessness and fainting attacks associated with the condition. Others blame the circulatory system. Furthermore, hyperventilating the lungs is work and leads to fatigue and exhaustion. No wonder highstrung individuals are always tired.

If overbreathing is prolonged, consciousness may be lost, which slows respiration and encourages a return to normal. In a few, tetany, the condition in which the muscles of the hands and feet or face go into spasm, will follow and these cramplike sensations leave the extremities painfully stiff. As a rule, hyperventilation cannot last this long without producing fatigue which in turn stops the act.

Telling the patient to control his breathing will not always effect a cure. The type of individual who is prone to develop the disturbance from time to time can be helped by demonstrating the phenomenon in the office. The physician instructs the visitor to breathe fast and, when symptoms are reproduced, he is convinced. In this way, fears are lessened which helps recovery.

Folks who think bubble baths, pedicures, and fingerwaves only happen at the House of Westmore should have paid a visit to the great western live stock show at the Los Angeles Union Stockyards.

What some cows won't do to win a blue ribbon.

When I arrived, the bovine beauties were all spraying themselves with perfume to influence the judges. And what perfume. . . "Evening in the Pig Pen". . . "Stockyard No. 5," and "Butcher Stay 'Way From My Door."

I certainly think the judges were a little too strict, though. One big steer was disqualified for dandruff.

They wanted to give one pig a mud bath and he said "are you kidding?"

And another little porker was so furious at the officials in charge he was threatening to sue for damages. . . They curled his tail the wrong way.

I saw a couple of cows getting dressed for the show. . .and they had such slim figures now I know where Crosby sells all his old girdles.

One cow stayed in the steam room so long that when she came out she didn't give milk. Only hot toddies.

Some of those animals would do anything to win, though. . .I even cought one heifer putting wine in her bubble bath. No wonder the price of meat is so high!!

Hoover Forgot How European Loans Buoyed Up Bull Market; Will History Repeat Under Marshall Law?; Marshall's Calculated Risk Explained

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—When Herbert Hoover laid his large and dampening hand on the Marshall Plan last week, it caused a chorus of "I-told-you-sos" from certain people in and around the White House. These were the gentlemen who opposed Harry Truman's Republican-appeasement policy and warned that where Herbert Hoover is concerned political oil and water do not mix.

Aside from this palace-guard debate, however, Mr. Hoover's testimony against the Marshall Plan recalled even more important facts. It highlighted the ever deepening split inside the Republican party between the Taft isolationists and the Vandenberg interventionists—a split which is becoming just as deep and just as fundamental as between the northern and southern wings of the Democratic party.

It also recalled what so many people—perhaps even Mr. Hoover himself—may have forgotten: That it was the Kredit Anstalt in distant Vienna which caused Mr. Hoover in 1931 to put up his first storm-warning of approaching world-wide depression; and that it was the withdrawal of American credits to Europe which helped to bring the whole financial house-of-cards, otherwise known as the Coolidge bull market, tumbling around the ears of the American people.

In other words, it was the pumping of American money into Europe and Latin America by American bankers that heightened and prolonged the boom days which followed World War I. And it was the sudden drying up of that credit that accelerated the bust. Mr. Hoover only needs refer to his statement of June 20, 1931, declaring a moratorium on European debt payments to jog his memory on this point.

Will History Repeat?

And since history so often repeats—unless Herculean steps are taken to prevent repetition—it's important to review some of our now pretty well forgotten financial history and the differences between the European pump-priming of 1921-31 and the Marshall Plan.

First, let it be remembered that the Marshall Plan calls for careful, supervised spending in Europe under the nose of American experts. It also provides that no money shall be loaned until a hard-and-fast agreement is signed between the United States and the country which gets the money. This agreement will specify what is to be done with the money. It will also make certain that money is spent on projects which go into permanent peacetime reconstruction.

Finally, the Marshall Plan calls for the building up of allied western Europe, while the pell-mell rush to lend Europe money during the "golden era" of the 1920's largely benefited an enemy state, Germany.

The detailed story of how wantonly this money was squandered has been told in the hearings of various Congressional committees, including the Pecora banking probe and the Nye munitions investigation. It is the story of money funneled into Germany almost without rhyme or reason. It is the story of American dollars, collected by U. S. bankers from an unsuspecting public, and then used to buy pistols, hand grenades and even knives for Hitler's already stirring gunmen.

The story shows that swimming pools, public parks, all sorts of other luxuries were lavished upon Germany at the expense of the unsuspecting American investor.

U. S. Built Hitler's War Machine

Much more important, the big German steel plants, which Hitler later turned into the most efficient war machine in Europe, all were built up by millions of American investors — the chief money-raiser for Germany being the same man who now heads our National Defense Department—James Forrestal.

In Latin America also, loans were sometimes rammed down the throats of unsuspecting nations, such as the $100,000,000 loan by the National City Bank of Peru, which was floated after the son of President Juan B. Leguia received a fat bribe; or, again, the Dillon, Read Loan to Bolivia to finance the Chaco war, floated only after the Minister of Finance received a bribe.

All in all, a total of $15 billions was loaned to Europe and Latin America during the boom days following World War I. And it remains an incontestable economic fact that our domestic prosperity was synthetically buoyed up by sending our own money abroad to finance our own exports. In other words, our exports were largely "gifts."

It is likewise true that after every war, reconstruction money pours into needy countries. It can be a good risk, such as some of the European money that came into the United States after our Civil War—though even that was partially defaulted. Or it can be a bad risk, such as the money we put into Germany and Latin America after World War I. Or it can be a carefully calculated reconstruction risk, such as the Marshall Plan, in which the United States figures in advance that its money will not come back in actual cash, but may come back in long-term dividends through a more stable Europe and the avoidance of another war.

Unhappy Alternatives

None of this makes happy reading. But the aftermath of war is not much happier than war itself. It can be glossed over and made to look happy, but actually it never is — neither for victor nor vanquished.

But though no one can be too happy about the Marshall Plan, the important fact is that loans are not made by bankers for the purpose of collecting commissions, but under careful supervision of economic experts interested in long-term reconstruction. And if General Marshall lives up to his promises, they will not be squandered on German swimming-pools or a potential Nazi war machine, but on agricultural machinery, railroad equipment, and other peacetime pursuits.

And even more vital, the Marshall Plan, if properly planned and coordinated, can produce the only political solution providing any real hope — a United States of Europe.

The Marshall Plan is not going to be easy to put across. A lot of mistakes will be made. But the alternatives are either reckless, cut-throat, hit-and-miss financing of the post-war Coolidge boom days, or the gradual degeneration of Europe into stagnation, hopelessness, Communism, then the iron curtain for western Europe and eventual war.

The alternatives are not happy ones, but the choice should be fairly easy to make.

Greek Loan Held Justified; Progress Is Disappointing

By MARK SULLIVAN

Our people will shortly receive information from Greece that our aid to that country is going to cost more, in time and in money, than was contemplated when the aid was granted. This will come in the midst of discussion, in Congress and the country, about the broad program of aid to 16 European nations under the Marshall Plan. It may, unless understood, chill some earnest advocates of the Marshall Plan. It may cause critics of the Plan to say that what has happened about Greece will happen about others of the 16 countries. The information from Greece will seem to support the argument that aid to the 16 countries, once it has begun, will go on longer than is now contemplated; and that the amounts granted or promised initially will be followed by unforeseen needs for more. In short, the information about to come from Greece will give apparent justification to those who derisively speak of the whole Marshall Plan as "operation rathole."

Whatever deduction is to be made from the course of things in Greece depends upon the facts. These do not all point in the same direction.

The policy of aid to Greece was announced by President Truman last March. It was late spring before Congress appropriated the money. It was July before the head of the American mission to accompany the aid and help administer it, ex-Governor Griswold of Nebraska, could reach Greece. It was not until September that the whole of the American mission arrived and could begin to work at anything approaching full efficiency.

Progress Is Disappointing

Admit the delay. Admit that barely five months is a brief time from which to judge results. Aside from all that the fact is that there is disappointment about the progress made. There are few signs of accomplishment of one of the main objects of the American aid, the economic rehabilitation of Greece. For part of the disappointment, some responsibility is put upon the Greek government. Some American officials are not satisfied that the Greek govenment has made as much progress in putting its own house in order as might reasonably have been expected. Among other disappointing developments, there has been an extreme inflation of the currency.

In any event, the disappointing facts stand out. Congress appropriated 300 million dollars for Greece, and this is going to turn out not enough. The program of aid was to end within one year, and this is going to turn out not enough.

There has been a third failure of what Congress contemplated. Approximately half the 300 million dollars was to be used to put Greece on its feet economically, to help rebuild the industrial structure that had been systematically destroyed by the Germans. The remainder was to be used to assist the Greeks against the gorilla warfare which Communists were conducting on the country's borders. As it has turned out, the larger part of our aid has had to go to helping rebuild the Greek army and military establishments. The amount of economic restoration has been far short of what was contemplated.

Three Unforeseen Developments

In part the disappointment in Greece is accounted for by three unforeseen developments. One was a crop failure which reduced the wheat harvest by a third. Another was inflation, not merely Greece's but ours. The goods we send to Greece costs today 13 per cent more than at the time we granted the aid, to that extent our aid has evaporated. The third development was a Communist policy. After we went to the aid of Greece the Communists in Yugoslavia and other Russian satellite countries stepped up their effort to overthrow the Greek government and destroy Greece. They worked desperately to show the other European countries either that we could not save Greece, or that we would give up the attempt when the Communists made it costly.

Admitting that progress in Greece has been less than was expected and planned, one fact overbalances all others. Greece has been saved from Communism. Had we not announced aid and given it at the timely moment, Greece today would be just another country closed in by the iron curtain. The Russians would by this time have as complete domination in Greece as in the rest of the Balkan countries. And Greece would have been a base from which to dominate the Eastern Mediterranean and a springboard from which to spread.

With the saving of Greece goes another condition. Our willingness to act encouraged other countries in Western Europe, stiffened the wills of Italy and France to hold out against Communist attempts at disruption and domination. Our aid to Greece justifies itself, not merely in the saving of one key country but as a victory in world-wide resistance to Communism.

Eisenhower's Position As Regards Presidential Race

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 26.—General Eisenhower has done everything he could to prevent his nomination by the Republican National Convention- everything except to convince a minority of political observers that he would not accept if nominated.

This is a paradoxical statement to make but in politics it is far from being ambiguous. For General Eisenhower may believe sincerely that he is not qualified, may believe that, because he says he will not accept, no further effort will be made to select him. But what if the convention does draft him anyway?

There is in the Eisenhower letter a distinctly personal note—his own personal belief that he is not qualified and hence a flat decision not to accept. This, however, is the view of a man who has been compelled by events to say explicitly the one thing that is supposed to be thoroughly convincing—a statement of refusal to accept if nominated.

Some Would Draft Him

It is significant that after the statement was made some of the Eisenhower supporters took it literally and some said it didn't make any difference—they would go ahead, anyhow, with an attempt to draft the general.

If in the face of what the general has written, the Republican National Convention should draft him anyway, would it not, in effect, be a mandate from a convention saying that in the judgment of the delegates the general is qualified and should make the race?

The general would be put to a test. He could, of course, change his mind. Mr. Roosevelt said he wouldn't run for a third term but became convinced he should change his mind. General Eisenhower could say that he had done everything he could to discourage political activity in his behalf but that notwithstanding this he was being called to service. In his letter to the New Hampshire voters the general says he had hesitated to speak out bluntly because of a persistent doubt that he "could phrase a flat refusal without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity."

Thus a spontaneous draft would refute the basis on which the general took himself out of the contest. Every citizen must serve if called to high office. General Sherman said that, if nominated, he would not accept and, if elected, would not serve. General Eisenhower might feel differently than Sherman did.

The real question is whether a national convention, in the face of an emphatic disavowal, would nominate General Eisenhower anyhow. It may not happen but it could happen. Thus, in 1924, when President Coolidge was up for nomination at the Cleveland convention, the word was passed around that Governor Lowden of Illinois would not accept the vice-presidential nomination. It was an explicit statement. The convention went ahead and nominated Lowden and then waited for an answer. He declined the nomination promptly.

There will be vigorous objection to naming General Eisenhower in the face of his letter but, if a deadlock ensues in the convention and the delegates feel they cannot agree it is always possible for a movement to start which stampedes the convention. Under such circumstances, if General Eisenhower were spontaneously nominated, the convention would wait for a definite answer and, if unfavorable, would proceed with the balloting for someone else.

Acceptance Usually Comes

This is but another way of saying that personal wishes are often set aside in drafting men for political office and that conventions which insist on a draft most frequently win an acceptance.

The reasons which the general has given are genuine, and nobody will accuse him of adroitness or of failing to make his meaning clear. The truth, however, is that when a man says frankly he is not ambitious and couples it with the only statement he could make to stop political activity in his behalf, many citizens will feel that this is by no means the end of the matter.

It is a safe assumption that General Eisenhower's name will get some ballots in the convention and that the turn to him,considered highly improbable today, may develop strength if the convention is deadlocked.

If General Eisenhower is considered as having been eliminated, the race is between Senator Taft and Governor Dewey with Senator Vandenberg as a possible compromise.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Historic Reminders

The question will long be asked why the State Department waited so long to publish the documents relating to the Stalin-Hitler Alliance. One day that question will be answered, too. Meanwhile, it is always worth-while to recall who did the telling and what he said:

"Although the United States would have full military and civilian representation on whatever international commission or commissions may be established for the execution of the whole German program, the primary responsibility for the policing of Germany and for civilian administration in Germany should be assumed by the military forces of Germany's continental neighbors. Specifically, these should include Russian, French, Polish, Czech, Greek, Yugoslav, Norwegian, Dutch and Belgian soldiers.

"Under this program United States troops could be withdrawn within a relatively short time."—Henry Morgenthau — Program to Prevent Germany from Starting World War III. September, 1944.

We are still in Germany, but the Germans are not making World War II. We now say that the Russians are so engaged.

"Each High Contracting Party undertakes not to conclude any alliance and not to take part in any coalition directed against the other High Contracting Party."—British-Russian Treaty, May 26, 1942.

The Cominform has been organized by Soviet Russia against the United States, Great Britain, and the Western Democracies of Europe.

"5. That for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security pending the re-establishment of law and order and the inauguration of a system of general security, they will consult with one another and as occasion requires with other members of the United Nations with a view to joint action on behalf of the community of nations.

"6. That after the termination of hostilities they will not employ their military forces within the territories of other States except for the purposes envisaged in this declaration and after joint consulation.

"7. That they will confer and cooperate with one another and with other members of the United Nations to bring about a practicable general agreement with respect to the regulation of armaments in the post-war period."—Joint Four Nation Declaration (United States, Great Britain, Soviet Union, China. —Moscow, October, 1943.

". . . But for the prodigious exertions and sacrifices of Russia, Poland was doomed to utter destruction at the hands of the Germans. Not only Poland as a State and as a nation, but the Poles as a race were doomed by Hitelr to be destroyed or reduced to a servile station . . . When the Germans had clearly avowed their intention of making the Poles a subject and lower-grade race under the Herrenvolk, suddenly, by a superb effort of military force and skill, the Russia Armies . . . advanced from the Vistual to the oder. . .freeing the whole of Poland . . ."—Winston Churchill—House of Commons, February 27, 1945.

The Documents of the Stalin-Hitler Alliance published by the State Department show that Soviet Russia was an active partner in the German disposal of Poland.

"And as to peace—we are sure that our concord will win an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the goodwill of the overwhelming mass of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."—Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, Teheran, December 1, 1943.

"Our meeting here in the Crimea has reaffirmed our common determination to maintain and strengthen in the peace to come that unity of purpose and of action which has made victory possible and certain for the United Nations in this war. We believe that this is a sacred obligation which our Governments owe to our peoples and to all the peoples of the world.

"Only with the continuing and growing cooperation and understanding among our three countries and among all the peace-loving nations can the highest aspiration of humanity be realized . . ."—Churchill, Roosevelt Stalin—Yalta, February 11, 1945.

And so it went on and on. The American people need to remember what they were told and how little of it was related to the reality that we see in the month of January of the year 1948. How time does pass—and how short is the memory of man—particularly of politicians.

"Heartbroken" Young Lady Advised To Stop Acting Like Silly Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl 15 years old and like a boy who goes steady with another girl. He loves her very much, but she acts as though she doesn't love him, because she is constantly talking about other boys.

He knows I like him very much, yet he won't give me a second look, but whenever he breaks up with this girl, he comes up to my house. Then before you know it, he's back with her again.

I've tried going out with other boys, but just can't seem to get interested in them, and when I'm out with them I don't have any fun because I think of the other boy all the time. What am I to do?

"HEARTBROKEN"

Dear "Heartbroken":

I have a very specific suggestion for what you might do. That is, to make up your mind that you'll stop behaving like a silly little girl who has set her heart on some particular toy and refuses to be happy unless she gets it. Only babies act that way. Sensible people don't allow themselves to mope about what they can't have, but instead resolve to find something or someone else with whom to have good times. And it strikes me as just dumb foolishness to be willing to let a boy take up with you when it happens to suit him and then drop you ditto. That's the poorest way in the world to get him to think of you as anyone worth looking at twice.

Don't Try To Rush Things

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've got to know the one answer to this question:

At what age should a girl be able to go to boy-and-girl parties, and at what age should a girl be allowed to go with boys to the movies in the daytime?

I'm 13 years old, and quite popular, but I have to snub boys because of my parents, who are very strict. I can't go any place with my girl friends and can't have them over to my house. My parents do not trust me.

"TROUBLED GIRL"

Dear "Troubled Girl":

I think you must be mistaken about your parents not trusting you. I'm sure the only reason they are so strict about what you do is that you are so young.

As for giving you "the one" answer to your question, I'm afraid it's not quite as simple as that. The age at which a girl should be allowed to go to boy-and-girl parties and to the movies with boys would depend on many things. Whose parties they were, for instance, and what kind; what boys she wanted to go out with; whether she had normal good sense for her age, or was unusually childish. Things like that.

I don't see any reason why a girl of 13 shouldn't go to the regular type of party that young folks of her age give, however, nor why she might not occasionally be allowed to go to the movies in the afternoon with some boy among her friends who is known and approved by her parents. And I think she should certainl have her friends come to her house. But don't try to rush boy-and-girl relationships. The 13-year-old should wait a while for anything like that.

on the Progress made and the Problems faced during the fiscal year of 1947

Highlights of our 1947 activities:

PRODUCTION – Our six plants, each operating close to capacity, produced 637,542 tons of paper and paperboard – 39,558 tons more than in the record year of 1946. Pulp production reached a new high of 607,521 tons. The volume of chemical products exceeded 1946's record.

NET SALES – Demand for paper and paperboard again outstripped supply. Our problem was not so much to find customers as to treat each fairly and live up to our promises of delivery. Net sales of products amounted to $85,989,056 and were 28 per cent greater than in 1946.

NET EARNINGS – Our net earnings amounted to $10,935,424. Advice To The Lovelorn

"Heartbroken" Young Lady Advised To Stop Acting Like Silly Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl 15 years old and like a boy who goes steady with another girl. He loves her very much, but she acts as though she doesn't love him, because she is constantly talking about other boys.

He knows I like him very much, yet he won't give me a second look, but whenever he breaks up with this girl, he comes up to my house. Then before you know it, he's back with her again.

I've tried going out with other boys, but just can't seem to get interested in them, and when I'm out with them I don't have any fun because I think of the other boy all the time. What am I to do?

"HEARTBROKEN"

Dear "Heartbroken":

I have a very specific suggestion for what you might do. That is, to make up your mind that you'll stop behaving like a silly little girl who has set her heart on some particular toy and refuses to be happy unless she gets it. Only babies act that way. Sensible people don't allow themselves to mope about what they can't have, but instead resolve to find something or someone else with whom to have good times. And it strikes me as just dumb foolishness to be willing to let a boy take up with you when it happens to suit him and then drop you ditto. That's the poorest way in the world to get him to think of you as anyone worth looking at twice.

Don't Try To Rush Things

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've got to know the one answer to this question:

At what age should a girl be able to go to boy-and-girl parties, and at what age should a girl be allowed to go with boys to the movies in the daytime?

I'm 13 years old, and quite popular, but I have to snub boys because of my parents, who are very strict. I can't go any place with my girl friends and can't have them over to my house. My parents do not trust me.

"TROUBLED GIRL"

Dear "Troubled Girl":

I think you must be mistaken about your parents not trusting you. I'm sure the only reason they are so strict about what you do is that you are so young.

As for giving you "the one" answer to your question, I'm afraid it's not quite as simple as that. The age at which a girl should be allowed to go to boy-and-girl parties and to the movies with boys would depend on many things. Whose parties they were, for instance, and what kind; what boys she wanted to go out with; whether she had normal good sense for her age, or was unusually childish. Things like that.

Centenary WSCS Name Chairman; Continue Projects

The Centenary Women's Society of Christian Service met at the church, Friday night, and Miss Nyna Fey appointed Miss Edith Hardinger to take charge of all old papers and records for the society. The members also decided to continue with the Rainy Day Bags and Travelling Baskets; also to meet for quilting. The budget for the year was accepted and a donation made towards the National Scholarship Fund.

Mrs. Edwin Hardinger, Spiritual Life secretary, led the devotional period, using as her subject, "Thy Saving Health." The group sang, "Jesus Calls Us," and "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer;" after which Mrs. Hardinger read the origin of the song, "My God and I," written by an orphanage girl. Mrs. Steve Bowling, Missionary chairman, read, "Women's Society Meeting, Berlin Style" an article written by Mrs. Rogers Wells, Ardmore, Pa., temporarily living in Berlin; and also read "Ten Ways to Kill a Woman's Society Meeting."

Minutes for the final meetings of both Union and the Centenary Societies were read and approved, also the report of the first executive meeting of the joint meeting.

Miss Regina Ferguson was welcomed into the society and plans were discussed for the remodelling of the church kitchen. A World Day of Prayer Service, sponsored by the United Council of Church Women, will be held at the Centenary Church, February 13, at 8 o'clock, it was announced.

Members decided to choose secret sisters at the next meeting, February 18, and future meetings will be held the third Wednesday of each month, when Mrs. Bowling and Mrs. R. H. Bready will be hostesses.

Others present were Mrs. Fred Purnell, Mrs. Charles Gillum, Mrs. Edward Lundien, Mrs. Edgar Vandegrift, Mrs. John Hardinger, Mrs. Ruthella Fey, Mrs. Cecil Hardinger, Mrs. Ralph Ferguson, Mrs. Bertha Wolford, Miss Ethel Gillum, Miss Mary Ella Growden, Miss Edith Hardinger, Mrs. Carl Bennett, Mrs. Albert Smouse, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. Wilson and Rev. R. H. Bready.

Girl Scout Troop Visits Bakery

Nineteen Girl Scouts from Troop 13 completed the second in a series of tours through local industrial plants yesterday afternoon when they were conducted through Ort Brothers' Bakery. The first tour was through the newspaper plant of the Times and Alleganian Company.

The scouts were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Hornbrook, leader, and Mrs. Anthony Cioni, assistant leader of the troop. The complete process of bread and cake mixing and baking was shown and explained by Louis Ort, who conducted the tour. The girls viewed how bread was wrapped and prepared for trucking to stores and how it was transported from the oven to the wrapping department.

The tour lasted one hour and at the conclusion refreshments were served to the girls and leaders by bakery officials.

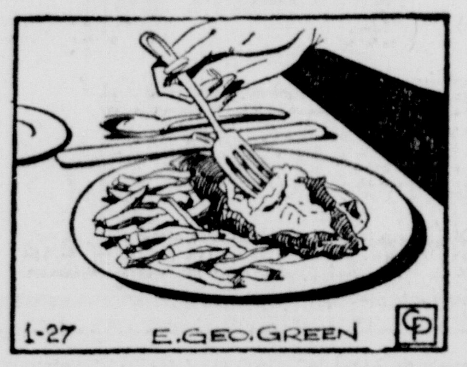
WIFE PRESERVERS



The important thing to remember in cooking fish is that too often they are over-cooked. Cook just enough so that the flesh is flaked easily from the bones, and it will be moist and tender with a delicate flavor.

Farmer Builds Own Tractor For $200

SONWAY, Ark.—(AP)—Garland Abrams of Acklin Gap wanted a tractor mighty bad.

The price for one was a little steep. So he built himself one by—

Rigging up the front wheels from 15 inch discs, the rear wheels by cutting down old 16-inch automobile wheels and the chassis of an old truck.

He installed a one cylinder, six horsepower motor, put in a V-Belt drive to a counter shaft. Then screwed on a slat from an old mowing machine, put two plows in front, four behind. The plows are manipulated by a mowing machine lever.

The whole thing cost $200.

Inner-Aid Medicine
Real Relief for Gas, Constipation

One man recently took INNER-AID three days and said afterward that he never would have believed his body contained so much waste substance. He says his stomach, intestines, bowels and whole system were so thoroughly cleansed that his constant headaches came to an end, several pimply skin eruptions on his face dried up overnight, and even the rheumatic pains in his knee disappeared. At present he is an altogether different man, feeling fine in every way.

INNER-AID contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get INNER-AID. Sold by all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Farmer Builds Own Tractor For $200

SONWAY, Ark.—(AP)—Garland Abrams of Acklin Gap wanted a tractor mighty bad.

The price for one was a little steep. So he built himself one by—

Rigging up the front wheels from 15 inch discs, the rear wheels by cutting down old 16-inch automobile wheels and the chassis of an old truck.

He installed a one cylinder, six horsepower motor, put in a V-Belt drive to a counter shaft. Then screwed on a slat from an old mowing machine, put two plows in front, four behind. The plows are manipulated by a mowing machine lever.

The whole thing cost $200.

Familiar Ring To This But It Turns Turtle

GREAT FALLS, Mont.—(AP)—Theater manager Bill Steele expects his customers to lose all kinds of things in his place, but he was a bit nonplussed recently when a woman looking for a lost ring came up with a green-painted turtle apparently lost by a young patron.

8-Year-Old Western Is Berlin's Favorite

BERLIN (AP) — "Destry Rides Again," an eight-year-old Hollywood western starring James Stewart and Marlene Dietrich, is the biggest hit of the season in Berlin according to a survey by American Military Government film officials.

Retitled "Der Grosse Bluff" (the big bluff), the film has been a sell out at the Kronen theater.

35 Is New Low For Dukes

By C. V. BURNS

Tomorrow night they're staging a donkey basketball game in Keyser for a worthy cause.

During the past three or four years the Keyser merchants, churches, organizations and individuals and just about everyone in town has been contributing to the summer program of which Fred "Tack" Clark, football and track coach at Keyser High has been the director.

On the register are 1,500 persons who participated in the program during the past summer. They are all ages—5 to 50—and they play softball, the backbone of the program; baseball, horseshoes, table tennis, basketball, swimming and most of the things that make a recreation program go.

The sponsors pay the bills, such as the cost of the director, equipment, prizes, etc. It has all been on a voluntary basis.

Clark points out that last year those in charge were a little generous in the matter of prizes and a few of the money-makers did not pan out. The result is that the program is a few dollars in debt.

Tomorrow night's donkey basketball game is being staged to raise funds to wipe out this debt. The Keyser Merchants and the Washington Smith Post of the American Legion will play.

Any recreation program such as the one being conducted is deserving of full support and here's hoping "Tack" Clark and Company will have a large turnout at Wednesday night's game.

Pittsburgh has what appears to be a good professional boxing card tonight.

Three ten rounders at The Gardens bring together Sammy Adragna and Dorsey Lay, of Pittsburgh; Lee Sala, Donora middleweight, and Chet Vinci, and Joe Barone tests Filberto Osario, Cuban featherweight who recently whipped Mimmie Adragna.

Sala, incidentally, is managed by "Bunny" Buntag, and will be gunning for his 35th consecutive victory at the expense of Vinci.

Joe Stydahar is the man most frequently mentioned for the job of football coach at West Virginia University as successor to Bill Kern, resigned. Harry Clark and "Eck" Allen also are favorably mentined as tops among the 25 candidates.

Jackie Tighe, who last year won the 165-pound Eastern Intercollegiate championship in his first season of postwar competition, is captain of Penn State's boxing team this year and is competing in the 155-pound division. Tighe appeared here last year in a boxing exhibition with a teammate at an American Legion show.

And speaking of Penn State's team we understand that Jack Sheehe, of Oakland, won his first intercollegiate match of the season from a Bucknell opponent.

In the bouts handled by Jim Kelley at Washington, D. C., Saturday night there were two decisions erroneously announced and then reversed.

Maryland defeated Catholic University, 6-2, and three of the wins credited to the Old Liners were TKO's registered by Andy Quattrocchi, Roland Hyde and Ed Riedier.

Mont Whipp, the Maryland heavyweight whose sister resides here, was unable to fight on Saturday night because of illness.

Meyer "Buck" Gefsky, who starred for the Coffey Club of Pittsburgh back in the days when the Keyser Collegians met the Smoky City club, is now assistant vice president at the Washington Trust Company, Pittsburgh.

Johnny Lujack, who comes here in April to speak at the K. of C. Sportsmanship Award Dinner, will appear at the Altoona Catholic High School banquet at Jaffa Mosque on February 2.

During his recent visit to Pittsburgh, Frank Leahy, Notre Dame grid mentor, revealed that Lujack has helped pay off the mortgage on his Connellsville home with the earnings he pulled in as an after-dinner speaker. Johnny is paid a handsome sum for many of his personal appearances.

Spencer (W. Va.) High School where Bill Hahn coached for awhile won its first nine games of the season and at last reports is still undefeated.

When the Wheeling Puritans come here Sunday night to play the Dukes their lineup may include Irv Barnett, the highly touted center, who suffered a disabled knee injury during the early part of the season. Barnett played with the Wheeling Valans last season.

Tygarts Valley High School of Mill Creek is the "giant killer" among the small town high schools of nearby West Virginia this season. Among their conquests are those over Davis 50-49 and Thomas 73-58. Coach Bill Weber has a team that averages more than 6 feet in height. Kramer, 6-feet-5, scored 12 field goals and 25 points at Thomas last Friday.

Mill Creek is in Randolph county. Population is 732.

When the Dukes were limited to 35 points by Youngstown on Sunday it marked a new low for the local team in a total of 21 games played to date.

The Dukes' previous low was 37 points scored at Columbus, Ohio, January 4, when the Mariners rolled up 54 points.

Overheard at SS. Peter and Paul gym Sunday night as Lou Gabriel of Youngstown was waved out on five personal fouls.

Louise Suggs Leads Tourney Qualifiers

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Petite Louise Suggs, national women's amateur golf champion from Atlanta, Ga., fired a four-under-women's-par 72 today to capture a three-stroke lead on the qualifying round of the 16th annual Helen Lee Doherty women's golf tournament.

Three strokes behind was Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta with a 38-37—75.

Jean Hopkins, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Texas, each fired a 38-38—76, which is women's par for the 6304-yard course.

Middies Will Interview Coach George Sauer

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 26—Head Football Coach George Sauer of the University of Kansas will go to Annapolis, Md., in the next few days to be interviewed for the job as head coach at the U. S. Naval Academy, E. C. Quigley, director of athletics, said today.

"Coach Sauer has been incited to visit Capt. Tom Hamilton, new director of athletics at the U. S. Naval Academy, within the next few days," Quigley said.

United States May Withdraw From Olympics

Dispute Over Hockey Teams Is Unsettled

By JOHN LEE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 26—(INS)—The dispute over the United States hockey entry in the Olympic winter games starting Friday led tonight to the possibility that America will withdraw from both the winter games and the full-scale Olympics at London next summer.

Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympic Committee, came out fighting at a news conference tonight and said the committee is prepared to rescind unless the hockey team is certified for the winter games.

He then added:

"If this should happen, it is the opinion of the committee that all American contestants also will retire from the winter games."

May Quit Summer Games

He indicated the strong probability that under the circumstances America also would retire from the summer games.

Brundage dropped his bombshell soon after arriving at the scene of the winter competition set for a gala start Friday after eight years' interruption because of the war.

Previously he had said he was prepared to fight to a showdown the Swiss organizing committee's action in certifying a team representing the United States Amateur Hockey Association instead of the one named by the Amateur Athletic Union and approved by the United States committee.

The International Olympic Committee is expected to take action Thursday in a full meeting after a two-day executive session starting tomorrow.

Committee Has Authbrity

Brundage said tonight that the United States committee "has made no threats" in the matter, then added:

"The committee, however, assumes it has the authority to certifyand approve American teams and individuals participating in the Olympics.

"If this is not the case, then the American committee is finished. If it has no authority it will withdraw from the games."

He said this undoubtedly would lead to withdrawal of American entrants from the skiing, bobsledding and skating competition in the winter games and possibly from the summer games as well.

Brundage said he was confident that the international committee would accept his viewpoint, but that if he fails in his fight there no longer will be a United States committee.

Brundage added:

"The American Olympic Committee objects to the United States Amateur Hockey Association team because it does not represent the United States, but represents the rink owners.

Says AAU Legal Member

"If this is an amateur setup, I'm Christopher Columbus.

"We contend that the AAU is the legal member of the International Ice Hockey League and we feel that the entry of a team representing commercial interests would violate all the principles of the Olympic movement."

Asked if he thought he might lose his fight in behalf of the AAU team, Brundage replied with a big smile and this question:

"Do I look as though I'm going to lose the fight?"

Brundage discussed the dispute tonight with Albert Mayer, a member of the Swiss organizing committee, who stressed that his committee's decision is irrevocable.

Mayer said the Swiss committee accepted the United States Amateur Hockey Association team's entry because the AAU is not affiliated with the International Ice Hockey League, whereas the Amateur Hockey Association is a member.

AHA Team Not Barred

The Swiss official added that the AHA team's failure to get approval of the United States Olympic Committee does not bar it from the International League or from the Olympic games.

Brundage countered by saying:

"The United States Amateur Hockey Association should never have been permitted to become a member of the league in the first place.

Marine Reserve Quint Will Play At Romney

The Fifth Battalion Marine Corps Reserve basketball team will play Romney Lodge No. 1371, Loyal Order of Moose, for the "March of Dimes" fund Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. at Romney (W. Va.) High School.

At half time Victory Medals will be presented to all Marines of Hampshire County who served in World War II.

Klosterman, Washington Win In Royal A. C. Show

Richardson Scores KO, Footen Cops Decision

Jackie Klosterman, Cumberland's "Fighting High School Boy," belted out popular decision over Roy Rawlings, St. Mary's Athletic Club welterweight, to annex the "rubber" match of their series last night in the Royale Athletic Club amateur boxing show at the State Armory.

A gathering of 556 cash patrons saw what turned out to be just a "fair" card in which there were eight bouts of home talent displayed after announcement was made by Matchmaker Presley W. "Red" Mauk that the Zan Athletic Club boxers were unable to come here after their car broke down en route from Morgantown, W. Va. to Cumberland.

As a result the Klosterman-Billy Himes, Roy Rawlings-Roy Dodge and Bobby Goss-Don Gatian bouts were cancelled and card comprising Cumberland and Frostburg was thrown together. A refund of money was offered but only a few fans turned back their tickets for cash.

Footen, Matthews Please

The bout the fans liked most was the rough and tumble affair staged by a pair and slugging lightweights, Tommy Footen, of the Century A.C., Frostburg, and Mike Matthews of the Diamond A.C. Everything happened in this bout to entertain the fans. On one occasion Footen's body swung on the ropes like "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." The boys were fighting after the gong ended the first round, Footen missed a punch and almost fell flat on his face in midring and Matthews who is a wrestler, lifted Footen off his feet several times and had an airplane spin in mind when Referee Jim Kelley said: "Nix." At the finish Footen's nose was shooting out blood like a geyser. He was given a popular decision.

Melvin Washington avenged a previous beating he received at the hands of Bill Lafferty by left-jabbing his way to a 3-0 decision over the St. Mary's A. C. boxer in the sixth bout on the program. Washington left-handed Lafferty all over the ring and walked off with the verdict and a big hand from the fans.

Richardson Stops Braithwaite

Roy Richardson of Frostburg, knocked out Billy Braithwaite, D. A.C. representative, in 1:54 of the third round of their match. Billy went down after taking a hard punch on the "button" in the first round and was saved by the bell. He was floored for nine in the second round and in the final heat went down for the full count.

"Sonny" Lafferty hit "Buzzy" Welch so hard in the first round that the latter took a complete somersault before coming up for air. Then "Buzzy" went on to win his third straight fight by a 2-1 margin. Welch's best punch was a right that drove Lafferty halfway across the ring in the second round.

In other bouts Junior Payne decisioned "Tiny" Deetz, Jimmie Brown took a decision over Mike Leslie and Eddie Robinette was returned the winner over Ray Shipes in one of the poorest excuses of a boxing match seen here in some time. It was booed throughout and finally stopped by Referee Kelley who declared Robinette the winner.

Kelley handled the eight bouts. The judges were K. O. Henry Yutzy and Howard "Red" Bush, the timer, John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, and announcer, Nelson W. Russler.

Lonaconing led throughout, quarter scores being 15-11, 26-22 and 39-33.

Johnny Meyers headed the 'Coney offensive with 20 points while "Pepper" Inskeep led Barton with 13.

"Outlaw" League Tag Is Resented By Jorge Pasquel

Mexican Says Baseball In U.S. Is A Monopoly

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (AP)—Hoist the storm warnings and tighten up the reserve clause. Jorge Pasquel, the monied Mexican magnate, wants more baseball players. Price is no object.

That's what the man said today when interviewed in his thickly-carpeted hotel suite. Admittedly the power behind the throne in the hot tamale circuit, Jorge was most emphatic.

"Not a leaf or a twig falls from a tree in Mexico, but Jorge Pasquel knows about it," he said, presumably referring to baseball only.

"I thought you no longer were the head man in Mexican baseball," remarked a reporter who had read that one Alejandro Aguilar Reyes had been named Mexican commissioner.

Lost $250,000 In 1947

"Last year, I did not have much time for baseball. I was busy buying a newspaper. Now I am going to get some players. I will organize the league in the spring. Then the commissioner will run it. This year we will have eight teams, not six like last year when we lost a million pesos ($250,000). Too many rainy nights."

Pasquel is a Hollywood version of a monied Mexican. Long, slanting sideburns, and a clipped mustache are the most striking features of this visitor who wears an expensive looking ring, pearl tie pin and jeweled cuff links. His companion on the current trip is Miguel Aleman, Jr., son of the Mexican president.

Recent peace talks between Commissioner Reyes and Water Mulbry, secretary to Commissioner A. B. Chandler were dismissed by Jorge as inconsequential.

"If Chandler wants to do anything" he said, his eyes snapping to attention, "he must talk to me, personally. Nothing can be done by a tourist."

Resents "Outlaw" Tag

"Outlaw," he sizzled. "Who says outlaw? What international board decides that? Bah, outlaw. I say your baseball is a monopoly. How about the people in California. They try to get into your big leagues and pou say no. Why? Are they outlaws, too?"

"Next week I go to Cuba. There I will sign players. And I will get all the good players, too. I have to talk with Max Lanier, Freddy Martin, Sal Maglie and the others. I don't care what they are, American, Cuban, Mexican. If they want to play baseball, and not just have a good time, I will pay them."

"In 1945 they said we'd last two months. Well we're still going and we expect to continue, outlaw! outlaw! How can they call us that?"

TERESHINSKI, WILDE COME TO TERMS

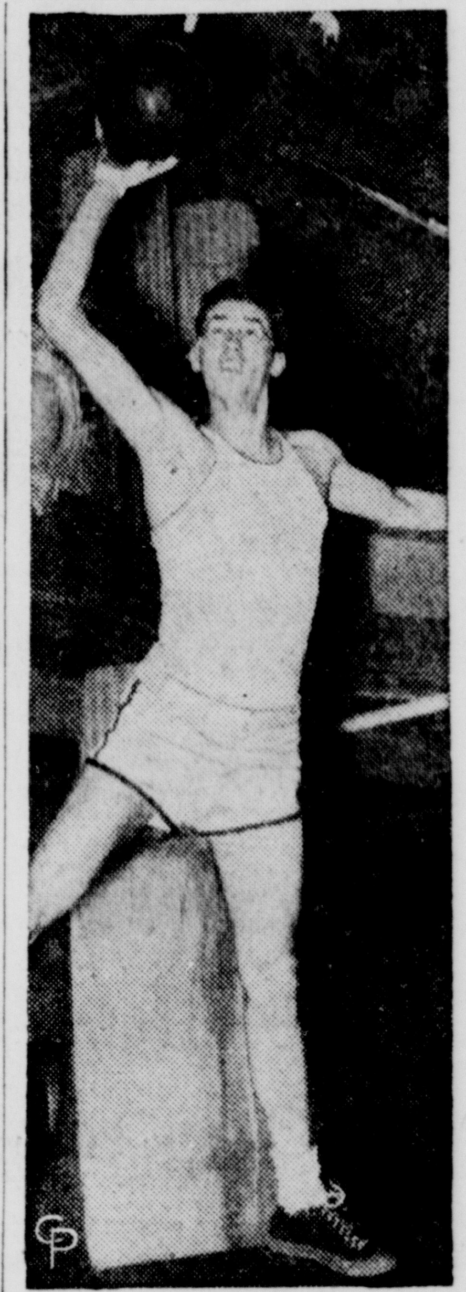
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Washington Redskins announced today that end Joe Tereshinski and halfback George Wilde have signed 1948 contracts.

Tereshinski, former Georgia University star, is six feet, two inches tall, tips the scales at 205 pounds, and played in 11 games for the Redskins last year.

Wilde, six-foot, one-and-one-half inch, 193-pounder played in nine of the Redskin games. Each scored one touchdown last year.

Serini Turns Pro

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 26 (AP) — Wash Serini, for four years a regular tackle on the Kentucky football team, has joined the pro ranks. Serini signed a contract with the Chicago Bears Sunday.



SETS RECORD—George Mikan, the elongated former DePaul star, already has tied the National Basketball League scoring mark at 632 points and is certain to break it. Mikan compiled a total in 31 games while the former record holder, Al Cervi, made 632 points in 44 games. Mikan plays with the Minneapolis Lakers, who have won 23 games.

Touchdown Club Declares Miller Honest, Sincere

Eddie Says His Remarks Merely Analyzed Club

HAMILTON, O., Jan. 26 (AP)—Eddie Miller, Cincinnati Reds' shortstop, attended a quarterback club meeting for the second time in two weeks today and declared he hadn't "lost any sleep" over the furor caused by certain statements criticizing the team he made in a talk before the club Jan. 13.

"No one has to feel sorry for me," Miller said today, adding: "I'm over 21."

The veteran inflelder began a short talk by declaring "I'm not going to apologize" for earlier critical remarks, which included a statement he believed the 1948 Reds "will be lucky to battle for a tie for last place" in the National League since management is depending on promising youngsters instead of seasoned veterans.

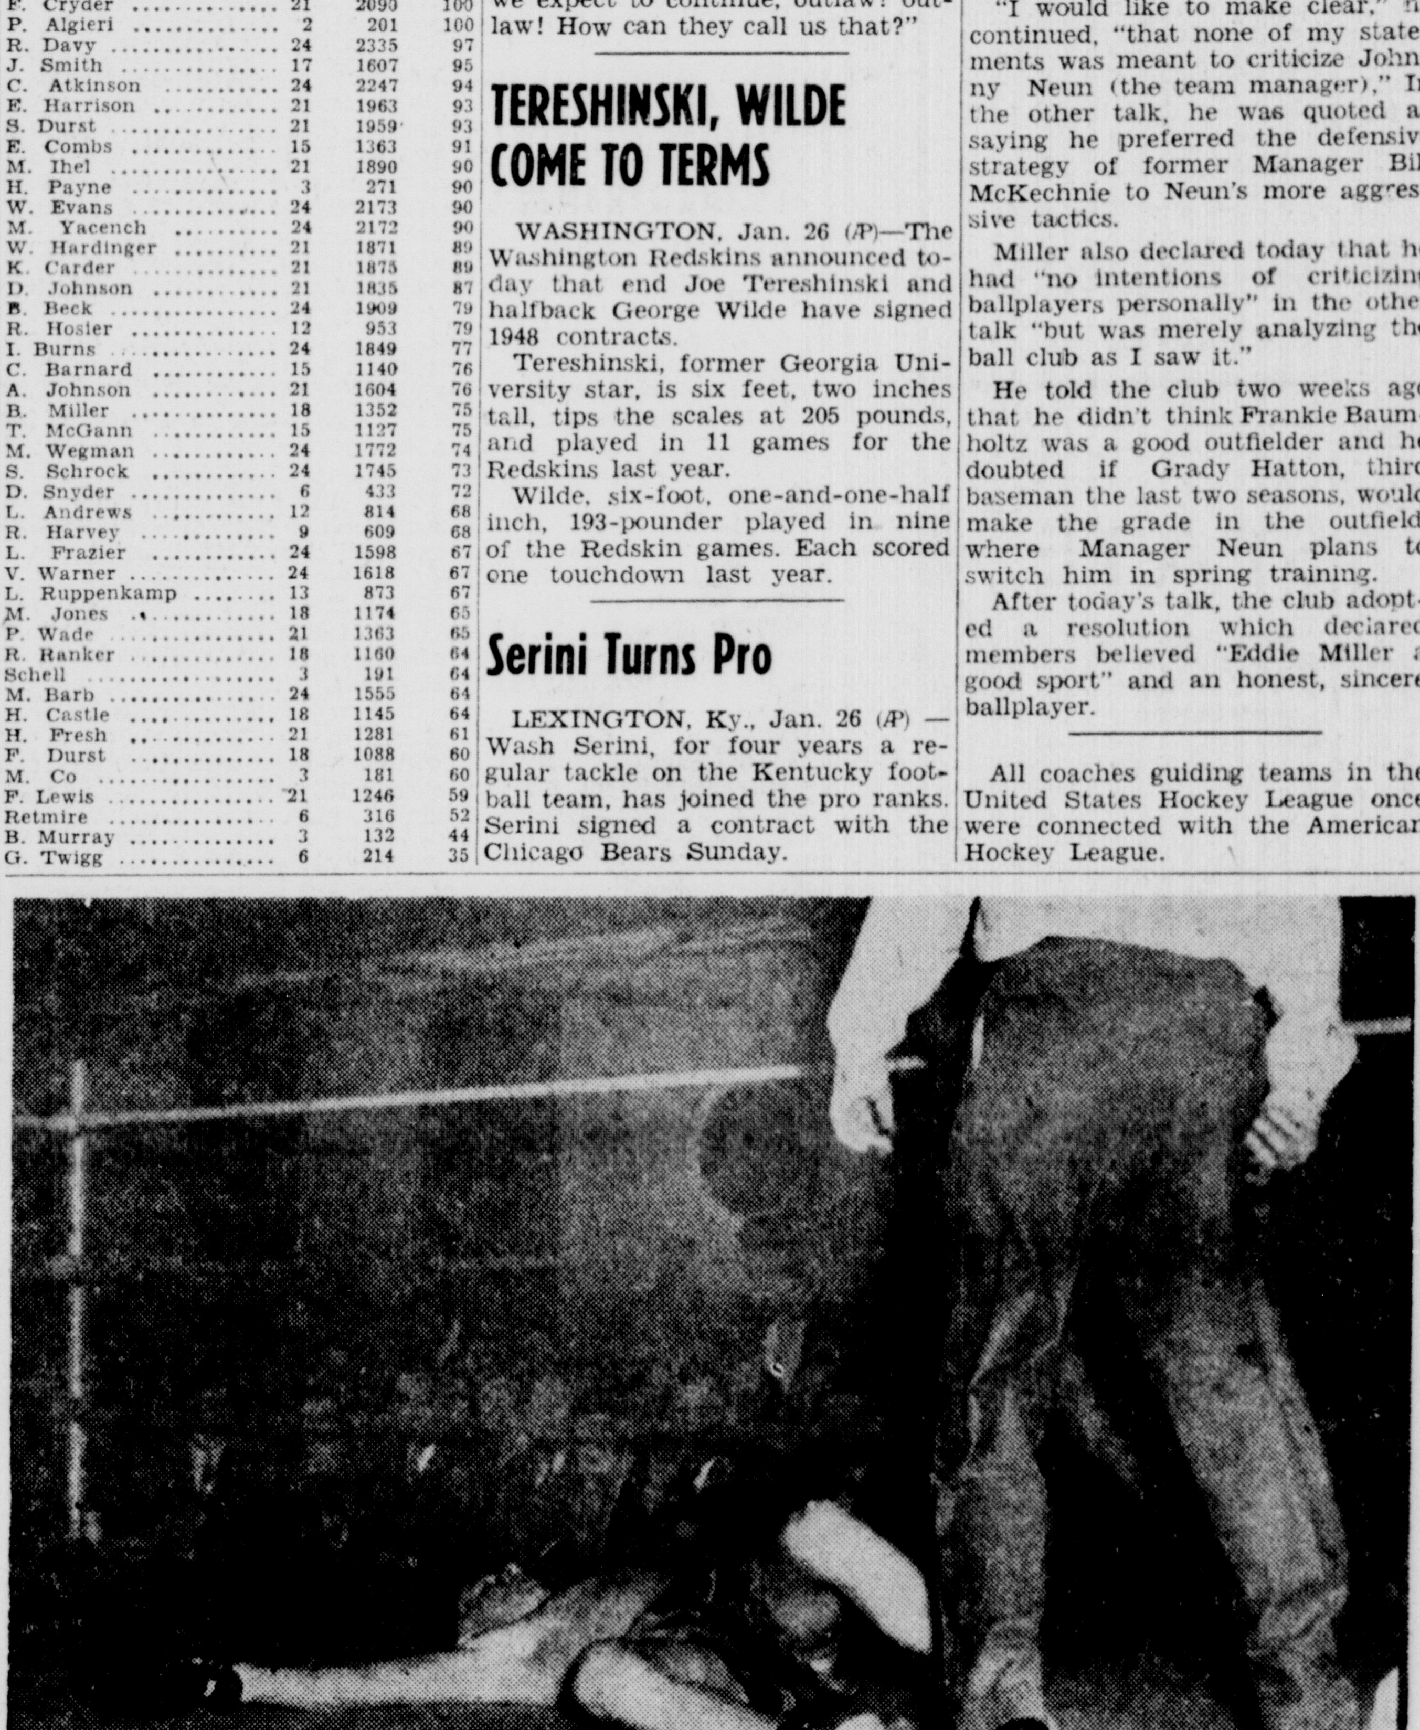
"I would like to make clear," he continued, "that none of my statements was meant to criticize Johnny Neun (the team manager)." In the other talk, he was quoted as saying he preferred the defensive strategy of former Manager Bill McKechnie to Neun's more aggressive tactics.

Miller also declared today that he had "no intentions of criticizing ballplayers personally" in the other talk "but was merely analyzing the ball club as I saw it."

He told the club two weeks ago that he didn't think Frankie Baumholtz was a good outfielder and he doubted if Grady Hatton, third baseman the last two seasons, would make the grade in the outfield, where Manager Neun plans to switch him in spring training.

After today's talk, the club adopted a resolution which declared members believed "Eddie Miller a good sport" and an honest, sincere ballplayer.

All coaches guiding teams in the United States Hockey League once were connected with the American Hockey League.



IT'S A KNOCKOUT—Billy Braithwaite, Diamond A. C. 118-pounder is shown on the canvas of the State Armory ring last night after he was knocked out by Roy Richardson, 120, of the Century A. C., of Frostburg, in the third and final round of the sixth bout on the Royale A. C. amateur card. It was Billy's third trip to the floor. The bell saved him in the first and he took a nine count after being dropped in the second. James E. Kelley, Jr., referee, is shown on the right.

Tax Claim Filed Against Manager Of Joe Louis

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—An uppaid federal income tax claim of $40,389.50 against Marshall D. Miles, manager of heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, has been filed in U. S. Federal Court here, according to Internal Revenue Collector George T. Mc Gowan.

Mc Gowan said Saturday tax liens totaling $110,093.18 were filed against Miles; his brother, Percy; Fred Perry, and Walter Marshall, all widely known in sport circles here. In each case the lien states the claim is for additional taxes due from income received from 1943 through 1945, Mc Gowan added.

The collector, who said the source of the alleged unreported income could not be revealed, added that unless the claims are met the government would take steps to levy against any assets uncovered.

"IKE" WILLIAMS DEFEATS DAWSON

DUQUESNE STOPPED BY TEXAS WESLEYAN; NEAR RIOT FOLLOWS

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 26—(AP)—Duquesne University, unbeaten in 12 previous starts, went down before the "13" jinx and Texas Wesleyan by a score of 57-53 in a game that was followed by a near riot tonight at The Gardens.

The trouble started when an unidentified man yelled an insult at Duquesne Guard John Barry, a World War veteran who was playing despite an elbow injury that required bandaging.

Vince Johnson, sports writer for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, said the words yelled were:

35 Is New Low For Dukes

By C. V. BURNS

Tomorrow night they're staging a donkey basketball game in Keyser for a worthy cause.

During the past three or four years the Keyser merchants, churches, organizations and individuals and just about everyone in town has been contributing to the summer program of which Fred "Tack" Clark, football and track coach at Keyser High has been the director.

On the register are 1,500 persons who participated in the program during the past summer. They are all ages—5 to 50—and they play softball, the backbone of the program; baseball, horseshoes, table tennis, basketball, swimming and most of the things that make a recreation program go.

The sponsors pay the bills, such as the cost of the director, equipment, prizes, etc. It has all been on a voluntary basis.

Clark points out that last year those in charge were a little generous in the matter of prizes and a few of the money-makers did not pan out. The result is that the program is a few dollars in debt.

Tomorrow night's donkey basketball game is being staged to raise funds to wipe out this debt. The Keyser Merchants and the Washington Smith Post of the American Legion will play.

Any recreation program such as the one being conducted is deserving of full support and here's hoping "Tack" Clark and Company will have a large turnout at Wednesday night's game.

Pittsburgh has what appears to be a good professional boxing card tonight.

Three ten rounders at The Gardens bring together Sammy Adragna and Dorsey Lay, of Pittsburgh; Lee Sala, Donora middleweight, and Chet Vinci, and Joe Barone tests Filberto Osario, Cuban featherweight who recently whipped Mimmie Adragna.

Sala, incidentally, is managed by "Bunny" Buntag, and will be gunning for his 35th consecutive victory at the expense of Vinci.

Joe Stydahar is the man most frequently mentioned for the job of football coach at West Virginia University as successor to Bill Kern, resigned. Harry Clark and "Eck" Allen also are favorably mentined as tops among the 25 candidates.

Jackie Tighe, who last year won the 165-pound Eastern Intercollegiate championship in his first season of postwar competition, is captain of Penn State's boxing team this year and is competing in the 155-pound division. Tighe appeared here last year in a boxing exhibition with a teammate at an American Legion show.

And speaking of Penn State's team we understand that Jack Sheehe, of Oakland, won his first intercollegiate match of the season from a Bucknell opponent.

In the bouts handled by Jim Kelley at Washington, D. C., Saturday night there were two decisions erroneously announced and then reversed.

Maryland defeated Catholic University, 6-2, and three of the wins credited to the Old Liners were TKO's registered by Andy Quattrocchi, Roland Hyde and Ed Rieder.

Mont Whipp, the Maryland heavyweight whose sister resides here, was unable to fight on Saturday night because of illness.

Meyer "Buck" Gefsky, who starred for the Coffey Club of Pittsburgh back in the days when the Keyser Collegians met the Smoky City club, is now assistant vice president at the Washington Trust Company, Pittsburgh.

Johnny Lujack, who comes here in April to speak at the K. of C. Sportsmanship Award Dinner, will appear at the Altoona Catholic High School banquet at Jaffa Mosque on February 2.

During his recent visit to Pittsburgh, Frank Leahy, Notre Dame grid mentor, revealed that Lujack has helped pay off the mortgage on his Connellsville home with the earnings he pulled in as an after-dinner speaker. Johnny is paid a handsome sum for many of his personal appearances.

Spencer (W. Va.) High School where Bill Hahn coached for awhile won its first nine games of the season and at last reports is still undefeated.

When the Wheeling Puritans come here Sunday night to play the Dukes their lineup may include Irv Barnett, the highly touted center, who suffered a disabled knee injury during the early part of the season. Barnett played with the Wheeling Valans last season.

Tygarts Valley High School of Mill Creek is the "giant killer" among the small town high schools of nearby West Virginia this season. Among their conquests are those over Davis 50-49 and Thomas 73-58. Coach Bill Weber has a team that averages more than 6 feet in height. Kramer, 6-feet-5, scored 12 field goals and 25 points at Thomas last Friday.

Mill Creek is in Randolph county. Population is 732.

When the Dukes were limited to 35 points by Youngstown on Sunday it marked a new low for the local team in a total of 21 games played to date.

The Dukes' previous low was 37 points scored at Columbus, Ohio, January 4, when the Mariners rolled up 54 points.

Overheard at SS. Peter and Paul gym Sunday night as Lou Gabriel of Youngstown was waved out on five personal fouls.

Louise Suggs Leads Tourney Qualifiers

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Petite Louise Suggs, national women's amateur golf champion from Atlanta, Ga., fired a four-under-women's-par 72 today to capture a three-stroke lead on the qualifying round of the 16th annual Helen Lee Doherty women's golf tournament.

Three strokes behind was Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta with a 38-37—75.

Jean Hopkins, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Texas, each fired a 38-38—76, which is women's par for the 6304-yard course.

Middies Will Interview Coach George Sauer

LAWRENCE, Kas., Jan. 26—Head Football Coach George Sauer of the University of Kansas will go to Annapolis, Md., in the next few days to be interviewed for the job as head coach at the U. S. Naval Academy, E. C. Quigley, director of athletics, said today.

"Coach Sauer has been incited to visit Capt. Tom Hamilton, new director of athletics at the U. S. Naval Academy, within the next few days," Quigley said.

United States May Withdraw From Olympics

Dispute Over Hockey Teams Is Unsettled

By JOHN LEE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 26—(INS)—The dispute over the United States hockey entry in the Olympic winter games starting Friday led tonight to the possibility that America will withdraw from both the winter games and the full-scale Olympics at London next summer.

Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympic Committee, came out fighting at a news conference tonight and said the committee is prepared to rescind unless the hockey team is certified for the winter games.

He then added:

"If this should happen, it is the opinion of the committee that all American contestants also will retire from the winter games."

May Quit Summer Games

He indicated the strong probability that under the circumstances America also would retire from the summer games.

Brundage dropped his bombshell soon after arriving at the scene of the winter competition set for a gala start Friday after eight years' interruption because of the war.

Previously he had said he was prepared to fight to a showdown the Swiss organizing committee's action in certifying a team representing the United States Amateur Hockey Association instead of the one named by the Amateur Athletic Union and approved by the United States committee.

The International Olympic Committee is expected to take action Thursday in a full meeting after a two-day executive session starting tomorrow.

Committee Has Authbrity

Brundage said tonight that the United States committee "has made no threats" in the matter, then added:

"The committee, however, assumes it has the authority to certifyand approve American teams and individuals participating in the Olympics.

"If this is not the case, then the American committee is finished. If it has no authority it will withdraw from the games."

He said this undoubtedly would lead to withdrawal of American entrants from the skiing, bobsledding and skating competition in the winter games and possibly from the summer games as well.

Brundage said he was confident that the international committee would accept his viewpoint, but that if he fails in his fight there no longer will be a United States committee.

Brundage added:

"The American Olympic Committee objects to the United States Amateur Hockey Association team because it does not represent the United States, but represents the rink owners.

Says AAU Legal Member

"If this is an amateur setup, I'm Christopher Columbus.

"We contend that the AAU is the legal member of the International Ice Hockey League and we feel that the entry of a team representing commercial interests would violate all the principles of the Olympic movement."

Asked if he thought he might lose his fight in behalf of the AAU team, Brundage replied with a big smile and this question:

"Do I look as though I'm going to lose the fight?"

Brundage discussed the dispute tonight with Albert Mayer, a member of the Swiss organizing committee, who stressed that his committee's decision is irrevocable.

Mayer said the Swiss committee accepted the United States Amateur Hockey Association team's entry because the AAU is not affiliated with the International Ice Hockey League, whereas the Amateur Hockey Association is a member.

AHA Team Not Barred

The Swiss official added that the AHA team's failure to get approval of the United States Olympic Committee does not bar it from the International League or from the Olympic games.

Brundage countered by saying:

"The United States Amateur Hockey Association should never have been permitted to become a member of the league in the first place.

Richardson Scores KO, Footen Cops Decision

Jackie Klosterman, Cumberland's "Fighting High School Boy," belted out popular decision over Roy Rawlings, St. Mary's Athletic Club welterweight, to annex the "rubber" match of their series last night in the Royale Athletic Club amateur boxing show at the State Armory.

A gathering of 556 cash patrons saw what turned out to be just a "fair" card in which there were eight bouts of home talent displayed after announcement was made by Matchmaker Presley W. "Red" Mauk that the Zan Athletic Club boxers were unable to come here after their car broke down en route from Morgantown, W. Va. to Cumberland.

As a result the Klosterman-Billy Himes, Roy Rawlings-Roy Dodge and Bobby Goss-Don Gatian bouts were cancelled and card comprising Cumberland and Frostburg was thrown together. A refund of money was offered but only a few fans turned back their tickets for cash.

Footen, Matthews Please

The bout the fans liked most was the rough and tumble affair staged by a pair and slugging lightweights, Tommy Footen, of the Century A.C., Frostburg, and Mike Matthews of the Diamond A.C. Everything happened in this bout to entertain the fans. On one occasion Footen's body swung on the ropes like "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." The boys were fighting after the gong ended the first round, Footen missed a punch and almost fell flat on his face in midring and Matthews who is a wrestler, lifted Footen off his feet several times and had an airplane spin in mind when Referee Jim Kelley said: "Nix." At the finish Footen's nose was shooting out blood like a geyser. He was given a popular decision.

Melvin Washington avenged a previous beating he received at the hands of Bill Lafferty by left-jabbing his way to a 3-0 decision over the St. Mary's A. C. boxer in the sixth bout on the program. Washington left-handed Lafferty all over the ring and walked off with the verdict and a big hand from the fans.

Richardson Stops Braithwaite

Roy Richardson of Frostburg, knocked out Billy Braithwaite, D. A.C. representative, in 1:54 of the third round of their match. Billy went down after taking a hard punch on the "button" in the first round and was saved by the bell. He was floored for nine in the second round and in the final heat went down for the full count.

"Sonny" Lafferty hit "Buzzy" Welch so hard in the first round that the latter took a complete somersault before coming up for air. Then "Buzzy" went on to win his third straight fight by a 2-1 margin. Welch's best punch was a right that drove Lafferty halfway across the ring in the second round.

In other bouts Junior Payne decisioned "Tiny" Deetz, Jimmie Brown took a decision over Mike Leslie and Eddie Robinette was returned the winner over Ray Shipes in one of the poorest excuses of a boxing match seen here in some time. It was booed throughout and finally stopped by Referee Kelley who declared Robinette the winner.

Kelley handled the eight bouts. The judges were K. O. Henry Yutzy and Howard "Red" Bush, the timer, John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, and announcer, Nelson W. Russler.

"Outlaw" League Tag Is Resented By Jorge Pasquel

Mexican Says Baseball In U.S. Is A Monopoly

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (AP)—Hoist the storm warnings and tighten up the reserve clause. Jorge Pasquel, the monied Mexican magnate, wants more baseball players. Price is no object.

That's what the man said today when interviewed in his thickly-carpeted hotel suite. Admittedly the power behind the throne in the hot tamale circuit, Jorge was most emphatic.

"Not a leaf or a twig falls from a tree in Mexico, but Jorge Pasquel knows about it," he said, presumably referring to baseball only.

"I thought you no longer were the head man in Mexican baseball," remarked a reporter who had read that one Alejandro Aguilar Reyes had been named Mexican commissioner.

Lost $250,000 In 1947

"Last year, I did not have much time for baseball. I was busy buying a newspaper. Now I am going to get some players. I will organize the league in the spring. Then the commissioner will run it. This year we will have eight teams, not six like last year when we lost a million pesos ($250,000). Too many rainy nights."

Pasquel is a Hollywood version of a monied Mexican. Long, slanting sideburns, and a clipped mustache are the most striking features of this visitor who wears an expensive looking ring, pearl tie pin and jeweled cuff links. His companion on the current trip is Miguel Aleman, Jr., son of the Mexican president.

Recent peace talks between Commissioner Reyes and Water Mulbry, secretary to Commissioner A. B. Chandler were dismissed by Jorge as inconsequential.

"If Chandler wants to do anything" he said, his eyes snapping to attention, "he must talk to me, personally. Nothing can be done by a tourist."

Resents "Outlaw" Tag

"Outlaw," he sizzled. "Who says outlaw? What international board decides that? Bah, outlaw. I say your baseball is a monopoly. How about the people in California. They try to get into your big leagues and pou say no. Why? Are they outlaws, too?"

"Next week I go to Cuba. There I will sign players. And I will get all the good players, too. I have to talk with Max Lanier, Freddy Martin, Sal Maglie and the others. I don't care what they are, American, Cuban, Mexican. If they want to play baseball, and not just have a good time, I will pay them."

"In 1945 they said we'd last two months. Well we're still going and we expect to continue, outlaw! outlaw! How can they call us that?"

TERESHINSKI, WILDE COME TO TERMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Washington Redskins announced today that end Joe Tereshinski and halfback George Wilde have signed 1948 contracts.

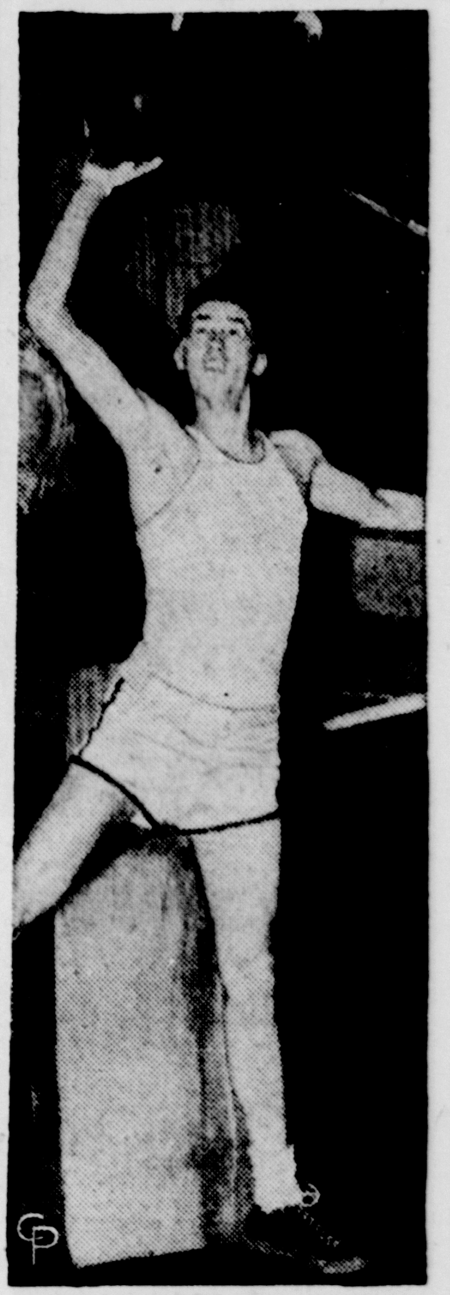
Tereshinski, former Georgia University star, is six feet, two inches tall, tips the scales at 205 pounds, and played in 11 games for the Redskins last year.

Wilde, six-foot, one-and-one-half inch, 193-pounder played in nine of the Redskin games. Each scored one touchdown last year.

Serini Turns Pro

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 26 (AP) — Wash Serini, for four years a regular tackle on the Kentucky football team, has joined the pro ranks. Serini signed a contract with the Chicago Bears Sunday.

IT'S A KNOCKOUT—Billy Braithwaite, Diamond A. C. 118-pounder is shown on the canvas of the State Armory ring last night after he was knocked out by Roy Richardson, 120, of the Century A. C., of Frostburg, in the third and final round of the sixth bout on the Royale A. C. amateur card. It was Billy's third trip to the floor. The bell saved him in the first and he took a nine count after being dropped in the second. James E. Kelley, Jr., referee, is shown on the right.



SETS RECORD—George Mikan, the elongated former DePaul star, already has tied the National Basketball League scoring mark at 632 points and is certain to break it. Mikan compiled a total in 31 games while the former record holder, Al Cervi, made 632 points in 44 games. Mikan plays with the Minneapolis Lakers, who have won 23 games.

Touchdown Club Declares Miller Honest, Sincere

Eddie Says His Remarks Merely Analyzed Club

HAMILTON, O., Jan. 26 (AP)—Eddie Miller, Cincinnati Reds' shortstop, attended a quarterback club meeting for the second time in two weeks today and declared he hadn't "lost any sleep" over the furor caused by certain statements criticizing the team he made in a talk before the club Jan. 13.

"No one has to feel sorry for me," Miller said today, adding: "I'm over 21."

The veteran infielder began a short talk by declaring "I'm not going to apologize" for earlier critical remarks, which included a statement he believed the 1948 Reds "will be lucky to battle for a tie for last place" in the National League since management is depending on promising youngsters instead of seasoned veterans.

"I would like to make clear," he continued, "that none of my statements was meant to criticize Johnny Neun (the team manager)." In the other talk, he was quoted as saying he preferred the defensive strategy of former Manager Bill McKechnie to Neun's more aggressive tactics.

Miller also declared today that he had "no intentions of criticizing ballplayers personally" in the other talk "but was merely analyzing the ball club as I saw it."

He told the club two weeks ago that he didn't think Frankie Baumholtz was a good outfielder and he doubted if Grady Hatton, third baseman the last two seasons, would make the grade in the outfield, where Manager Neun plans to switch him in spring training.

After today's talk, the club adopted a resolution which declared members believed "Eddie Miller a good sport" and an honest, sincere ballplayer.

All coaches guiding teams in the United States Hockey League once were connected with the American Hockey League.

Tax Claim Filed Against Manager Of Joe Louis

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP)—An unpaid federal income tax claim of $40,389.50 against Marshall D. Miles, manager of heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, has been filed in U. S. Federal Court here, according to Internal Revenue Collector George T. Mc Gowan.

Mc Gowan said Saturday tax liens totaling $110,093.18 were filed against Miles; his brother, Percy; Fred Perry, and Walter Marshall, all widely known in sport circles here. In each case the lien states the claim is for additional taxes due from income received from 1943 through 1945, Mc Gowan added.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 26—(AP)—Duquesne University, unbeaten in 12 previous starts, went down before the "13" jinx and Texas Wesleyan by a score of 57-53 in a game that was followed by a near riot tonight at The Gardens.

The trouble started when an unidentified man yelled an insult at Duquesne Guard John Barry, a World War veteran who was playing despite an elbow injury that required bandaging.

Vince Johnson, sports writer for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, said the words yelled were:

HANDICAPPED BY ICE and zero winds, a fireman chops his way up a life ladder to an upper floor of a Philadelphia apartment house where an 82-year-old woman lost her life in a fire that swept the building. About 100 tenants were driven into the storm. Firemen were hampered as water from their hoses froze as soon as it struck the building. All Pennsylvania was hard hit by severe blizzards. (International)

Conference Is Scheduled Today On Bus Terminal

John T. Fey, attorney for the owners of the Southern Hotel, site of the proposed new bus terminal, said last night he expects to confer today with A. F. MacDonald, vice president of the Blue Ridge Transportation Company, regarding a final contract to remove the bus terminal from its present location on Frederick Street.

The temporary extension of the city permit for use of the Frederick Street site expires January 31.

Fey appeared before the Mayor and Council yesterday to report on the terminal situation and to ask the council for some plan of action relative to providing city water for residents of Bedford Road.

Conference Proposed

Water Commissioner William J. Edwards invited Fey to meet with him and City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer to discuss the water question.

The Mayor and Council passed an amended smoke abatement ordinance which clarified the validity of the smoke engineer's contract and exempted him from Civil Service.

A contract for the new engineer, George M. Hitchcock, was read and approved. Hitchcock was present at the meeting.

Paul E. Penrod was ordered placed on the police force as a probationary officer effective January 19 on motion of Commissioner of Fire and Police William V. Keegan.

Bids On New Truck

Myers G. Light, commissioner of streets, was authorized to advertise for bids for one new truck for the engineering department.

Referred to the fire chief was an application for a permit to install three 5,000 gallon or one 10,000 gallons fuel oil tank at 317 Henderson Avenue by the Cement Products Company.

A license, with the approval of Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn, was granted the Queen City Motors to buy and sell used cars at 140 Henderson Street.

The Mayor and Acting City Clerk Arthur B. Gibson were authorized to execute the deed for Lots Nos. 2 and 3 in Block 6 of the Ridgedale Addition to Robert W. Vandegrift and Sara O. Vandegrift upon payment of $120.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26—(INS)—John Ford and Merian C. Cooper are releasing their next Argosy movie, "The Three Godfathers," through M-G-M.

Louella Parsons

John, almost more than any director I know, keeps his same actor pals year after year. For instance, John Wayne, who is so good in "The War Party" (now called "Fort Apache"), is one of the three godfathers in Peter B. Kyne's well remembered story. Pedro Armendariz is another godfather, and the third will soon be selected.

How about John Agar, Shirley Temple's good looking husband, for the third? He's also a John Ford discovery, making his debut in "Fort Apache."

Shelley Winters, who followed Celeste Holm into "Oklahoma" on the stage—now follows her to the 20th Century-Fox lot. If the studio does as well for her as it has for Celeste, she's on her way to the top.

The Holm girl is almost a cinch to be nominated for a supporting "Oscar" for her work in "Gentleman's Agreement" and she deserves it.

Shelley recently completed "A Double Life" with Ronald Colman here at U-I and the role she'll do at 20th is somewhat similar—a hard boiled proprietress of a Swedish bath who tries to frame Richard Conte for a murder he didn't commit.

John Farrow and Carl Lesterman are determined to bring the life of Christ to the screen under the title of "Son Of Man." They are backed by some important banking interests and church help. This would be a great picture for the entire world.

They plan to emphasize the peace-on-earth message and it will be a 100 per cent religious story with no modern angles.

The difficult part is getting the right interpretation of the Christ—a stumbling block that has held up production on "The Robe."

Maureen O'Hara, who has long been denied the chance to sing, gets the chance in "The Long Denial" which makes the Irish miss very happy.

This is the Vicki Baum story she is slated for at RKO with Melvin Douglas, only when Miss Baum wrote it the title was "Mortgage On Life." The heroine is a radio singer who loses her voice but before this bad luck sets in, Maureen gets a chance to sing a couple of numbers.

Arriving in our town tomorrow is Hope Emerson, who is heading for 20th Century-Fox for a role in "The Chair For Martin Rome."

Miss Emerson, who is described as a female Laird Cregar, plays a menacing character. She was discovered by 20th when she played in the musical version of "Street Scene."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

There's a report that Metro and Louis De Rochmont are about to close a deal. He made "The House On 92nd Street."

Nancy Walker's new romance is Howard Long, who is in her show, "Look Ma, I'm Dancing."

Louis Sobol, who just lost his wife, Leah, to whom he was devoted, is coming to California with his daughter and son-in-law. He'll rest here and recuperate from the long seige of his wife's illness and death.

From Italy comes word that Gregory Ratoff has had several heart attacks.

I also hear from Rome that Orson Welles has been seeing a lot of Margot Graham. That's a team. Well, Margot is a very rich girl.

Evelyn Knight has a new romance—Jack Runyon.

I can't bear it! Roy Rogers has grown a mustache! Has marriage done that to the cowboy?

Heaven forbid! Just heard that Bo Roos has a telephone in his car. He can have it, I don't want it—rings too much for me at home.

Governor Jimmy Davis of Louisiana is arriving in town to make a deal for another movie at Monogram.

WARNING!
The Gas supply is critical

PROLONGED cold weather has doubled the demand for natural gas.

Gas pipe lines—long taxed to capacity—are now seriously overburdened as a result of the present cold wave. Gas pressures in the lines are now running dangerously low in this area.

We have already drastically curtailed industrial consumption.

This is not enough. It is vitally necessary that domestic users cooperate by using less gas.

If everyone follows the instructions for saving fuel that are outlined in this advertisement . . . it will help prevent undue hardship.

Your complete cooperation throughout this emergency will be greatly appreciated and we again assure you that your gas company is doing everything possible to increase the gas supply available to you and your neighbors.

Everyone Must Help Save this Precious Fuel! Here's How!

1. Don't use your gas range to heat the kitchen.
2. If you heat with gas set your thermostat at 65°—still lower at night.
3. Shut off rooms not in use, particularly attics and second floor bedrooms. Keep bedroom doors closed at night, place a rug at bottom of door.
4. Don't use gas room heaters to supplement your furnace.
5. Use hot water sparingly. Postpone all laundering and bathing. Don't wash dishes or shave in running hot water. Keep hot water thermostat set at a minimum.

While Gas is Critical use it Sparingly!

WARNING!
The Gas supply is critical
PROLONGED cold weather has doubled the demand for natural gas.
Gas pipe lines—long taxed to capacity—are now seriously overburdened as a result of the present cold wave. Gas pressures in the lines are now running dangerously low in this area.
We have already drastically curtailed industrial consumption.
This is not enough. It is vitally necessary that domestic users cooperate by using less gas.
If everyone follows the instructions for saving fuel that are outlined in this advertisement . . . it will help prevent undue hardship.
Your complete cooperation throughout this emergency will be greatly appreciated and we again assure you that your gas company is doing everything possible to increase the gas supply available to you and your neighbors.
Everyone Must Help Save this Precious Fuel! Here's How!
1. Don't use your gas range to heat the kitchen.
2. If you heat with gas set your thermostat at 65°—still lower at night.
3. Shut off rooms not in use, particularly attics and second floor bedrooms. Keep bedroom doors closed at night, place a rug at bottom of door.
4. Don't use gas room heaters to supplement your furnace.
5. Use hot water sparingly. Postpone all laundering and bathing. Don't wash dishes or shave in running hot water. Keep hot water thermostat set at a minimum.
While Gas is Critical use it Sparingly!

Frostburg Fire Department To Buy New Truck

To Trade In One Bought In 1928

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG — The Frostburg Fire Department will hold an important meeting tonight to discuss the purchase of a new fire truck. A representative of Ahrens - Fox Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, was here over the weekend acquainting members of the department with important new features of modern fire fighting equipment.

John D. Keller, president of the fire department, stated that the members have definitely decided that an Ahrens-Fox is the type they want. It is planned to trade in the Studebaker - Prospect truck, which the department purchased in May, 1928 at a cost of $6,000.

The department has two other trucks, in addition to the Studebaker-Prospect, the oldest being an Ahren-Fox, which was purchased in May, 1922 at a cost of $12,000 and an American-LaFrance, which was purchased in November, 1940, at a cost of $10,900.

The next machine to be traded in, according to a member of the department, will the Ahrens-Fox, which has been in use nearly 26 years. This machine, although obsolete in many respects, is the one most used by the department and has always been a favorite of many of the active members of the department.

After this machine is finally disposed of the department has decided on a plan to trade in their trucks every 10 years, which means that the big hook and ladder truck purchased in 1940 will be disposed of in 1950.

The department will hold another important meeting this week on Thursday evening, when Curtis Larrimore, of the University of Maryland, an instructor in the fire extension service of the university, will conduct the fire extension instruction, which is usually given Friday evening of each week under direction of local instructors.

The classes in modern fighting methods was organized by the Frostburg firemen several months ago are attended by many of the active members of the department each week. The course is open to all members wishing to secure knowledge relative to the many new methods being developed by the University of Maryland.

For the purpose of informing young students of the equipment used at the present time to safeguard the homes of the community, Miss Margaret Jones, member of the faculty of the Elementary School of State Teachers' College, has arranged a visit to the central station when the pupils of her room will inspect the fire fighting equipment and be given information about the work of the department.

Coleman Replies

On November 19 the general membership accepted a recommendation of the Executive Committee and ordered the proper officers to sign the affidavits, Aldridge said.

"It was assumed all would sign immediately," related Aldridge.

There was no general meeting in December and the subject was brought by at a session last Wednesday. Aldridge said that at first it was believed the four top officers—president, vice president, business manager, and recording secretary—should sign.

Space For Three Names

"When copies of the blank were received it was discovered there was space for only three signatures," said Aldridge. "This meant that the vice president would not have to sign as our constitution ranks the other three as top officers."

"The affidavits were given to Coleman, Barley and Thomas. Thomas signed his and prepared the necessary financial statement as required by the Taft-Hartley Law and between November 19 and December 16 he twice asked the other two officers to sign their affidavits and turn them over to him so that they could be mailed. Thomas did not and has not received the affidavits from the others" Aldridge continued.

At Wednesday's membership meeting, Aldridge said William E. Meagher, former president, asked why the order of the membership had not been carried out. According to Aldridge, Meagher said that all other members of the Executive Board were prepared to sign if necessary.

Coleman, Aldridge asserted, was asked specifically why he had not signed and refused to answer and "wanted to adjourn the meeting."

Aldridge quoted Barley as saying: "Do you want me to put my neck in a noose?"

Brought Protest

Barley's statement reportedly brought forth a great wave of protest on the part of members and then Coleman "adjourned the meeting and walked off the platform."

Aldridge said Earl Snyder, vice president, spoke against signing at the November 19 meeting but said nothing Wednesday and to his knowledge has not refused to sign.

Unless the law is complied with Local 1874 will not be eligible to call upon the National Labor Relations Board and will be denied the services of a conciliator in the event of negotiations, Aldridge said.

"The national officers have complied. With some of the local officers not signing it means any NLRB action we desire will have to be taken in the name of the national," Aldridge stated.

"For instance the local is going to ask for a union shop election to be conducted at the plant of the Potomac Worsted Spinning Mill plant in Keyser. Instead of being in the name of Local 1874, the action will have to be taken by the national," he continued.

Aldridge Will Sign

Asked if he is prepared to sign in the event he is elected president, Aldridge said:

"I will sign and so will all the others running on our slate."

effort to determine the exact need, as closely as possible. Those present agreed their organizations will help handle the task.

The Cumberland Committee, Mayor Post named yesterday included Allender, Reinhart and William R. Spangler, of J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, Amvets and the Maryland Veterans Employment Commission.

Others present at the meeting included Ray F. Whitehair, Henry Hart Post No. 1, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Dailey C. Barnes, Washington Chapter No. 2, Disabled Veterans of America; S. J. Sions, LaVale Post No. 219 American Legion; James H. White, Millar Post No. 219, American Legion; and George C. S. Haven, Corriganville Post No. 190, American Legion.

Lazzati said the commission would like to have the results of the survey within a month if possible.

He and Finan appeared before the Mayor and City Council yesterday and sought city assistance in making the survey. Mayor Post then named the committee to assist. Finan told the Council that the housing problem is no longer just a veterans problem, but a public problem. The housing commission, he said, believes that buying a house today is beyond the reach of many men, and a low rental housing project might be the answer. Under such a plan, the government would rent homes at a low cost with the home being opened for sale later.

Finan and Lazzati will appear before the County Commissioners this morning to engage their assistance.

had told her to place the blame on Long.

She also said that Long had placed one hand over her mouth at the time of the assault and had told her not to "tell anyone." She admitted she did not yell afterwards and that Long was in the home for 15 minutes afterwards. He also continued his visits later on, she admitted, but no further incidents took place.

Jurors Are Summoned

Ingram was assisted in the prosecution by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris of this county. Defense counsel were Martin V. Bostetter and T. Audrey Kemp, both of Hagerstown.

Due to the large number of challenges the petit jurors available were exhausted and deputy sheriffs were sent to downtown Cumberland to subpoena citizens for jury duty. Finally a full panel was secured after the deputies had brought several carloads of men to the Court House. The case was delayed about an hour.

Dr. Hawkins, who has been going to the 640-acre tract of land in a swamp near Stuttgart for the past 25 years, returned January 1 after three weeks of duck hunting. The limit was four ducks a day and each hunter was allowed to ship but 12 ducks a week.

Verdict Of Not Guilty Returned In Keyser Moose Slot Machine Case

Jury Deliberates Only 22 Minutes

By JUNE B. ROLLEY

KEYSER — A verdict of "not guilty" was returned by the jury in the case of the State vs Page Entler, who was indicted last July for the operation of a gambling device in the Keyser Moose Hall. The jury deliberated only 22 minutes before returning the verdict.

Defense witness A. A. Hood, secretary of the Moose Lodge, testified that only members of the Moose are eligible to enter the Moose club or to share any of the amusements. Hood demonstrated the operation of the machine fully to the jury.

Also testifying for the defense was Maxwell Ellifritz and James T. Morris, both members of the Moose Lodge. Both men said that they had played the machine many times but at no time had they ever won any money from the machine or had they ever collected any money from the Moose as a pay-off, and that they had never seen anyone else win or collect any money as a result of playing the machine.

Past Governor Testifies

Mr. Morris, a civil engineer for the West Virginia State Roads Commission, and a past governor of the L.O.O.M. of Keyser, said that all times when he had played the machine there had been a poster on the machine stating that the proceeds would be used for charity and Moose activities.

In cross examination of Mr. Morris by Prosecuting Attorney Vernon E. Rankin, Mr. Morris pointed out that he played the machine two days prior to the date it was seized and that there was no place on the machine, to his knowledge, where the pay-off would come from.

In rebuttal, Trooper Robert Shell, of the Franklin detachment; E. W. Miller, of the West Virginia State Liquor Control Board, and James A. Dixon, sheriff of Mineral county, who were called to the stand earlier as state witnesses and had testified that they had taken part in the raid, were recalled to the stand. Shell and Miller both stated that on the night of July 7, when the raid took place, that there was not a poster on the machine indicating the proceeds would be used for charity.

Sheriff Dixon testified in the rebuttal that to his knowledge the machine could be adjusted to payoff and he explained in detail to the jury how such adjustments could be made.

Earlier in the trial, defense attorneys H. G. Shores and Lester Reynolds, argued that the time that elapsed between the registration of the complaint for the warrant and the date of issuance of the search warrant was too long. They explained that the complaint was registered on a blank day in May and the warrant was dated July 7, the day of the raid. Their objection to this point was overruled by Judge Ernest A. See.

Ask Return Of Machine

Corporal R. R. Karickhoff, of the Keyser detachment, as a state witness testified that he entered the Moose Club about 30 minutes or longer after the other officers had been there and that at the time he was there Paige Entler was the only person in the club rooms. He said he helped to remove the machine from the club room and said that his own personal opinion of the machine was that it was a gambling device.

In presenting the argument to the jury, Prosecuting Attorney Rankin asked for a verdict of "guilty" and stated that every evidence needed to convict Mr. Entler had been given. He said that if the machine was kept in the club room, exhibited and operated for a gaming device that no verdict other than "guilty" could be returned.

Attorney, Shores and Reynolds asked for a verdict of "not guilty" in presenting their argument to the jury. Shores pointed out that no testimony had been given to prove that there had ever been a payoff from the machine but that testimonies had been given to prove that the machine was for amusement only and for charity donations.

Upon announcement of the verdict by Paul W. Dayton, clerk of the circuit court, defense Attorney Shores asked that the machine be returned to the Moose Club room on Armstrong Street. Judge See instructed Shores to file a petition for the return of the machine and that the necessary proceedings would follow. Upon this instruction from Judge See, Secretary Hood, through Attorney Shores, offered all money in the machine at the present time as a contribution to the March of Dimes. Judge See refused, again instructing Attorney Shores to file a petition.

Frostburg Fire Department To Buy New Truck

To Trade In One Bought In 1928

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG — The Frostburg Fire Department will hold an important meeting tonight to discuss the purchase of a new fire truck. A representative of Ahrens - Fox Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, was here over the weekend acquainting members of the department with important new features of modern fire fighting equipment.

John D. Keller, president of the fire department, stated that the members have definitely decided that an Ahrens-Fox is the type they want. It is planned to trade in the Studebaker - Prospect truck, which the department purchased in May, 1928 at a cost of $6,000.

The department has two other trucks, in addition to the Studebaker-Prospect, the oldest being an Ahren-Fox, which was purchased in May, 1922 at a cost of $12,000 and an American-LaFrance, which was purchased in November, 1940, at a cost of $10,900.

The next machine to be traded in, according to a member of the department, will the Ahrens-Fox, which has been in use nearly 26 years. This machine, although obsolete in many respects, is the one most used by the department and has always been a favorite of many of the active members of the department.

After this machine is finally disposed of the department has decided on a plan to trade in their trucks every 10 years, which means that the big hook and ladder truck purchased in 1940 will be disposed of in 1950.

The department will hold another important meeting this week on Thursday evening, when Curtis Larrimore, of the University of Maryland, an instructor in the fire extension service of the university, will conduct the fire extension instruction, which is usually given Friday evening of each week under direction of local instructors.

The classes in modern fighting methods was organized by the Frostburg firemen several months ago are attended by many of the active members of the department each week. The course is open to all members wishing to secure knowledge relative to the many new methods being developed by the University of Maryland.

For the purpose of informing young students of the equipment used at the present time to safeguard the homes of the community, Miss Margaret Jones, member of the faculty of the Elementary School of State Teachers' College, has arranged a visit to the central station when the pupils of her room will inspect the fire fighting equipment and be given information about the work of the department.

Coleman Replies

On November 19 the general membership accepted a recommendation of the Executive Committee and ordered the proper officers to sign the affidavits, Aldridge said.

"It was assumed all would sign immediately," related Aldridge.

There was no general meeting in December and the subject was brought by at a session last Wednesday. Aldridge said that at first it was believed the four top officers —president, vice president, business manager, and recording secretary—should sign.

Space For Three Names

"When copies of the blank were received it was discovered there was space for only three signatures," said Aldridge. "This meant that the vice president would not have to sign as our constitution ranks the other three as top officers."

"The affidavits were given to Coleman, Barley and Thomas. Thomas signed his and prepared the necessary financial statement as required by the Taft-Hartley Law and between November 19 and December 16 he twice asked the other two officers to sign their affidavits and turn them over to him so that they could be mailed. Thomas did not and has not received the affidavits from the others" Aldridge continued.

At Wednesday's membership meeting, Aldridge said William E. Meagher, former president, asked why the order of the membership had not been carried out. According to Aldridge, Meagher said that all other members of the Executive Board were prepared to sign if necessary.

Coleman, Aldridge asserted, was asked specifically why he had not signed and refused to answer and "wanted to adjourn the meeting."

Aldridge quoted Barley as saying: "Do you want me to put my neck in a noose?"

Brought Protest

Barley's statement reportedly brought forth a great wave of protest on the part of members and then Coleman "adjourned the meeting and walked off the platform."

Aldridge said Earl Snyder, vice president, spoke against signing at the November 19 meeting but said nothing Wednesday and to his knowledge has not refused to sign.

Unless the law is complied with Local 1874 will not be eligible to call upon the National Labor Relations Board and will be denied the services of a conciliator in the event of negotiations, Aldridge said.

"The national officers have complied. With some of the local officers not signing it means any NLRB action we desire will have to be taken in the name of the national," Aldridge stated.

"For instance the local is going to ask for a union shop election to be conducted at the plant of the Potomac Worsted Spinning Mill plant in Keyser. Instead of being in the name of Local 1874, the action will have to be taken by the national," he continued.

Aldridge Will Sign

Asked if he is prepared to sign in the event he is elected president, Aldridge said:

"I will sign and so will all the others running on our slate."

effort to determine the exact need, as closely as possible. Those present agreed their organizations will help handle the task.

Others present at the meeting included Ray F. Whitehair, Henry Hart Post No. 1, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Dailey C. Barnes, Washington Chapter No. 2, Disabled Veterans of America; S. J. Sions, LaVale Post No. 219 American Legion; James H. White, Millar Post No. 219, American Legion; and George C. S. Haven, Corriganville Post No. 190, American Legion.

Lazzati said the commission would like to have the results of the survey within a month if possible.

He and Finan appeared before the Mayor and City Council yesterday and sought city assistance in making the survey. Mayor Post then named the committee to assist. Finan told the Council that the housing problem is no longer just a veterans problem, but a public problem. The housing commission, he said, believes that buying a house today is beyond the reach of many men, and a low rental housing project might be the answer. Under such a plan, the government would rent homes at a low cost with the home being opened for sale later.

Finan and Lazzati will appear before the County Commissioners this morning to engage their assistance.

Finally a full panel was secured after the deputies had brought several carloads of men to the Court House. The case was delayed about an hour.

Dr. Hawkins, who has been going to the 640-acre tract of land in a swamp near Stuttgart for the past 25 years, returned January 1 after three weeks of duck hunting. The limit was four ducks a day and each hunter was allowed to ship but 12 ducks a week.

Defense witness A. A. Hood, secretary of the Moose Lodge, testified that only members of the Moose are eligible to enter the Moose club or to share any of the amusements. Hood demonstrated the operation of the machine fully to the jury.

Also testifying for the defense was Maxwell Ellifritz and James T. Morris, both members of the Moose Lodge. Both men said that they had played the machine many times but at no time had they ever won any money from the machine or had they ever collected any money from the Moose as a pay-off, and that they had never seen anyone else win or collect any money as a result of playing the machine.

Past Governor Testifies

Mr. Morris, a civil engineer for the West Virginia State Roads Commission, and a past governor of the L.O.O.M. of Keyser, said that all times when he had played the machine there had been a poster on the machine stating that the proceeds would be used for charity and Moose activities.

In cross examination of Mr. Morris by Prosecuting Attorney Vernon E. Rankin, Mr. Morris pointed out that he played the machine two days prior to the date it was seized and that there was no place on the machine, to his knowledge, where the pay-off would come from.

In rebuttal, Trooper Robert Shell, of the Franklin detachment; E. W. Miller, of the West Virginia State Liquor Control Board, and James A. Dixon, sheriff of Mineral county, who were called to the stand earlier as state witnesses and had testified that they had taken part in the raid, were recalled to the stand. Shell and Miller both stated that on the night of July 7, when the raid took place, that there was not a poster on the machine indicating the proceeds would be used for charity.

Sheriff Dixon testified in the rebuttal that to his knowledge the machine could be adjusted to payoff and he explained in detail to the jury how such adjustments could be made.

Earlier in the trial, defense attorneys H. G. Shores and Lester Reynolds, argued that the time that elapsed between the registration of the complaint for the warrant and the date of issuance of the search warrant was too long. They explained that the complaint was registered on a blank day in May and the warrant was dated July 7, the day of the raid. Their objection to this point was overruled by Judge Ernest A. See.

Ask Return Of Machine

Corporal R. R. Karickhoff, of the Keyser detachment, as a state witness testified that he entered the Moose Club about 30 minutes or longer after the other officers had been there and that at the time he was there Paige Entler was the only person in the club rooms. He said he helped to remove the machine from the club room and said that his own personal opinion of the machine was that it was a gambling device.

In presenting the argument to the jury, Prosecuting Attorney Rankin asked for a verdict of "guilty" and stated that every evidence needed to convict Mr. Entler had been given. He said that if the machine was kept in the club room, exhibited and operated for a gaming device that no verdict other than "guilty" could be returned.

Attorney Shores and Reynolds asked for a verdict of "not guilty" in presenting their argument to the jury. Shores pointed out that no testimony had been given to prove that there had ever been a payoff from the machine but that testimonies had been given to prove that the machine was for amusement only and for charity donations.

Upon announcement of the verdict by Paul W. Dayton, clerk of the circuit court, defense Attorney Shores asked that the machine be returned to the Moose Club room on Armstrong Street. Judge See instructed Shores to file a petition for the return of the machine and that the necessary proceedings would follow. Upon this instruction from Judge See, Secretary Hood, through Attorney Shores, offered all money in the machine at the present time as a contribution to the March of Dimes. Judge See refused, again instructing Attorney Shores to file a petition.

Tax Program And Rent Control To Be Aired

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—The two forums on two networks as displayed in Tuesday night broadcasting are taking up two subjects now before congress.

One of the topics, or questions is "Should the President's Tax plan Be Adopted" which will come before America's Town Meeting at 8:30 over ABC. In supporting the affirmative there will be Rep. Albert Gore of Tennessee, and Leon H. Keyserling, lawyer. On the other side are to be Sen. Harry P. Cain of Washington and Samuel J. Lasser, tax collector.

Then a little later at 10 American Forum on MBS is to turn to "Should Rent Control Be Continued?" To carry on the discussion there will be Sen. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Rep. J. F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Arthur W. Binns and Herbert U. Nelson.

Still another talks time, the CBS 10:30 Open Hearing, seldom makes an announcement of his subject or speakers far enough ahead of time to make advanced listing available. Often the announcements are not ready until the day of the broadcast.

"The Great Impersonation" is on the docket for studio's One Hour Drama of CBS at 9:30, with the lead being played by a person the network does not hesitate in describing as "a well known actor to be announced."

The Boston Symphony of ABC will be back home in Boston for its 9:30 concert hour. . . . Among We the People guests at 9 on CBS will be Boris Karloff, or at least it is so announced.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The Overcrowded Robin Hood Profession

John Crosby

Mary Wesley, Boston Blackie's girl friend, was cantering along the other day (on a horse, of course), feeling simply splendid. "I'm very happy," she remarked to Boston Blackie, who was cantering along beside her (on a horse, of course). "Just think, it's been three days since you worked on a murder case." I pass this information along to the economist, as a small but significant trend. If the private eyes of radio are going on a thirty-two-hourweek, it won't be long before Reuther will be demanding the same thing.

Boston Blackie is the featured crime buster on a radio program of the same name on WOR (8:30 p. m. E.S.T. Wednesdays) and transcribed on other stations throughout the country. (In New York the program is followed immediately by the adventures of Billy Rose, which in many respects are even more extraordinary than those of Boston Blackie.) It's perhaps stretching a point to call Blackie a private detective. It's difficult to tell just what he is. He solves crimes apparently more for the fun of it than for sordid cash. To my knowledge he has no visible means of support.

He's just another Robin Hood in the Sherwood Forest of radio which is so cluttered up with these benevolent bandits that the poor have all become rich and the rich have all become poor. It's created quite a social upheaval. In fact, the Robin Hoods have been forced to rob the former poor and to restore the wealth to the former rich to keep the game going. It's a vicious circle.

• — • — •

Boston Blackie is one of the busiest of these Robin Hoods, the three-day vacation noted above being extremely unusual. In most weeks he has at least five or six murders, robberies or similar malefactions to contend with. He's a curious character in a lot of ways. In the first place—that name. If he has any other name, it's been lost in the mists of antiquity. In the second place, his position in society. He's always on the side of the law and order but is viewed with great suspicion by the organized forces of law and order, particularly by Inspector Faraday.

Whenever the inspector has pronounced a case closed to his satisfaction, the following dialogue is likely to ensue:

"Right, Inspector Faraday," says the sergeant.

"Wrong, Inspector Faraday," says Boston Blackie, emerging from a nearby drain pipe. Invariably, Blackie is right and the inspector is wrong.

Boston Blackie has one other distinction which is shared by all the other curiously named private detectives—the Falcon, the Shadow, the Fat Man, the Thin Man, people like that. Every one knows them. When Boston Blackie steps out of the closet and identifies himself, the occupants of the room always blanche or squeal with glee, depending on which side of villainy they operate. I don't know how Boston Blackie got so well known, but it is very convenient for the writers. They never have to explain Blackie; they just have to get him into that closet.

Blackie is intelligent, courageous, fast on his feet, deadly with his fists, good humored, good looking, upright and well laundered. But he has one weakness, puns. On a recent occasion, he announced gayly: "I am going to find the killer that came into this riding academy and started horsing around." As if that weren't bad enough, he observed a little later in the same program: "Let's go down to the riding academy and see if we can get some horse sense."

• — • — •

The role Boston Blackie has been played for years by Dick Kollmar, an excellent radio actor. Every morning, Boston Blackie changes into a dressing gown and becomes simple Dick Kollmar, the husband of Dorothy Kilgallen on a breakfast program in New York City.

The metamorphosis is astounding. Boston Blackie is in all things infallible; Dick, of Dorothy and Dick, has great difficulty even mastering the English language.

The man who is forced constantly to correst Inspector Faraday is in turn being incessantly corrected by his wife on such matters as grammar, pronunciation and literary references of any sort. The strain on Mr. Kollmar's personality of being two such different people is not visible externally but you can't tell what is going on under the surface. He may split in half any day now.

Albert Gore of Tennessee, and Leon H. Keyserling, lawyer. On the other side are to be Sen. Harry P. Cain of Washington and Samuel J. Lasser, tax collector.

Then a little later at 10 American Forum on MBS is to turn to "Should Rent Control Be Continued?" To carry on the discussion there will be Sen. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Rep. J. F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Arthur W. Binns and Herbert U. Nelson.

Still another talks time, the CBS 10:30 Open Hearing, seldom makes an announcement of his subject or speakers far enough ahead of time to make advanced listing available. Often the announcements are not ready until the day of the broadcast.

"The Great Impersonation" is on the docket for studio's One Hour Drama of CBS at 9:30, with the lead being played by a person the network does not hesitate in describing as "a well known actor to be announced."

The Boston Symphony of ABC will be back home in Boston for its 9:30 concert hour. . . . Among We the People guests at 9 on CBS will be Boris Karloff, or at least it is so announced.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The Overcrowded Robin Hood Profession

John Crosby

Mary Wesley, Boston Blackie's girl friend, was cantering along the other day (on a horse, of course), feeling simply splendid. "I'm very happy," she remarked to Boston Blackie, who was cantering along beside her (on a horse, of course). "Just think, it's been three days since you worked on a murder case." I pass this information along to the economist, as a small but significant trend. If the private eyes of radio are going on a thirty-two-hour week, it won't be long before Reuther will be demanding the same thing.

Boston Blackie is the featured crime buster on a radio program of the same name on WOR (8:30 p. m. E.S.T. Wednesdays) and transcribed on other stations throughout the country. (In New York the program is followed immediately by the adventures of Billy Rose, which in many respects are even more extraordinary than those of Boston Blackie.) It's perhaps stretching a point to call Blackie a private detective. It's difficult to tell just what he is. He solves crimes apparently more for the fun of it than for sordid cash. To my knowledge he has no visible means of support.

He's just another Robin Hood in the Sherwood Forest of radio which is so cluttered up with these benevolent bandits that the poor have all become rich and the rich have all become poor. It's created quite a social upheaval. In fact, the Robin Hoods have been forced to rob the former poor and to restore the wealth to the former rich to keep the game going. It's a vicious circle.

• — • — •

Boston Blackie is one of the busiest of these Robin Hoods, the three-day vacation noted above being extremely unusual. In most weeks he has at least five or six murders, robberies or similar malefactions to contend with. He's a curious character in a lot of ways. In the first place—that name. If he has any other name, it's been lost in the mists of antiquity. In the second place, his position in society. He's always on the side of the law and order but is viewed with great suspicion by the organized forces of law and order, particularly by Inspector Faraday.

Whenever the inspector has pronounced a case closed to his satisfaction, the following dialogue is likely to ensue:

"Right, Inspector Faraday," says the sergeant.

Boston Blackie has one other distinction which is shared by all the other curiously named private detectives—the Falcon, the Shadow, the Fat Man, the Thin Man, people like that. Every one knows them. When Boston Blackie steps out of the closet and identifies himself, the occupants of the room always blanche or squeal with glee, depending on which side of villainy they operate. I don't know how Boston Blackie got so well known, but it is very convenient for the writers. They never have to explain Blackie; they just have to get him into that closet.

Blackie is intelligent, courageous, fast on his feet, deadly with his fists, good humored, good looking, upright and well laundered. But he has one weakness, puns. On a recent occasion, he announced gayly: "I am going to find the killer that came into this riding academy and started horsing around." As if that weren't bad enough, he observed a little later in the same program: "Let's go down to the riding academy and see if we can get some horse sense."

• — • — •

The role Boston Blackie has been played for years by Dick Kollmar, an excellent radio actor. Every morning, Boston Blackie changes into a dressing gown and becomes simple Dick Kollmar, the husband of Dorothy Kilgallen on a breakfast program in New York City.

The metamorphosis is astounding. Boston Blackie is in all things infallible; Dick, of Dorothy and Dick, has great difficulty even mastering the English language.

The man who is forced constantly to correst Inspector Faraday is in turn being incessantly corrected by his wife on such matters as grammar, pronunciation and literary references of any sort. The strain on Mr. Kollmar's personality of being two such different people is not visible externally but you can't tell what is going on under the surface. He may split in half any day now.

In memory of my beloved wife, Helen O. Schaver, who died three years ago today, January 27, 1945.

We shared our joys and sorrows
Through many happy years;
From love my anquish borrows
Some comfort for my tears—
Faith, through the long Tomorrows,
That our reunion nears.

Sadly missed by her HUSBAND.

In loving memory of our beloved daughter, Sandra Sue Schaver, who died three years ago today, January 27, 1945.

And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my beloved wife, Helen O. Schaver, who died three years ago today, January 27, 1945.

We shared our joys and sorrows
Through many happy years;
From love my anquish borrows
Some comfort for my tears—
Faith, through the long Tomorrows,
That our reunion nears.

Sadly missed by her HUSBAND.

In loving memory of our beloved daughter, Sandra Sue Schaver, who died three years ago today, January 27, 1945.

Today recalls sad memories
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

Many Stock Leaders Slip In Slowest Market Proceedings In Four Months

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (AP)—Individual stocks shifted to recovery ground today although many market leaders slipped in the slowest proceedings for four months.

Gold mines bulged at the start, as they did in London following devaluation of the French franc, but most finished under the best. Scattered rails and special industrials did well. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared wnth 790,000 Friday and were a minimum for a full session since September 26.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 62.4, a bottom since last June 10. It was the narrowest market since that of January 2, of 917 issues registering, 368 fell and 307 rose.

Among the day's climbers was Atlantnc Gulf and West Indies, which added 5¾ points at 35. Ahead a point or so were J. I. Case 42¼, United States Gypsum 95½, and Standard Oil (NJ) 71.

Modest improvement was shown for Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern Railway, United States Rubber, Twentieth Century-Fox, Lowe's, Paramount Pictures, Warner Brothers, American Woolen, Montgomery Ward and Douglas Aircraft.

Allied Chemical yielded 1½ at 179½ and General Motors one at 53¼. Lesser casualties included United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Republic Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich, International Harvester, Consolidated Edison, North American, International Telephone, Anaconda, du Point, General Electric, American Tobacco "B" and Gulf Oil. Johns-Manville and Eastman Kodak emerged off three-fourths at 36¾ and five-eighths at 40⅝ respectively.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Plus People

Those who go furthest, gain the most happiness, climb the highest, and accumulate the most friends are those who give more than they ask for, more than they are paid for, in material rewards. They are the Plus People.

Plus People are forever building up a reserve. They keep giving more than they take. The elder Marshall Field, founder of the great Field fortune in Chicago, started in a modest way. He was even his own stock clerk. One day he hired a young man by the name of John G. Shedd, for something like ten dollars a week—"more after three months, if he proves himself," were the words he noted in his little memo book. Well, after Marshall Field's death, the President of this great organization was that same John G. Shedd!

Archibald Rutledge once wrote a most inspiring little book, which he called "Life's Extras." And he enumerated the very many things that came to us as extras, "without money and without price." What would you pay for a view of the brilliant heavens upon a perfect night, were it to be the only view ever to be accorded you? Yet this view and thousands of others cost nothing. The only payment asked is appreciation.

Plus People are forever on the watch for bargains in nature and in life. They are forever searching for opportunities to enrich their inner selves. They are habitual discoverers. They are pioneers; like Dr. Carver, who "wanted to know."

The employee who strives to do as little as he or she can, to "get by" with what is paid, never advances far. Sooner or later such a one is replaced with a Plus Person, constantly giving more in service than he was paid to do. Such a person is what has contributed to the great of this earth.

Plus People are forever getting, for they are forever giving. Their friends are legion. Plus People are housed with the means for simple giving, and they make a lavish use of these methods. Their kindliness, cordiality and their habit of giving of themselves attract all with whom they come in contact. Of such as these is "the Kingdom of Heaven"—here upon this troubled earth!

Fine Record Is Made Last Year By Paper Firm

New records in production, sales and earnings were established by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, which has one of its plants at Luke, for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1947, despite rising costs and material shortages, the annual report to stockholders revealed yesterday.

The report disclosed that the company's 8,600 employees received $23,481,775 in salaries and wages, an increase of 21 per cent over the $19,359,592 earned by the same number in 1946. The average hourly rate was increased 15 cents bringing the total increase since the end of the war to an average of 37 cents an hour.

The company's six plants had a year of uninterrupted operation and produced 637,542 tons of paper and paperboard, eclipsing the record 589,339 tons produced in 1946. The 1947 volume involved the production of 607,521 tons of pulp, 10.7 per cent more than in the preceding year. The report also noted a new record in the production of chemicals in 1946.

Net Sales Increase

Net sales of all products amounted to $85,989,056, as compared with $67,211,929 in 1946. After taxes and all charges, the company's earnings for the year were $10,935,424, as compared with $5,103,607 for the previous year. From these earnings the company paid $3,356,902 in dividends to approximately 4,000 stockholders and retained $6,262,026 for future needs.

David L. Luke, Jr., president, described 1947 as a "boom year, characterized by all the success—and the uncertainties—of an 'uneasy prosperity.'"

"For a business like ours, with the security of thousands of employees and the investment of hundreds of stockholders dependent upon the continuity of success," he said, "one or two boom years represent only a brief opportunity to accumulate reserves against the contingencies of the future."

Production Costs Rise

All costs of operation showed sharp rises. The greatest increase was in the cost of materials, supplies and outside services, which rose from $18,860,668 in 1946 to $25,008,821. Pulpwood costs moved from $15,236,944 in 1946 to $16,090,066. Taxes continued to be a major item, rising from $6,136,036 in 1946 to $8,327,938.

Luke reported that the company continued its postwar program for plant rehabilitation and modernization during the year, despite the fact that costs were about 30 per cent above the original estimates. He announced that the company had spent $17,500,000 for plant improvements in 1946 and 1947.

He said that because of high costs, the company plans little new construction during the coming year, particularly that would require new financing.

"New" projects are nevertheless being planned and blueprinted," he said, "against the day when the relation between earnings and costs become clearer."

In a detailed account of the company's construction program carried in the annual report, it is pointed out that the improvements are designed to increase the over-all efficiency of plants by balancing and enlarging existing facilities.

In the Charleston plant a new $6,250,000 kraft machine was installed to convert available surplus pulp into kraft paper. This pulp is made from local southern pine, which is ideal for the production of kraft grades.

The Covington plant, which has been producing all the company's kraft paper, is now able to make more white papers and specialty grades, such as food container stock, for which its pulpwood supply is better suited.

Plant and equipment at both Charleston and Covington were expanded to meet these changes and each mill is now showing a definite improvement in operations. The net increase in production capacity resulting from these changes is approximately 55,000 tons of white paper grades.

Some of the other major projects completed during the year include the conversion of two paper machines at Luke and two at Williamsburg for the production of machine coated grades of paper; the installation of an additional high pressure turbine at Williamsburg and at Covington; installation of a new high pressure boiler at Mechanicville, and completion of the mechanized wood yard at Covington.

Lessen Stream Pollution

Projects completed that will improve efficiency and at the same time lessen the pollution of streams on which company plants are located include new and additional chemical recovery facilities at the Luke, Covington, Williamsburg and Tyrone plants.

Luke said he believed the current expansion of pulp and paper facilities is rapidly narrowing the gap between supply and demand and foresaw a period of aggressive competition in the near future.

Many Stock Leaders Slip In Slowest Market Proceedings In Four Months

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (AP)—Individual stocks shifted to recovery ground today although many market leaders slipped in the slowest proceedings for four months.

Gold mines bulged at the start, as they did in London following devaluation of the French franc, but most finished under the best. Scattered rails and special industrials did well. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared wnth 790,000 Friday and were a minimum for a full session since September 26.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 62.4, a bottom since last June 10. It was the narrowest market since that of January 2, of 917 issues registering, 368 fell and 307 rose.

Among the day's climbers was Atlantnc Gulf and West Indies, which added 5¾ points at 35. Ahead a point or so were J. I. Case 42¾, United States Gypsum 95½, and Standard Oil (NJ) 71.

Modest improvement was shown for Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Great Northern Railway, United States Rubber, Twentieth Century-Fox, Lowe's, Paramount Pictures, Warner Brothers, American Woolen, Montgomery Ward and Douglas Aircraft.

Allied Chemical yielded 1½ at 179½ and General Motors one at 53¼. Lesser casualties included United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Republic Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich, International Harvester, Consolidated Edison, North American, International Telephone, Anaconda, du Point, General Electric, American Tobacco "B" and Gulf Oil. Johns-Manville and Eastman Kodak emerged off three-fourths at 36¾ and five-eighths at 40⅝ respectively.

Today's Talk

Plus People

Those who go furthest, gain the most happiness, climb the highest, and accumulate the most friends are those who give more than they ask for, more than they are paid for, in material rewards. They are the Plus People.

Plus People are forever building up a reserve. They keep giving more than they take. The elder Marshall Field, founder of the great Field fortune in Chicago, started in a modest way. He was even his own stock clerk. One day he hired a young man by the name of John G. Shedd, for something like ten dollars a week—"more after three months, if he proves himself," were the words he noted in his little memo book. Well, after Marshall Field's death, the President of this great organization was that same John G. Shedd!

Archibald Rutledge once wrote a most inspiring little book, which he called "Life's Extras." And he enumerated the very many things that came to us as extras, "without money and without price." What would you pay for a view of the brilliant heavens upon a perfect night, were it to be the only view ever to be accorded you? Yet this view and thousands of others cost nothing. The only payment asked is appreciation.

Plus People are forever on the watch for bargains in nature and in life. They are forever searching for opportunities to enrich their inner selves. They are habitual discoverers. They are pioneers; like Dr. Carver, who "wanted to know."

The employee who strives to do as little as he or she can, to "get by" with what is paid, never advances far. Sooner or later such a one is replaced with a Plus Person, constantly giving more in service than he was paid to do. Such a person is what has contributed to the great of this earth.

Plus People are forever getting, for they are forever giving. Their friends are legion. Plus People are housed with the means for simple giving, and they make a lavish use of these methods. Their kindliness, cordiality and their habit of giving of themselves attract all with whom they come in contact. Of such as these is "the Kingdom of Heaven"—here upon this troubled earth!

Fine Record Is Made Last Year By Paper Firm

New records in production, sales and earnings were established by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, which has one of its plants at Luke, for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1947, despite rising costs and material shortages, the annual report to stockholders revealed yesterday.

The report disclosed that the company's 8,600 employees received $23,481,775 in salaries and wages, an increase of 21 per cent over the $19,359,592 earned by the same number in 1946. The average hourly rate was increased 15 cents bringing the total increase since the end of the war to an average of 37 cents an hour.

The company's six plants had a year of uninterrupted operation and produced 637,542 tons of paper and paperboard, eclipsing the record 589,339 tons produced in 1946. The 1947 volume involved the production of 607,521 tons of pulp, 10.7 per cent more than in the preceding year. The report also noted a new record in the production of chemicals in 1946.

Net Sales Increase

Net sales of all products amounted to $85,989,056, as compared with $67,211,929 in 1946. After taxes and all charges, the company's earnings for the year were $10,935,424, as compared with $5,103,607 for the previous year. From these earnings the company paid $3,356,902 in dividends to approximately 4,000 stockholders and retained $6,262,026 for future needs.

David L. Luke, Jr., president, described 1947 as a "boom year, characterized by all the success—and the uncertainties—of an 'uneasy prosperity.'"

"For a business like ours, with the security of thousands of employees and the investment of hundreds of stockholders dependent upon the continuity of success," he said, "one or two boom years represent only a brief opportunity to accumulate reserves against the contingencies of the future."

Production Costs Rise

All costs of operation showed sharp rises. The greatest increase was in the cost of materials, supplies and outside services, which rose from $18,860,668 in 1946 to $25,008,821. Pulpwood costs moved from $15,236,944 in 1946 to $16,090,066. Taxes continued to be a major item, rising from $6,136,036 in 1946 to $8,327,938.

Luke reported that the company continued its postwar program for plant rehabilitation and modernization during the year, despite the fact that costs were about 30 per cent above the original estimates. He announced that the company had spent $17,500,000 for plant improvements in 1946 and 1947.

He said that because of high costs, the company plans little new construction during the coming year, particularly that would require new financing.

"New" projects are nevertheless being planned and blueprinted," he said, "against the day when the relation between earnings and costs become clearer."

In a detailed account of the company's construction program carried in the annual report, it is pointed out that the improvements are designed to increase the over-all efficiency of plants by balancing and enlarging existing facilities.

In the Charleston plant a new $6,250,000 kraft machine was installed to convert available surplus pulp into kraft paper. This pulp is made from local southern pine, which is ideal for the production of kraft grades.

The Covington plant, which has been producing all the company's kraft paper, is now able to make more white papers and specialty grades, such as food container stock, for which its pulpwood supply is better suited.

Plant and equipment at both Charleston and Covington were expanded to meet these changes and each mill is now showing a definite improvement in operations. The net increase in production capacity resulting from these changes is approximately 55,000 tons of white paper grades.

Some of the other major projects completed during the year include the conversion of two paper machines at Luke and two at Williamsburg for the production of machine coated grades of paper; the installation of an additional high pressure turbine at Williamsburg and at Covington; installation of a new high pressure boiler at Mechanicville, and completion of the mechanized wood yard at Covington.

Lessen Stream Pollution

Projects completed that will improve efficiency and at the same time lessen the pollution of streams on which company plants are located include new and additional chemical recovery facilities at the Luke, Covington, Williamsburg and Tyrone plants.

Luke said he believed the current expansion of pulp and paper facilities is rapidly narrowing the gap between supply and demand and foresaw a period of aggressive competition in the near future.

Final Port Lease Contract May Be Submitted Friday

Details Discussed In Lengthy Session

Following a three-hour session of the Municipal Airport Commission last night at City Hall, during which the proposed lease agreement for operation of the airport was discussed in detail, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said he expects to have the final draft of the lease prepared by Friday.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said a special meeting of the Mayor and Council is tentatively scheduled for Friday to pass the payroll, and that the lease may be discussed at that time.

William R. Carscaden, attorney for Mountain Air Service, Inc., the corporation title under which John DelaGrange and Fred Jenkins plan to operate the airport under the two-year lease from the city, said incorporation proceedings are expected to be completed in the near future.

Details Listed

1. The lease will take effect two weeks after it is signed.

2. When rental fees to be charged to bona fide operators who may provide various services at the port are being determined by the commission, the corporation shall be consulted. Final approval, however, shall rest with the commission and the Mayor and Council.

(Such possible services were listed as airplane sales and airplane part sales; repairs and maintenance; passenger service; rental of airplanes; student instruction; charter service; restaurant concession, or soft drink and souvenir concession.)

3. With regard to the rental agreement of $3,000 for the first year of operation, and $3,000 or five per cent of the gross income the second year, it was agreed that after the first six months the rent will be payable monthly in advance rather than quarterly.

4. The corporation shall bear the cost of keeping the airport beacon in operation under Civil Aeronautics Administration regulations but will not have the responsibility for maintaining and repairing the beacon.

5. If the government declares a national emergency and takes over the port or any portion of it, or in the event war is declared, the corporation will have the right to cancel the lease after 60 days' notice.

6. The corporation will not be responsible for training personnel of any sub-letting operators, and will have first option on the promotion of any air show.

To Inspect Hangars

Following a discussion of the present condition of a number of the hangars, Chairman Edmund S. Burke suggested that Charles F. Heller, port maintenance foreman, inspect the hangars and report to the commission regarding necessary repairs. Arthur J. Weber, commission member, at the request of DelaGrange, said he will also inspect the condition of the hangars.

Jenkins and DelaGrange also asked that they be consulted with regard to any special field rules regarding safety and traffic regulations which may be proposed by the commission. Finan said a list of special field rules apart from the lease agreement should be prepared and posted at the field.

The corporation asked exclusive privileges in connection with sale of gasoline and oil. Burke pointed out, however, that in all previous discussions it was decided that such sales should be non-exclusive.

Jenkins and DelaGrange said that a third partner, First Lt. Sanford Jenkins, a pilot with the Army Transport Command, has applied for release from military service in order to return here.

Y Contributes To Better Citizenry, DeGast Declares

Blunk Re-elected Y.M.C.A. President

The YMCA contributes to a better and more intelligent citizenry, Leonard W. DeGast, metropolitan general secretary of Washington, YMCA's, said here last night.

Prior to his address at the annual meeting of Central YMCA, held in the Y gymnasium, the results of the balloting for 10 directors was announced, and a past president's pin was presented to Edmund S. Burke, president in 1945 and 1946, by President Adolf Blunk. Blunk was re-elected president by the directors who met to organize after the annual meeting.

DeGast outlined briefly the growth of the YMCA movement from its relatively simple development along religious lines to its present sevenfold purpose to organize, extend and develop caring for the body, teaching good citizenship, education, leisure time, living together, earning a living and using an understanding of religion.

Great Restlessness

Recent reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation indicate juvenile delinquency and crime have increased at an alarming rate, DeGast said, adding that juvenile delinquency is not confined to the underprivileged but also is found among the overprivileged. The times, he said, have caused great restlessness.

On the other hand, DeGast pointed out that youth has a great capacity for leadership and should be given more opportunity to show his capabilities.

The YMCA with its trained leaders and assistance of laymen meets the needs, interests and desires of those in the formative years of life, said DeGast.

He termed the YMCA a training center for citizenship and said the Y instills ideas and ideals of social responsibilities.

Good citizens don't just happen; they are made, said DeGast.

He viewed the YMCA as a movement, partly human and partly divine, a movement democratic to the core, and a fellowship of youth seeking to find the fellowship of God for self and society.

Directors elected for three years were announced by Joseph G. Jackson, one of three tellers. They are Edward R. Allan, Dr. Frank U. Davis, Henry W. Price, Lloyd Rawlings, W. Donald Smith, Adolf Blunk, Lynn Lashley, Mrs. George N. Phillippi, Miles G. Thompson and Rev. David C. Watson.

Officers elected besides Blunk are: James W. Bishop, first vice-president; Edward R. Allan, second vice-president, succeeding Miles G. Thompson; Miss E. Jane Gilchrist, secretary; Roy W. Eves, treasurer.

Mayor Prepares Statement On Need For Completion Of Savage River Dam

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday he has sent a statement to Rep. J. Glenn Beall (R-Allegany) regarding the need for completion of the Savage River dam to aid in controlling future flood stages of the Potomac River.

In a recent letter to Mayor Post, Beall asked for such a statement for presentation at a hearing scheduled either tomorrow or Thursday of this week before the flood control sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee.

That committee is considering a proposed $500,000 allocation recommended by Army engineers to continue work on the Savage River dam project. Beall said he plans to real the statement into the minutes of the hearing.

"Those of us who have seen the appalling and devasting effect wrought by the flood waters of the Potomac River throughout the Potomac River Valley, fervently hope that at long last federal funds will be appropriated to assure the completion of the Savage River Dam and thus offer the people who live in the Potomac River Valley a hope of salvation from future catastrophic floods which in former years have destroyed both life and property.

"The completion of the Savage River dam will materially aid in the controlling of the flood stages of the Potomac River. The threat of a flood in the City of Cumberland, the second city of the State of Maryland, will be greatly alleviated if this dam is completed. The towns of Piedmont and Keyser, W. Va., Westernport and Luke, Md., and numerous smaller towns along the Potomac River Valley will have an assurance against floods that they have never before experienced. Numerous smaller towns and villages along the Potomac River will likewise be benefited directly and indirectly.

"The Savage River dam, if completed, would stand as a monument to the farsighted vision of an efficient Congress; however, as the dam now stands half-completed, subject to the inroads of time and nature, it represents an unconscionable waste of public funds.

"I do not intend to dwell upon the technical aspects of the benefits of this Savage River Dam from an engineering standpoint, as I am not a professional engineer and I know that your committee has had the benefits of the best engineering service obtainable concerning what may be expected from the dam from an engineering standpoint. The thousands and thousands of dollars which have been spent on surveys and blue prints already stand as mute evidence of the sincerity of the efforts of those who feel that the Savage River dam is of vital necessity to the towns along the Potomac River Valley.

"I, as mayor of one of the largest cities in the Potomac River Valley, and which city has borne the brunt of two disastrous floods and numerous smaller ones, would feel derelict in my duties if I did not again make this fervent plea to you gentlemen, that you have the wisdom to see fit to appropriate funds to complete the Savage River dam in 1948 and thereby discharge the duty which Congress owes towards the lives and property of these people who dwell in the Potomac River Valley."

Veterans Organizations Plan Housing Survey Of Entire County

To Assist Maryland Commission Find Data

A group of officers representing veterans organizations of Allegany County, and members of the Cumberland Veterans Housing Information Committee, conferred last night at the City Hall with James Lazzati, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Maryland Veterans Housing Commission, in an effort to determine a feasible manner of conducting a survey into housing needs in this county.

Mr. Lazzati explained to the group that Governor William P. Lane appointed the Veterans Housing Commission, of which Thomas B. Finan, Jr., city solicitor, is a member, in an effort to assemble information which might lead to a solution of the statewide housing shortage.

He asked the veterans' leaders present to formulate some plan by which accurate and complete data can be compiled for Cumberland and Allegany County.

Is General Problem

The problem of housing was discussed at length with the consensus of opinion appearing to be that many veterans are living "doubled-up" with friends or relatives, and that many have inadequate housing. It was also generally agreed that the problem of housing is not limited to veterans but that it is a general problem and reaches into the lives of civilians as well.

F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local No. 1024 said he is of the opinion that at least 2,000 to 2,500 new family units are needed here. This, he said includes some replacements where families are now living in what he described as "shacks" and "slum conditions." There are nearly 2,000 homes in Cumberland and immediate vicinity, he declared, without adequate inside sanitary facilities. He declared many rental units are needed.

Thomas F. Conlon, representing the Maryland Veterans Commission, expressed the opinion that the cost of housing now is too high, and some plan should be evolved to make lower first cost or rental costs possible.

Frank Powers, commander of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, said his post had attempted a survey but it did not bring the desired result. He said there is a need in Frostburg for many homes.

James B. Reinhart, president of the Cumberland Real Estate Board said local realtors are not opposed to a sound plan for relieving the housing situation, but he questioned just how great the need is.

Thomas R. Farrell, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, said his organization would cooperate in any way possible, to obtain the desired information. He said the need for housing is great among veterans as well as among other people, and that homes for rental, including apartments and other types of family units are badly needed.

To Compile Questionnaire

It was finally agreed that the Cumberland Committee appointed yesterday by Mayor Thomas S. Post at the request of Finan and Lazzati, should compile a questionnaire, and send one to each of the available 9,000 veterans in this county, in an

Hagerstown Man Found Guilty Of Carnal Knowledge

Jury Recommends Mercy Of Court

Charles L. Long, Jr., 28, Hagerstown, was found guilty on the third count of a statutory rape charge, by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury early last night after two and a quarter hours of deliberation. The third count charged carnal knowledge of a girl under 14 years of age. The jury recommended mercy.

Accused of raping Elsie J. Stoner, 13, at her home 318 Elizabeth Street, Hagerstown, last July 15, Long, the father of two small children, appeared in Court here with his wife Mrs. Pearl Long and his attorneys, Martin Bostetter and T. Aubrey Kemp, also of Hagerstown.

Martin L. Ingram, state's attorney of Washington County came here to prosecute the case assisted by Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney of Allegany county.

Testimony Is Conflicting

Prosecution witnesses included Elsie Jane Stoner, her mother Mrs. Anna Stoner; C. E. Carroll, Hagerstown Police Detective; W. Thomas Staub, Washington County investigator; Dr. Beachley and Dr. J. R. Dwyer, both of Hagerstown. Defense witnesses included Mrs. Cora Gossard, Mrs. Pearl Long, and the defendant, Charles L. Long, Jr.

Long was accused by the Stoner girl and her mother of entering the Stoner home when all the occupants except the 13-year-old girl were away, forcing the girl on to a bed, holding his hand over her mouth, and having relations with her. The child said she made no outcry, and was told by Long to tell no one.

Under examination, she said she told Mrs. Gossard, the landlady of the house, the next day, but Mrs. Gossard denied that the child nad mentioned such an affair to her.

The girl's mother said she became suspicious of the child's condition and the girl then told her mother of the incident, sometime in September. A complaint was lodged against Long, and he was arrested September 19, and arraigned before a magistrate in Hagerstown about September 22. Held for grand jury action, he was indicted and the case was removed to this county for trial.

Claims Mistaken Identity

Washington County Investigator Staub and Detective Carroll said after they had arrested Long, and told him he was charged with rape of "the Stoner girl," Long said "yes, I was intimate with her, but did not use any force."

Testifying in his own defense, Long said he was not aware until his attorney told him, that the officers meant Elsie Jane Stoner, the 13-year-old girl. He told the jury he thought they meant the girl's older sister, with whom he said he had relations about that same time.

State argued that this was subterfuge, and a mere attempt to mislead the jury. Long's attorneys argued that Long was innocent as charged and was confused when arrested and misunderstood the officers.

The Longs and Stoners live in a double house, next door to each other, and it was brought out that Long was a frequent visitor, going there to exchange comic books with the Stoner girl's father, and often sitting down to read comic books to the child.

The case consumed the entire day of the court session, and did not go to the jury until 6:35 p. m., after impassioned pleas by attorneys on both sides. The jury returned its verdict at 8 p. m. Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson presided.

The girl, Elsie Jane Stoner, is an eighth grade pupil in a Hagerstown school. Of medium height and wearing bobby sox, the girl was on the stand for more than an hour this morning and after telling of the alleged incident was cross-examined at length concerning the date and whether or not her parents had told her to claim Long had been the one involved.

Girl Breaks Down

At one point in the testimony the girl broke down and sobbed for several minutes until Chief Judge William A. Huster told her to just answer the question and she would not be harmed in any way. She then resumed testimony.

The girl admitted that she had told Cora Gossard, a woman who lived in the apartment on the first floor of the house, about the incident the day after it allegedly occurred. She denied that her parents

2 More Holdup Suspects Are Returned Here

Pavlisko Is Held In Newark Robberies

Two more Newark, N. J., men, believed implicated in the attempted A. and P. Super-Market holdup here January 12, were returned to this city last night to face accessory charges, but police said the eighth and last suspect faces trial in New Jersey on armed robbery charges.

Roland Snyder, 22, Cumberland native, and Wesley J. Mills, 32, who escaped with Eddie Pavlisko, when local police arrested four other men and a girl three hours after the attempted holdup, were brought back here from Newark by Sheriff Edward R. Muir and Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis.

Authorities said both men will be charged with being accessories to the attempted holdup and assault on Rosco M. McElfish, assistant market manager, since they knew in advance "vague plans" of the robbery.

Eddie Pavlisko, identified by authorities as the man who struck McElfish over the head with a German Luger, faces charges of participating in two holdups in Newark and one in Kearney, N. J., police declared, and will be tried there for the New Jersey crimes. A detainer has been placed against him by local authorities.

Sheriffs Muir and Lewis returned the two men from Newark last night after they waived extradition precedings and lodged them in City Jail to await questioning today by the State's Attorney. Both men, along with Pavlisko, were apprehend in Newark.

Meanwhile Joseph Cunha, 22, charged with being a principal in the attempted robbery; Joseph Minnella, 24, Gabriel Cunha, 24, Daniel D'Wulit, 21, and Ellen "Honey" Sona, 17, were being held in Allegany County Jail in default of bonds totaling $10,000.

The girl appealed a four-months sentence to a reformatory for girls after being charged with adolescent delinquency and is being held in jail in default of $1,000 bond awaiting the appeal.

Joseph Cunha, who admitted taking part in the attempted holdup on Wineow Street, is held on $3,000 bond, his brother, Gabriel, D'Wulit and Minnella, each on $2,000 bonds to await action of the April grand jury.

The case attracted wide attention when the Cunha brothers and Minnella accused Detectives Robert Griffith and Robert Donnelly, of the Newark Bandit Squad of using third degree methods when they questioned the trio here January 16.

The detectives were later acquitted on assault charges after being detained here from the night of the questioning until the following Wednesday.

Equity Suits Filed

Three bills of complaint were docketed in Equity in Circuit Court here yesterday as follows: Evelyn Devault Yates, vs Homer Yates; Ethel M. Bowman, vs Gilbert F. Bowman; and Raymond F. Zegles, vs Shirley Lou Zegles.

His appointment effective February 1, Steele will be assigned to the Western Maryland office, Room 301 City Hall, Hagerstown, one of four branch offices in the state. Others are located in Baltimore City, Upper Marlboro and Chestertown.

Steele's duties will include investigation of programs for the department, supervision of parolees and supervision of probationers for the Courts when requested.

Prior to being elected sheriff, Steele was a deputy sheriff under Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, and before that was chief clerk in Trial Magistrates Court. He previously was employed at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant for about 10 years.

A native of Lonaconing, Steele is a graduate of Central High School there, but has been a resident of Cumberland since 1929.

Many Convert NSLI To 20-Year-Plan

Cumberland's former servicemen reinstated $1,040,500 in National Service Life Insurance during December, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Maryland Veterans Administration office. National reinstatements set a new high in December, the office stated.

State statistics also show that $2,174,500 worth of G.I. term insurance was converted by Maryland veterans to six different permanent government plans of insurance. The 20-Payment Life Plan was the most popular in December with approximately $721,500 worth of conversion being recorded.

In announcing the state total of $8,912,500 worth of reinstated insurance during December, W. L. Limburg, regional manager, said the figure does not represent those policies picked up by correspondence with the national office.

The deadline for reinstating lapsed insurance was extended to July 31, 1948, recently and veterans may still reinstate insurance by filling out a simple form and paying two monthly premiums. Ordinarily no physical examination is required if the veteran certifies that his health is as good as it was when the policy lapsed.

Handling of veterans' affairs requires prolific correspondence, as shown by records of the regional office, Limburg said, adding that during December the State VA received 122,492 pieces of mail, an average of 5,833 per working day or 730 per working hour. Outgoing envelope mail totaled 41,844 items, an average of 2,000 per working day.

Veterans writing to VA could help expedite service, Limburg said, if they would identify themselves fully. Specifically he urged veterans writing about insurance to give their policy numbers.

Coleman Answers Non-Communist Affidavit Charge

Says Neither Lewis Nor Murray Signed

Named yesterday as one of the top officers of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, who have not signed non-Communist affidavits despite instructions of the general membership, William Boyd Coleman, president of the local, last night replied that neither has Philip Murray, president of the CIO, or John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

The charge was made by Playford Aldridge, who is opposing Coleman for president in the election that started yesterday. Aldridge said affidavit has not been signed by Joseph Barley, recording secretary, in addition to Coleman, but that John G. Thomas, secretary-treasurer and business manager, has signed.

Coleman, in a statement issued last night, said:

"I am certain that the membership of Local 1874 views with great displeasure the practice of my opponent, Playford Aldridge, in seeking to gain votes by again dragging out his mistrustful weapon — the red herring.

"He neither attacks the Taft-Hartley Law nor does he offer a militant program to Local 1874 members for their benefit. He criticizes both me and my friend and co-worker, Joseph Barley, for not rushing to sign the yellow-dog non-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley Law. He fails to mention that Philip Murray, CIO president, and John L. Lewis, United Mine Worker president, have actually refused to sign such affidavits.

Cites His Platform

"It is not my desire to drag before the public eye the low tactics of my opponent. It is regrettable that we have to witness the peculiar behavior of Playford Aldridge who rushes to defend the Big-Business-sponsored Taft-Hartley Law while evading the truth and attacking our program for a 25-cent wage increase, a six-hour day, three-week vacation and other necessary improvements including a better pension rule covering workers of all ages, paid for by the Celanese company; continuation of the fight to repeal the Taft-Hartley Slave Law; passage of an adequate housing bill with government aid and retention of the present Rent Control Law; establishment of decent and adequate medical facilities for all the people and improvement in the law to increase benefits and protection for members while on Workmen's compensation and unemployment insurance; support of progressive legislation to improve veterans' benefits; the growth and further democratic development of Local 1874; more social and sports activities for all members and their families; and closer inter-relationship with the sub-locals in Lonaconing and Keyser.

"It is my solemn pledge,; along with other progressive candidates who have so pledged, to continue the fight as planned by the CIO against the Taft-Hartley Law and to lead the struggle to gain the demands and needs of Local 1874 members in the plant and community."

Chapter Organized Here To Combat Rheumatic Fever

Will Raise Funds To Fight Heart Disease

In an effort to combat "childhood's greatest enemy", rheumatic fever, plans were launched last night to form an Allegany County Chapter of the Maryland Rheumatic Fever Association, Inc., and to organize a fund raising campaign in this county.

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, local heart specialist, at whose office the meeting was held, was elected temporary chairman, with F. Allan Weatherholt, of the Cumberland News, temporary co-chairman. Mrs. Arthur C. Bright, president of the Women's Civic Club was named temporary secretary; and Gilbert A. Rehbeck, representing the Lions Club, was elected temporary treasurer.

Named to a temporary board of directors were Hugh Funkhouser, president Cumberland Optimist Club; Daniel D'Amicol, Cumberland Exchange Club; Dr. Leland B. Ransom, Junior Association of Commerce; Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer; Simon Rosenbaum; W. E. Landfeld, Cumberland Kiwanis Club, and Mrs. Aurella Becker, WTBO.

The Maryland Rheumatic Fever Association, of which the county group will be a branch, plans to conduct a program of education, vocational guidance, and field work in industry, labor and business, and for the extension of the association's work in public and private clinics.

With heart disease recognized by the Medical profession, Dr. Jacobson explained, as responsible for a death per minute in the United States, efforts are being made throughout the country to wage a constant war against this killer. In Maryland the Rheumatic Fever Association plans to conduct research into the field of heart disease and determine better ways of treating and caring for heart patients.

Since President Harry Truman has designated the week of February 8 as "National Heart Week", the Association has selected that particular week for the Maryland fund campaign, Dr. Jacobson said.

Dr. Frantz said much work needs to be done in this field and Maryland has its full share of rheumatic fever with practically no facility for their care.

Dr. Jacobson said the group will meet again Monday at 7:30 p. m. at his office to further plans for the fund campaign in this county.

Kirk Enters Race For City Council

Edward M. Kirk, 1153 Frederick Street, became the 17th candidate to enter the race for city council when he secured petition papers yesterday from Acting City Clerk Arthur B. Gibson.

Meanwhile, Robert J. Burkey, 507 Pennsylvania Avenue, announced that he has withdrawn as a council candidate in favor of his brother, Edward L. Burkey, 601 Patterson Avenue. The brothers, who operate a market on North Centre Street, announced their candidacy several days ago.

Kirk, who is president of the Gephart Playground Asociation, has operated his own business for the past three years at his home, selling and repairing typewriters and adding machines.

He was a representative of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company for 18 years, and came to Cumberland as the firm's representative in September, 1936, continuing in that capacity prior to going into business for himself.

Kirk is also president of the Young Men's Republican Club, and is scoutmaster of the Cub Pack sponsored by the Gephart Parent-Teacher Association. He is a member of Chosen Friends Lodge No. 34, IOOF, and of Fort Cumberland Lodge No. 211, A. F. and A. M.

Temperature Reading

With five more inches of snow predicted for today, sledding for the youngsters is likely to continue, and the oldsters will continue to carefully pick their way about the streets. The mercury rose to 30 degrees yesterday from an overnight low of two above, and at midnight it registered 23 degrees.

New Storm Expected To Bring Five Inches More Of Snow To W. Md.

An inch of new snow had fallen in Garrett County and light snow was falling in Allegany County, with a total of five inches expected, at midnight last night, State Police reported, as the temperature appeared to be moderating somewhat, but continued cold weather was in prospect.

At midnight the mercury stood at 23 degrees, considerably warmer than at the same hour on recent nights. However, the weatherman predicts continued cold weather today and somewhat colder Wednesday.

This prediction came in the face of a warning issued yesterday by Carl D. Robbins, local manager of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, who said the gas situation is extremely critical.

Robbins said that unless the weather moderates or additional voluntary conservation measures are adopted within the next 24 to 36 hours it will be necessary to shut off gas to certain local areas.

In the meantime, the Weather Bureau predicted that the snowstorm will bring an additional five inches of snow to Western Maryland, still digging out of Saturday's snowfall.

State Police reported Garrett County roads covered with snow again and said chains will be needed once more on Route 40 if the fall continues. Route 40 was virtually clear until the snow started late last night. Chains were needed on other roads in Garrett, however.

In Allegany County, all main roads were clear and chains were not required for driving.

Robbins, commenting on the gas situation, said further steps to save gas must be taken immediately if a serious shortage for all users is to be averted.

He explained that when sufficient pressure is not maintained there is danger of the flame going out on various pieces of gas-using equipment. Unless valves are closed gas may escape and cause great danger when pressure increases.

He said industrial users have already been reduced to a maintenance minimum and that many schools, libraries, churches, bakeries, restaurants and bars have made important voluntary curtailments.

The company is urging that room thermostats for gas-fired central heating systems be kept below 70 degrees, that laundry work be postponed until temperatures moderate, that water heaters be shut off, and that cracks around doors and windows be sealed.

"As long as pressure in pipe lines can be kept above a certain point, gas can be moved," said Robbins. "When demand greatly exceeds supply and there is not enough readily available gas to maintain a workable pressure, for general safety the company must close off certain lines for a period," Robbins asserted.

"We hope this will not be necessary," he continued. "Wholehearted cooperation is needed at once."

Final Port Lease Contract May Be Submitted Friday

Details Discussed In Lengthy Session

Following a three-hour session of the Municipal Airport Commission last night at City Hall, during which the proposed lease agreement for operation of the airport was discussed in detail, City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said he expects to have the final draft of the lease prepared by Friday.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said a special meeting of the Mayor and Council is tentatively scheduled for Friday to pass the payroll, and that the lease may be discussed at that time.

William R. Carscaden, attorney for Mountain Air Service, Inc., the corporation title under which John DelaGrange and Fred Jenkins plan to operate the airport under the two-year lease from the city, said incorporation proceedings are expected to be completed in the near future.

Details Listed

Chief among the details agreed upon in the lease discussion were the following:

1. The lease will take effect two weeks after it is signed.

2. When rental fees to be charged to bona fide operators who may provide various services at the port are being determined by the commission, the corporation shall be consulted. Final approval, however, shall rest with the commission and the Mayor and Council.

(Such possible services were listed as airplane sales and airplane part sales; repairs and maintenance; passenger service; rental of airplanes; student instruction; charter service; restaurant concession, or soft drink and souvenir concession.)

3. With regard to the rental agreement of $3,000 for the first year of operation, and $3,000 or five per cent of the gross income the second year, it was agreed that after the first six months the rent will be payable monthly in advance rather than quarterly.

4. The corporation shall bear the cost of keeping the airport beacon in operation under Civil Aeronautics Administration regulations but will not have the responsibility for maintaining and repairing the beacon.

5. If the government declares a national emergency and takes over the port or any portion of it, or in the event war is declared, the corporation will have the right to cancel the lease after 60 days' notice.

6. The corporation will not be responsible for training personnel of any sub-letting operators, and will have first option on the promotion of any air show.

To Inspect Hangars

Following a discussion of the present condition of a number of the hangars, Chairman Edmund S. Burke suggested that Charles F. Heller, port maintenance foreman, inspect the hangars and report to the commission regarding necessary repairs. Arthur J. Weber, commission member, at the request of DelaGrange, said he will also inspect the condition of the hangars.

Jenkins and DelaGrange also asked that they be consulted with regard to any special field rules regarding safety and traffic regulations which may be proposed by the commission. Finan said a list of special field rules apart from the lease agreement should be prepared and posted at the field.

The corporation asked exclusive privileges in connection with sale of gasoline and oil. Burke pointed out, however, that in all previous discussions it was decided that such sales should be non-exclusive.

Jenkins and DelaGrange said that a third partner, First Lt. Sanford Jenkins, a pilot with the Army Transport Command, has applied for release from military service in order to return here.

Y Contributes To Better Citizenry, DeGast Declares

Blunk Re-elected Y.M.C.A. President

The YMCA contributes to a better and more intelligent citizenry, Leonard W. DeGast, metropolitan general secretary of Washington, YMCA's, said here last night.

Prior to his address at the annual meeting of Central YMCA, held in the Y gymnasium, the results of the balloting for 10 directors was announced, and a past president's pin was presented to Edmund S. Burke, president in 1945 and 1946, by President Adolf Blunk. Blunk was re-elected president by the directors who met to organize after the annual meeting.

DeGast outlined briefly the growth of the YMCA movement from its relatively simple development along religious lines to its present sevenfold purpose to organize, extend and develop caring for the body, teaching good citizenship, education, leisure time, living together, earning a living and using an understanding of religion.

Great Restlessness

Recent reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation indicate juvenile delinquency and crime have increased at an alarming rate, DeGast said, adding that juvenile delinquency is not confined to the underprivileged but also is found among the overprivileged. The times, he said, have caused great restlessness.

On the other hand, DeGast pointed out that youth has a great capacity for leadership and should be given more opportunity to show his capabilities.

The YMCA with its trained leaders and assistance of laymen meets the needs, interests and desires of those in the formative years of life, said DeGast.

He termed the YMCA a training center for citizenship and said the Y instills ideas and ideals of social responsibilities.

Good citizens don't just happen; they are made, said DeGast.

He viewed the YMCA as a movement, partly human and partly divine, a movement democratic to the core, and a fellowship of youth seeking to find the fellowship of God for self and society.

Directors elected for three years were announced by Joseph G. Jackson, one of three tellers. They are Edward R. Allan, Dr. Frank U. Davis, Henry W. Price, Lloyd Rawlings, W. Donald Smith, Adolf Blunk, Lynn Lashley, Mrs. George N. Phillippi, Miles G. Thompson and Rev. David C. Watson.

Officers elected besides Blunk are: James W. Bishop, first vice-president; Edward R. Allan, second vice-president, succeeding Miles G. Thompson; Miss E. Jane Gilchrist, secretary; Roy W. Eves, treasurer.

Veterans Organizations Plan Housing Survey Of Entire County

To Assist Maryland Commission Find Data

A group of officers representing veterans organizations of Allegany County, and members of the Cumberland Veterans Housing Information Committee, conferred last night at the City Hall with James Lazzati, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Maryland Veterans Housing Commission, in an effort to determine a feasible manner of conducting a survey into housing needs in this county.

Mr. Lazzati explained to the group that Governor William P. Lane appointed the Veterans Housing Commission, of which Thomas B. Finan, Jr., city solicitor, is a member, in an effort to assemble information which might lead to a solution of the statewide housing shortage.

He asked the veterans' leaders present to formulate some plan by which accurate and complete data can be compiled for Cumberland and Allegany County.

Is General Problem

The problem of housing was discussed at length with the consensus of opinion appearing to be that many veterans are living "doubled-up" with friends or relatives, and that many have inadequate housing. It was also generally agreed that the problem of housing is not limited to veterans but that it is a general problem and reaches into the lives of civilians as well.

F. Patrick Allender, business agent of Carpenters Local No. 1024 said he is of the opinion that at least 2,000 to 2,500 new family units are needed here. This, he said includes some replacements where families are now living in what he described as "shacks" and "slum conditions." There are nearly 2,000 homes in Cumberland and immediate vicinity, he declared, without adequate inside sanitary facilities. He declared many rental units are needed.

Thomas F. Conlon, representing the Maryland Veterans Commission, expressed the opinion that the cost of housing now is too high, and some plan should be evolved to make lower first cost or rental costs possible.

Frank Powers, commander of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, Frostburg, said his post had attempted a survey but it did not bring the desired result. He said there is a need in Frostburg for many homes.

James B. Reinhart, president of the Cumberland Real Estate Board said local realtors are not opposed to a sound plan for relieving the housing situation, but he questioned just how great the need is.

Thomas R. Farrell, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, said his organization would cooperate in any way possible, to obtain the desired information. He said the need for housing is great among veterans as well as among other people, and that homes for rental, including apartments and other types of family units are badly needed.

To Compile Questionnaire

It was finally agreed that the Cumberland Committee appointed yesterday by Mayor Thomas S. Post at the request of Finan and Lazzati, should compile a questionnaire, and send one to each of the available 9,000 veterans in this county, in an

Hagerstown Man Found Guilty Of Carnal Knowledge

Jury Recommends Mercy Of Court

Charles L. Long, Jr., 28, Hagerstown, was found guilty on the third count of a statutory rape charge, by an Allegany County Circuit Court jury early last night after two and a quarter hours of deliberation. The third count charged carnal knowledge of a girl under 14 years of age. The jury recommended mercy.

Accused of raping Elsie J. Stoner, 13, at her home 318 Elizabeth Street, Hagerstown, last July 15, Long, the father of two small children, appeared in Court here with his wife Mrs. Pearl Long and his attorneys, Martin Bostetter and T. Aubrey Kemp, also of Hagerstown.

Martin L. Ingram, state's attorney of Washington County came here to prosecute the case assisted by Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney of Allegany county.

Testimony Is Conflicting

Prosecution witnesses included Elsie Jane Stoner, her mother Mrs. Anna Stoner; C. E. Carroll, Hagerstown Police Detective; W. Thomas Staub, Washington County investigator; Dr. Beachley and Dr. J. R. Dwyer, both of Hagerstown. Defense witnesses included Mrs. Cora Gossard, Mrs. Pearl Long, and the defendant, Charles L. Long, Jr.

Long was accused by the Stoner girl and her mother of entering the Stoner home when all the occupants except the 13-year-old girl were away, forcing the girl on to a bed, holding his hand over her mouth, and having relations with her. The child said she made no outcry, and was told by Long to tell no one.

Under examination, she said she told Mrs. Gossard, the landlady of the house, the next day, but Mrs. Gossard denied that the child had mentioned such an affair to her.

The girl's mother said she became suspicious of the child's condition and the girl then told her mother of the incident, sometime in September. A complaint was lodged against Long, and he was arrested September 19, and arraigned before a magistrate in Hagerstown about September 22. Held for grand jury action, he was indicted and the case was removed to this county for trial.

Claims Mistaken Identity

Washington County Investigator Staub and Detective Carroll said after they had arrested Long, and told him he was charged with rape of "the Stoner girl," Long said "yes, I was intimate with her, but did not use any force."

Testifying in his own defense, Long said he was not aware until his attorney told him, that the officers meant Elsie Jane Stoner, the 13-year-old girl. He told the jury he thought they meant the girl's older sister, with whom he said he had relations about that same time.

State argued that this was subterfuge, and a mere attempt to mislead the jury. Long's attorneys argued that Long was innocent as charged and was confused when arrested and misunderstood the officers.

The Longs and Stoners live in a double house, next door to each other, and it was brought out that Long was a frequent visitor, going there to exchange comic books with the Stoner girl's father, and often sitting down to read comic books to the child.

The case consumed the entire day of the court session, and did not go to the jury until 6:35 p. m., after impassioned pleas by attorneys on both sides. The jury returned its verdict at 8 p. m. Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson presided.

The girl, Elsie Jane Stoner, is an eighth grade pupil in a Hagerstown school. Of medium height and wearing bobby sox, the girl was on the stand for more than an hour this morning and after telling of the alleged incident was cross-examined at length concerning the date and whether or not her parents had told her to claim Long had been the one involved.

Girl Breaks Down

At one point in the testimony the girl broke down and sobbed for several minutes until Chief Judge William A. Huster told her to just answer the question and she would not be harmed in any way. She then resumed testimony.

The girl admitted that she had told Cora Gossard, a woman who lived in the apartment on the first floor of the house, about the incident the day after it allegedly occurred. She denied that her parents

2 More Holdup Suspects Are Returned Here

Pavlisko Is Held In Newark Robberies

Two more Newark, N. J., men, believed implicated in the attempted A. and P. Super-Market holdup here January 12, were returned to this city last night to face accessory charges, but police said the eighth and last suspect faces trial in New Jersey on armed robbery charges.

Roland Snyder, 22, Cumberland native, and Wesley J. Mills, 32, who escaped with Eddie Pavlisko, when local police arrested four other men and a girl three hours after the attempted holdup, were brought back here from Newark by Sheriff Edward R. Muir and Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis.

Authorities said both men will be charged with being accessories to the attempted holdup and assault on Rosco M. McElfish, assistant market manager, since they knew in advance "vague plans" of the robbery.

Eddie Pavlisko, identified by authorities as the man who struck McElfish over the head with a German Luger, faces charges of participating in two holdups in Newark and one in Kearney, N. J., police declared, and will be tried there for the New Jersey crimes. A detainer has been placed against him by local authorities.

Sheriffs Muir and Lewis returned the two men from Newark last night after they waived extradition precedings and lodged them in City Jail to await questioning today by the State's Attorney. Both men, along with Pavlisko, were apprehend in Newark.

Meanwhile Joseph Cunha, 22, charged with being a principal in the attempted robbery; Joseph Minnella, 24, Gabriel Cunha, 24, Daniel D'Wulit, 21, and Ellen "Honey" Sona, 17, were being held in Allegany County Jail in default of bonds totaling $10,000.

The girl appealed a four-months sentence to a reformatory for girls after being charged with adolescent delinquency and is being held in jail in default of $1,000 bond awaiting the appeal.

Joseph Cunha, who admitted taking part in the attempted holdup on Wineow Street, is held on $3,000 bond, his brother, Gabriel, D'Wulit and Minnella, each on $2,000 bonds to await action of the April grand jury.

The case attracted wide attention when the Cunha brothers and Minnella accused Detectives Robert Griffith and Robert Donnelly, of the Newark Bandit Squad of using third degree methods when they questioned the trio here January 16.

The detectives were later acquitted on assault charges after being detained here from the night of the questioning until the following Wednesday.

Equity Suits Filed

Steele Is Named Western Maryland Parole Officer

Appointment Is Effective Feb. 1

Appointment of former Sheriff David M. Steele, 566 Patterson Avenue, as parole officer for Allegany and Garrett counties was announced yesterday by the Maryland State Division of Parole and Probation, Annapolis.

His appointment effective February 1, Steele will be assigned to the Western Maryland office, Room 301 City Hall, Hagerstown, one of four branch offices in the state. Others are located in Baltimore City, Upper Marlboro and Chestertown.

Steele's duties will include investigation of programs for the department, supervision of parolees and supervision of probationers for the Courts when requested.

His appointment completes the staff of three parole officers, one senior parole officer and secretary for the Western Maryland territory. J. Hubert Black, senior parole officer, is in charge of the Hagerstown office.

Steele, whose term as sheriff expired in 1946, since has been local representative of Vogel-Ritt, Inc., a pest control firm.

Prior to being elected sheriff, Steele was a deputy sheriff under Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, and before that was chief clerk in Trial Magistrates Court. He previously was employed at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant for about 10 years.

A native of Lonaconing, Steele is a graduate of Central High School there, but has been a resident of Cumberland since 1929.

He is a member of Ali Ghan Temple of the Shrine, the Masons, First Presbyterian Church, a director of the Police Boys Club and a member of the Lions Club.

Local Veterans Renew $1,040,500 Insurance In Dec.

Many Convert NSLI To 20-Year-Plan

Cumberland's former servicemen reinstated $1,040,500 in National Service Life Insurance during December, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Maryland Veterans Administration office. National reinstatements set a new high in December, the office stated.

State statistics also show that $2,174,500 worth of G.I. term insurance was converted by Maryland veterans to six different permanent government plans of insurance. The 20-Payment Life Plan was the most popular in December with approximately $721,500 worth of conversion being recorded.

In announcing the state total of $8,912,500 worth of reinstated insurance during December, W. L. Limburg, regional manager, said the figure does not represent those policies picked up by correspondence with the national office.

During the past year, Limburg said, many veterans mailed their reinstatements directly to the Richmond Branch Office, which supervises local insurance activities.

The deadline for reinstating lapsed insurance was extended to July 31, 1948, recently and veterans may still reinstate insurance by filling out a simple form and paying two monthly premiums. Ordinarily no physical examination is required if the veteran certifies that his health is as good as it was when the policy lapsed.

Handling of veterans' affairs requires prolific correspondence, as shown by records of the regional office, Limburg said, adding that during December the State VA received 122,492 pieces of mail, an average of 5,833 per working day or 730 per working hour. Outgoing envelope mail totaled 41,844 items, an average of 2,000 per working day.

Veterans writing to VA could help expedite service, Limburg said, if they would identify themselves fully. Specifically he urged veterans writing about insurance to give their policy numbers.

To Speak Here

William W. Wood, Jr., will speak on "The Problems of Social Insurance," at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club Thursday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA.

Coleman Answers Non-Communist Affidavit Charge

Says Neither Lewis Nor Murray Signed

Named yesterday as one of the top officers of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, who have not signed non-Communist affidavits despite instructions of the general membership, William Boyd Coleman, president of the local, last night replied that neither has Philip Murray, president of the CIO, or John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

The charge was made by Playford Aldridge, who is opposing Coleman for president in the election that started yesterday. Aldridge said affidavit has not been signed by Joseph Barley, recording secretary, in addition to Coleman, but that John G. Thomas, secretary-treasurer and business manager, has signed.

Coleman, in a statement issued last night, said:

"I am certain that the membership of Local 1874 views with great displeasure the practice of my opponent, Playford Aldridge, in seeking to gain votes by again dragging out his mistrustful weapon — the red herring.

"He neither attacks the Taft-Hartley Law nor does he offer a militant program to Local 1874 members for their benefit. He criticizes both me and my friend and co-worker, Joseph Barley, for not rushing to sign the yellow-dog non-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley Law. He fails to mention that Philip Murray, CIO president, and John L. Lewis, United Mine Worker president, have actually refused to sign such affidavits.

Cites His Platform

"It is not my desire to drag before the public eye the low tactics of my opponent. It is regrettable that we have to witness the peculiar behavior of Playford Aldridge who rushes to defend the Big-Business-sponsored Taft-Hartley Law while evading the truth and attacking our program for a 25-cent wage increase, a six-hour day, three-week vacation and other necessary improvements including a better pension rule covering workers of all ages, paid for by the Celanese company; continuation of the fight to repeal the Taft-Hartley Slave Law; passage of an adequate housing bill with government aid and retention of the present Rent Control Law; establishment of decent and adequate medical facilities for all the people and improvement in the law to increase benefits and protection for members while on Workmen's compensation and unemployment insurance; support of progressive legislation to improve veterans' benefits; the growth and further democratic development of Local 1874; more social and sports activities for all members and their families; and closer inter-relationship with the sub-locals in Lonaconing and Keyser.

"It is my solemn pledge,; along with other progressive candidates who have so pledged, to continue the fight as planned by the CIO against the Taft-Hartley Law and to lead the struggle to gain the demands and needs of Local 1874 members in the plant and community."

Chapter Organized Here To Combat Rheumatic Fever

Will Raise Funds To Fight Heart Disease

In an effort to combat "childhood's greatest enemy", rheumatic fever, plans were launched last night to form an Allegany County Chapter of the Maryland Rheumatic Fever Association, Inc., and to organize a fund raising campaign in this county.

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, local heart specialist, at whose office the meeting was held, was elected temporary chairman, with F. Allan Weatherholt, of the Cumberland News, temporary co-chairman. Mrs. Arthur C. Bright, president of the Women's Civic Club was named temporary secretary; and Gilbert A. Rehbeck, representing the Lions Club, was elected temporary treasurer.

Named to a temporary board of directors were Hugh Funkhouser, president Cumberland Optimist Club; Daniel D'Amicol, Cumberland Exchange Club; Dr. Leland B. Ransom, Junior Association of Commerce; Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer; Simon Rosenbaum; W. E. Landfeld, Cumberland Kiwanis Club, and Mrs. Aurella Becker, WTBO.

The Maryland Rheumatic Fever Association, of which the county group will be a branch, plans to conduct a program of education, vocational guidance, and field work in industry, labor and business, and for the extension of the association's work in public and private clinics.

With heart disease recognized by the Medical profession, Dr. Jacobson explained, as responsible for a death per minute in the United States, efforts are being made throughout the country to wage a constant war against this killer. In Maryland the Rheumatic Fever Association plans to conduct research into the field of heart disease and determine better ways of treating and caring for heart patients.

Since President Harry Truman has designated the week of February 8 as "National Heart Week", the Association has selected that particular week for the Maryland fund campaign, Dr. Jacobson said.

Dr. Frantz said much work needs to be done in this field and Maryland has its full share of rheumatic fever with practically no facility for their care.

Dr. Jacobson said the group will meet again Monday at 7:30 p. m. at his office to further plans for the fund campaign in this county.

Kirk Enters Race For City Council

Edward M. Kirk, 1153 Frederick Street, became the 17th candidate to enter the race for city council when he secured petition papers yesterday from Acting City Clerk Arthur B. Gibson.

Meanwhile, Robert J. Burkey, 507 Pennsylvania Avenue, announced that he has withdrawn as a council candidate in favor of his brother, Edward L. Burkey, 601 Patterson Avenue. The brothers, who operate a market on North Centre Street, announced their candidacy several days ago.

Kirk, who is president of the Gephart Playground Asociation, has operated his own business for the past three years at his home, selling and repairing typewriters and adding machines.

He was a representative of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company for 18 years, and came to Cumberland as the firm's representative in September, 1936, continuing in that capacity prior to going into business for himself.

Kirk is also president of the Young Men's Republican Club, and is scoutmaster of the Cub Pack sponsored by the Gephart Parent-Teacher Association. He is a member of Chosen Friends Lodge No. 34, IOOF, and of Fort Cumberland Lodge No. 211, A. F. and A. M.

Temperature Reading

With five more inches of snow predicted for today, sledding for the youngsters is likely to continue, and the oldsters will continue to carefully pick their way about the streets. The mercury rose to 30 degrees yesterday from an overnight low of two above, and at midnight it registered 23 degrees.

Mayor Prepares Statement On Need For Completion Of Savage River Dam

Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday he has sent a statement to Rep. J. Glenn Beall (R-Allegany) regarding the need for completion of the Savage River dam to aid in controlling future flood stages of the Potomac River.

In a recent letter to Mayor Post, Beall asked for such a statement for presentation at a hearing scheduled either tomorrow or Thursday of this week before the flood control sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee.

That committee is considering a proposed $500,000 allocation recommended by Army engineers to continue work on the Savage River dam project. Beall said he plans to real the statement into the minutes of the hearing.

The statement follows:

"Those of us who have seen the appalling and devasting effect wrought by the flood waters of the Potomac River throughout the Potomac River Valley, fervently hope that at long last federal funds will be appropriated to assure the completion of the Savage River Dam and thus offer the people who live in the Potomac River Valley a hope of salvation from future catastrophic floods which in former years have destroyed both life and property.

"The completion of the Savage River dam will materially aid in the controlling of the flood stages of the Potomac River. The threat of a flood in the City of Cumberland, the second city of the State of Maryland, will be greatly alleviated if this dam is completed. The towns of Piedmont and Keyser, W. Va., Westernport and Luke, Md., and numerous smaller towns along the Potomac River Valley will have an assurance against floods that they have never before experienced. Numerous smaller towns and villages along the Potomac River will likewise be benefited directly and indirectly.

"The Savage River dam, if completed, would stand as a monument to the farsighted vision of an efficient Congress; however, as the dam now stands half-completed, subject to the inroads of time and nature, it represents an unconscionable waste of public funds.

"I do not intend to dwell upon the technical aspects of the benefits of this Savage River Dam from an engineering standpoint, as I am not a professional engineer and I know that your committee has had the benefits of the best engineering service obtainable concerning what may be expected from the dam from an engineering standpoint. The thousands and thousands of dollars which have been spent on surveys and blue prints already stand as mute evidence of the sincerity of the efforts of those who feel that the Savage River dam is of vital necessity to the towns along the Potomac River Valley.

"I, as mayor of one of the largest cities in the Potomac River Valley, and which city has borne the brunt of two disastrous floods and numerous smaller ones, would feel derelict in my duties if I did not again make this fervent plea to you gentlemen, that you have the wisdom to see fit to appropriate funds to complete the Savage River dam in 1948 and thereby discharge the duty which Congress owes towards the lives and property of these people who dwell in the Potomac River Valley."

New Storm Expected To Bring Five Inches More Of Snow To W. Md.

An inch of new snow had fallen in Garrett County and light snow was falling in Allegany County, with a total of five inches expected, at midnight last night, State Police reported, as the temperature appeared to be moderating somewhat, but continued cold weather was in prospect.

At midnight the mercury stood at 23 degrees, considerably warmer than at the same hour on recent nights. However, the weatherman predicts continued cold weather today and somewhat colder Wednesday.

This prediction came in the face of a warning issued yesterday by Carl D. Robbins, local manager of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, who said the gas situation is extremely critical.

Robbins said that unless the weather moderates or additional voluntary conservation measures are adopted within the next 24 to 36 hours it will be necessary to shut off gas to certain local areas.

In the meantime, the Weather Bureau predicted that the snowstorm will bring an additional five inches of snow to Western Maryland, still digging out of Saturday's snowfall.

State Police reported Garrett County roads covered with snow again and said chains will be needed once more on Route 40 if the fall continues. Route 40 was virtually clear until the snow started late last night. Chains were needed on other roads in Garrett, however.

In Allegany County, all main roads were clear and chains were not required for driving.

Robbins, commenting on the gas situation, said further steps to save gas must be taken immediately if a serious shortage for all users is to be averted.

He explained that when sufficient pressure is not maintained there is danger of the flame going out on various pieces of gas-using equipment. Unless valves are closed gas may escape and cause great danger when pressure increases.

He said industrial users have already been reduced to a maintenance minimum and that many schools, libraries, churches, bakeries, restaurants and bars have made important voluntary curtailments.

The company is urging that room thermostats for gas-fired central heating systems be kept below 70 degrees, that laundry work be postponed until temperatures moderate, that water heaters be shut off, and that cracks around doors and windows be sealed.

"As long as pressure in pipe lines can be kept above a certain point, gas can be moved," said Robbins. "When demand greatly exceeds supply and there is not enough readily available gas to maintain a workable pressure, for general safety the company must close off certain lines for a period," Robbins asserted.
